DRY AMENDMENT ON EVE OF VICTORY; NEEDS ONE STATE

New Hampshire, Iowa, Colorado, Utah, and Oregon Make 35 for Ratification.

PROBABLY CARRIED TODAY

Eventual Adoption by at Least 45 States Predicted by Prohibition Leaders.

TAKES EFFECT IN A YEAR

Meanwhile Congress Must Prescribe Enforcement—Nation Actually Dry Next July.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Thirty-five States of the thirty-six necessary have now ratified the prohibition amendment to the United States Constitution. The Legislatures of five States ratified the amendment today—Iowa, Oregon, New Hampshire, Colorado, and Utah.

Under the Constitution the amendment "shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress." In the case of the prohibition amendment now being voted on by the Legislatures Congress provided that the amendment should be submitted to the State Legislatures for ratification.

Of the forty-eight States, thirty-five have now ratified the amendment, within one State of the required three-fourths. It is expected that the thirty-sixth State will ratify not later than tomorrow.

Under the terms of the amendment itself, nation-wide prohibition goes into effect one year after ratification of the amendment. One year from tomorrow will be Jan. 16, 1920, and it is the contention of Anti-Saloon leaders at their national headquarters here that the terms of the amendment, regardless of any intervening agencies, nation-wide prohibition will become effective not later than Jan. 16, 1920. Congress, by appropriate legislation, has already decided that wartime national prohibition should become effective July 1, 1919, so that in actual practice national prohibition becomes effective six months before it could become effective under the national prohibition amendment. Under the wartime prohibition legislation, after it becomes effective, July 1, 1919, the nation must remain dry until peace is signed and the armies demobilized, the President by proclamation to fix the date for such demobilization.

Claim All States but Three.

Prohibition leaders here predicted some months ago that the constitutional amendment would have been ratified by the required thirty-six States between Jan. 15 and 20 of this year. It was asserted at national headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League of America tonight that before another week rolled around forty-four States would have ratified the amendment. All States except New York, New Jersey, and Rhode Island are claimed as favoring the amendment. Some Anti-Saloon League leaders are now even counting upon New York and New Jersey.

The Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which provided that suffrage should not be abridged for race or color, was proposed to the State Legislatures in 1869. It was declared in a proclamation of the Secretary of State dated March 30, 1870, to have been ratified by the Legislatures of twenty-nine of the then thirty-seven States.

Prohibition leaders here asserted tonight that they were not worried by attempts to throw obstacles in the way of ratification of the amendment in the States where liquor leaders are contending that the amendment must be approved by referendum to the people of the State. On this point the Anti-Saloon League issued this statement:

"Congress has chosen the State Legislatures as the bodies to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment. A State referendum, therefore, would be illegal and void."

This statement was authorized by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the league, in connection with the reported movement of distillers to institute injunction proceedings looking to the securing of State referendums.

The resolution submitting to the States the National Prohibition Amendment to the Constitution was passed by Congress Dec. 18, 1917. The resolution was adopted by the Senate Aug. 1, 1917, by a vote of 65 to 20, and was passed by the House of Representatives, with slight amendments, Dec. 17, 1917, by a vote of 282 to 128, the Senate the following day voting to concur in the House amendments.

Text of the Resolution.

German Mine Sweepers Strike, Tying Up Fishing Industry

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—The crews of German mine sweepers, according to the Cologne Volkszeitung, are refusing to serve unless they receive increased pay and a new schedule, calling for sums as high as 100 marks daily, exclusive of the insurance guarantee. The increase would amount to 400,000,000 marks.

Mine sweeping in the Baltic and North Seas has ceased, and the fishing industry has been suspended.

GARRISON SOLE B. R. T. RECEIVER

Federal Court Denies City's Application to Make Craig His Associate.

TELLS OF COMPANY'S NEEDS

Receiver Declares That Chief Difficulty Is Lack of Ready Cash.

Judge Julius M. Mayer in the United States District Court yesterday appointed Lindley M. Garrison permanent receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, and the New York Consolidated Railroad Company. At the same time he denied the applications of the city and the Public Service Commission for the appointment of a co-receiver. Mr. Garrison's bond, provided when he was appointed temporary receiver, was continued.

The case came before the court on the application of Walter F. Taylor, attorney for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a creditor of the defendant companies, on whose application they were put in the hands of a temporary receiver, to make Mr. Garrison's receivership permanent. In making the application Mr. Taylor filed with the court the temporary receiver's preliminary report on the condition of the properties, physical and financial, as he had been able to determine it in the short time he had had to make an examination.

When the matter at issue was properly before him, Judge Mayer asked that all persons present who wished to be heard step forward and give their names and those for whom they appeared to the clerk of the court. The following stepped forward: Corporation Counsel William P. Burr, representing the Board of Estimate; William L. Ransom, formerly counsel to the Public Service Commission, and retained by it as special counsel in the proceedings; Paul D. Cravath and R. T. Swayne, representing the Central Union Trust Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and others of the creditors and largest security holders of the B. R. T.; George S. Franklin, representing the War Finance Corporation, also a creditor; John J. O'Leary, representing the relatives of the victims of the Malbone Street tunnel wreck, who have damage claims against the B. R. T. Arthur J. Stearns, representing property owners upon whose real estate the companies have encroached; Elden Bisbee and William Erbe, representing themselves and other small security holders, and George D. Yeomans, representing the defendant companies.

Mr. Taylor, in making his application to make the temporary receivership permanent, called the court's attention to the fact that, on many of the lines affected, construction work had stopped altogether or was proceeding very slowly. Contracts made for new lines, he said, called for connections over the Williamsbrug and Manhattan Bridges and three river tunnels. None of the tunnels, Mr. Taylor said, had been constructed, and this delay in construction work was depriving the companies now operated by a receiver from large and needed revenues. The companies need new money, he said, and the only way they could get it quickly was through the receiver's financing, approved by the court.

Argument for Co-Receiver.

Mr. Ransom, for the Public Service Commission, was next heard. "The situation we find here," said the lawyer, "is novel and altogether unique in the history of railroad receiverships. Ordinarily, the stock and bondholders are the chief creditors. It is not so in this case. A municipality, the City of New York, has more money involved than almost all the other creditors put together. This city has invested in this enterprise, in association with the B. R. T., more than $110,000,000.

"For this reason, if for no other, the city should be represented in this receivership. But there are other reasons. The city is the guardian of the interests of those who, but for that guardianship, might suffer grievously from abuses of corporate management. Then, too, the work involved in carrying on this receivership will be of such magnitude that two receivers will have all they can do to perform the task properly. We know that the companies have violated Contract No. 4 by their failure to carry out its provisions, and we contend that, for this reason also, there should be a co-receiver appointed to represent the city."

Judge Mayer here interrupted Mr. Ransom to remind him that the law provided relief for a party suffering injury under a contract, and asked if counsel thought it was either the duty or the obligation of the receiver to look especially after the interests of a municipal or other interest, or should look after

BERLIN, Jan. 14, (via Copenhagen.)—This morning's newspapers published a Government order, demanding the delivery of all arms within twenty-four hours, on penalty of a heavy fine and of imprisonment up to five years.

At first it seemed as if the order might have the effect of disarming all the law-abiding citizens and making them defenseless against the anarchist elements, because it could hardly be expected that the Spartacides, who seem determined to sell their lives as dearly as possible, would come to the authorities and like good boys hand over what arms and munitions they still possessed.

But toward noon the public became aware that the Government meant business. About 10 o'clock every street in the factory and tenement district was closed by the military in such a manner nobody could leave his house without giving an account of himself to the patrolling soldiers.

If to the question whether they carried arms the answer was "no," they were searched closely. Then they had to accompany the soldiers back to their habitations, which also were searched.

Most men willingly delivered what arms and ammunition they had on their persons or in their habitations.

Some women assisted the soldiers in searching, and many military rifles and other arms were produced.

All the factories and large mills with which the district abounds were searched, among them Loewe's munition works, the employes of which sympathize with the Spartacus group. Also the Bergmann electric works and the Siemens Halske plant.

While this was being done field guns and mine throwers were stationed at certain points from which the most dangerous parts of the district could be covered. Up to noon, however, no serious trouble occurred while the Government's auto cars were being filled with arms of all kinds.

Sailors garrisoned in the so-called Exhibition Park were also disarmed, not without complaint, but were left in possession of the park.

The large prisons in the Moabit area were strongly guarded, because a Spartacide attack was expected. The flying grounds and plants at Johannistal were also occupied by Government troops, the workmen and soldiers there being suspected of having furnished munitions to the Spartacides. Stringent measures like these will be taken in various other districts tonight and tomorrow, and it is hoped that some semblance of order may be restored.

The housetop war last night was worse than ever before. The newspaper district was again one of the principal battle grounds. On Yorkstrasse the Government troops in the street were shot at by Spartacide machine guns from housetops. Several street cars were hit and traffic was finally stopped completely.

Friedrich Leipziger Strasse was resounding continuously with shots.

While it was yet daylight pedestrians had the amazing spectacle of steel helmeted warriors chasing the Spartacides over the roofs of adjacent blocks.

The Government troops, having received information that another attack was planned in the newspaper district, stopped not only vehicles of all kinds traveling in that direction, but also pedestrians approaching the neighborhood. The men were searched and questioned concerning the reason for their presence.

Hand grenades, thrown from roofs near Belleallianceplatz, wounded a number of innocent people. Later in the evening Buelowstrasse and Motzstrasse were scenes of shooting affrays lasting for hours. The worst disturbances, however, took place on Hafenplatz, where the underground emerges from a tunnel to reach Gleisdreieck, and afterward Buelowstrasse

Peasants in Central Russia Rise Against Bolshevist Rule

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 15.—A violent peasant rising in the interior of Russia against the imposition of excessive taxes by the Bolsheviki and against the "Committees for Fighting Poverty," which exercise a tyrannical dictatorship in the villages, is reported in a Petrograd dispatch.

The peasants in the Tula Government mercilessly killed members of such committees.

MANN ADMITS GIFTS FROM SWIFT

HENEY DISCLOSES FACTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The charge that Representative Mann of Illinois, Republican floor leader and aspirant for the Speakership of the next House, had used his influence to kill legislation in that body inimical to the interests of the Chicago packers was made today by Francis J. Heney in testifying before the Senate Agricultural Committee, which is investigating the packers with a view to ascertaining if the packing industry ought to be put under Government control.

Mr. Heney read from letters written, he said, by Henry Veeder, one of the Chicago attorneys for the packers, in which Mr. Veeder related how the packing concern of Louis Swift had given Mr. Mann a $150 horse and a $3.50 beef steak back in 1907 to show appreciation of Mr. Mann's alleged sympathy with the packers.

In January, 1917, according to the Veeder letters, Representative Mann supported a rider to an appropriation bill which had the effect of smothering a resolution offered by Representative Borland to have Congress investigate the packers.

Under the rider, which was adopted by the House, the investigation went to the Bureau of Markets, in the Department of Agriculture, which was exactly, Mr. Heney said, where the packers wanted it to go.

Mann Admits the Gifts.

Mr. Mann laughed when asked today if it were true that he had accepted the $150 horse and the $3.50 beefsteak from the Louis Swift concern.

"Why, yes, that's true enough," he said. "I wanted a horse for my truck garden in Chicago, and I spoke to some one in the Swift firm about it, asking if they had an old horse they didn't want. They sent me an old one that I used in the garden. I do not remember now who it was to whom I spoke about it.

"And about the steak—yes, I got that, too. I think it was a pretty fine steak, too. I do not recall just how it happened that I got that, but I got it anyhow.

"So far as my using my influence for he packers because of that old horse or the steak, or anything else is concerned, that's all nonsense. I never did exert any influence for the packers."

The evidence of Mr. Heney had the effect of causing Republican leaders of the House and Senate to confer in Senator Lodge's office later in the day to decide what effect it might have upon Mr. Mann's candidacy. No conclusion was reached, so far as could be ascertained.

Says Swift Indorsed Gift.

In the letter from Mr. Veeder to Mr. Swift, telling of the gift of the steak, Mr. Veeder wrote that he had been talking to Mr. Mann, who had told him he "hadn't tasted a good beefsteak in a long time." Mr. Veeder wanted to know if it would be all right to have one sent to him. Mr. Swift, according to Mr. Heney, wrote back that it would be agreeable to him, but he wanted to know how many steaks a year Mr. Mann would want. He suggested that six or seven would be enough.

Mr. Heney went on to read a letter showing that Mr. Mann had written to Mr. Veeder thanking him for the $150 horse, the Representative saying that it was a "magnificent animal and just what I wanted." The horse was charged against one of the departments, the head of which objected to its being put against him. Mr. Veeder wrote to the department head, telling him not to mind, because the horse was twelve years old anyhow and only cost $150 when it was young.

Then Mr. Heney proceeded to tell of a move in the House two Winters ago to investigate the packers and said that the latter were opposed to the Borland resolution, which would have brought about a searching inquiry by Congress. He read from letters of Mr. Veeder, who was in Washington, to show that three attorneys of the Chicago packers were sent here to head off the investigation. The attorneys, Mr. Heney said, advised the packers that if the Borland resolution were not killed it would mean an inquiry that would make criminal prosecution of the packers "inevitable."

Tells of Fund to Combat Inquiry.

Upon this advice, Mr. Heney said, five Chicago packers raised a fund among themselves to fight the Borland resolution, which was at that time pending before a House committee. In a letter

PARIS, Jan. 15.—President Poincaré will deliver on Saturday next a speech declaring the preliminary and plenary sessions of the Peace Conference between the associated powers opened. Immediately after the French President's inaugural address, which is expected to take the form of a welcome to the assembled delegates and aspirations that their labors will result in practical fruition of the hopes with which the world is looking to the meetings in Paris, there will be a declaration of the principles by which the Congress will be guided.

In the forefront of these will be a resolution which will be submitted to the delegates to the effect that one of the basic principles on which the future of the world will be safeguarded is embodied in the idea of a League of Nations. It will be submitted that proposals for a practical scheme for the working out of the League of Nations be referred to a Grand Commission, which will study the details and elaborate a project to be referred back for acceptance of the chief delegates of the associated powers.

That the League of Nations will be placed at the head of the program of the conference insures priority of attention when the reports of the various commissions are returned to the conference.

The idea which obtained at present is that the declaration of the principles to which the league is to give practical form shall be broadly drawn, so as not to provoke discussion at the outset. Then the several commissions appointed by the various countries will get to work to study together half a dozen or more of the most important suggestions which have been made for the practical realization of the ideal of the league. Gossip says that President Wilson has a scheme of his own, but up to the present America's representative at what may be called the League of Nations Board has not been announced.

Bourgeois Favors League.

Lord Robert Cecil is Britain's representative, and Leon Bourgeois will represent France. Clemenceau's ideas in regard to the league were explained by himself in the Chamber of Deputies, and his selection of Bourgeois has been the subject of some criticism on the ground that it was purely governmental. However, the same criticism might be applied to the appointment of Lord ROBERT CECIL, and the common belief is that both Cecil and Bourgeois are heartily in sympathy with the idea and that the best efforts of both will be devoted to obtain its practical realization. Bourgeois is not only one of the elder statesmen of France, but, as President of the French Association for a League of Nations, he represents a committee including other former Premiers and Foreign Secretaries of the French Republic—Ribot, Barthou, Briand, Doumergues, Hanotaux, Painlevé, and Viviani, and other public men of such different views as Jules Cambon, Hanotaux, Albert Thomas, and Sembat.

On the British side, Lord Robert Cecil will have the direct assistance of General Smuts, who is now in Paris and has drawn up a scheme for a League which, owing to the mismanagement of his publishers, has hardly received all the attention it deserves.

President Wilson's advocacy of the League has been so cardinally the principle of his policy that no doubt is felt that whoever may be appointed as America's representatives on the League of Nations Commission will do the utmost to further any practi-

Text of First Paris Conference Communique Reveals Little of Actual Doings of Sessions

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Hitherto it has been the practice of the Governments taking part in the preliminary peace conventions, says a statement given out by the official press bureau today, to issue separate communiqués regarding the proceedings. From today it has been decided to issue a joint communiqué, of which the following is the English text adopted by the British and American delegations:

"The President of the United States and the Prime Minister and Foreign Ministers of the Allied Powers, assisted by the Japanese Ambassadors in Paris and London, held two meetings today. In the course of these meetings the examination of the rules of the conference has been continued and almost completed.

"It was decided that the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan should be represented by five delegates apiece. The British Dominions and India, besides, shall be represented as follows: Two delegates respectively for Australia, Canada, South Africa, and India, including the native States, and one delegate for New Zealand.

"Brazil will have three delegates. Belgium, China, Greece, Poland, Portugal, the Czechoslovak Republic, Rumania, and Serbia will have two delegates apiece, Siam one delegate, and Cuba, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Liberia, Nicaragua, and Panama one delegate apiece.

"Montenegro will have one delegate, but the rules concerning the designation of this delegate shall not be fixed until the moment when the political situation in this country shall have been cleared up.

"The meeting adopted the following two general principles:

"One—Each delegation being a unit, the number of delegates forming it shall have no influence upon its status at the conference.

"Two—In the selection of its delegation each nation may avail itself of the panel system. This will enable each State at discretion to intrust its interests to such persons as it may designate.

"The adoption of the panel system will in particular enable the British Empire to admit among its five delegates representatives of the dominions, including Newfoundland, which has no separate representation, and of India."

PUNITIVE TERMS IN NEW ARMISTICE

Allies Demand Retribution for Cruelties by Germans to Prisoners.

ALARMIST NEWS IN LONDON

Central News Issues Statement That the War May Break Out Again.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Central News declares that as a result of the allied discussions in Paris the whole aspect of demobilization has undergone a sudden and vital change, this being shown in the drastic conditions demanded of Germany for a renewal of the armistice.

"On authority of an unimpeachable charcater," says The Central News, "it can be stated that a situation exists in Europe under which war may break out again at any moment. The Allied War Council has arrived at a decision which means that the British people have mistaken the appearance of peace for reality. This decision means that the new British Ministry must revise the whole scheme of army demobilization.

"The decision is that Great Britain, in proportion to its military strength, must maintain an army of occupation on the Rhine for many months. If the rapid increase in demobilization recently announced were continued there would in a few months be no army in France to undertake the obligations which by common decision of the Allies have been placed upon British soldiers."

The new armistice terms to be presented to Germany by Marshal Foch are unofficially stated here to include the following:

First—Retribution upon the Germans for the murder and ill-treatment of allied prisoners.

Second—The machinery and goods stolen by Germany from France and Belgium to be at once given up. It is pointed out that France alone has 500,000 men who will be out of work until this machinery is returned.

Third—German gold, amounting to more than £100,000,000, to be moved from Berlin to a safe place, probably Frankfort, and protected from Bolshevism in Germany en route. Certain other property to be surrendered.

Fourth—Germany to give over her shipping, of which she is believed to have 4,000,000 tons, to carry food supplies to countries in Europe in need of them.

Fifth—Any U-boats on the stocks to be handed to the Allies for their disposal, or to be destroyed, and no more submarines should be built.

Commenting on the report that the new armistice terms require the destruction of German submarines now under construction, The Daily Mail characterizes this condition as a vital one.

"Some 170 boats have been discovered on hand at German yards," says the newspaper, "and these must obviously be dealt with. Mankind would not be safe if they were left in German hands intact. We may hope, however, that the Peace Conference will forbid submarine construction in future.

"Submarines are valueless for commercial work and are capable of such criminal use in war that they ought not to be tolerated. The British Navy has provided appliances which rob them of their sting, and British submarines are by far the most powerful in the world. Nevertheless, the submarine ought to be banned."

PARIS, Tuesday, Jan. 14.—German gold reserves, which the Allies propose to transfer to Frankfort from the Berlin Reichsbank, totaled 2,262,626,000 marks on Dec. 31, according to the last official report of the Reichsbank.

Compilations made from German official reports relative to paper in circulation give a total of 31,792,313,000 marks. Besides this, there are great quantities of paper which various municipalities have issued.

AGREE ON POLICY TOWARD RUSSIA

Wilson and British Believed to Have Decided on Plans to Check Bolshevism.

MAY USE POLISH TROOPS

Americans Also Agreeable to Sending an Allied Commission to Russia.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—President Wilson's conference on Tuesday with Lloyd George, Balfour, and Bonar Law is believed to have cemented the understanding between the peace plenipotentiaries of the British and American Governments concerning measures necessary to check the spread of Bolshevism, which both regard as the most important issue for the Allies to consider at the present time.

It now appears practically certain that the two Polish divisions which were organized in the United States will be sent from France to Poland to operate against the Bolshevist forces which are endangering the stability of the Government sought to be maintained by the Polish National Committee. That no American or British troops now in service will be sent to Poland seems to be definitely determined, but there is a likelihood that the British at least may call for volunteers to form a separate force, which would be used to augment the Polish commands.

American Troops Not to be Used.

Representatives of the United States continue to deny statements published in the Paris newspapers and repeated in the face of authoritative contradiction that President Wilson has agreed that American troops should go to Poland with the Polish divisions mentioned. Nothing is clearer than that the policy of both the American and British Governments, in their fighting capacity, is not to use any troops raised for the purpose of defeating Germany now that Germany has surrendered. The American and British forces will continue to police occupied German territories and would be called into service possibly to suppress disorders likely to have widespread effect, but beyond that the belligerent activities of the American Expeditionary Forces may be said to have ended.

The main object of both Governments is to arrange world affairs so that their armed forces may be demobilized in the shortest possible time and the personnel sifted back into the channels of peaceful industry at home.

In a measure, it is understood, the willingness of the American and British plenipotentiaries that the Polish divisions should be employed in checking Bolshevism in Poland is a concession to the French view expressed at the meeting of the Supreme War Council with the heads of the peace delegations on Sunday—that as it was impossible effectively to deal with the Russian Bolshevist situation in a military way Poland should be made the PARIS, Jan. 15.—After all that has been promised concerning open discussion in the making of peace, steps were taken at today's session of the Interallied Conference which show that the whole intent is to keep the people of the world in the dark as to what is going on behind the closed doors of the Quai d'Orsay. The representatives of the five great powers adopted a resolution that nothing about their deliberation be disclosed except what was contained in the colorless daily communiqués.

Some of those connected with the conference construe the resolution as meaning that they are to be barred from seeing members of the press.

The whole spirit of the action taken is contrary in every respect to the assurances given to the American people, and already a feeling of discouragement and indignation is displayed among newspaper representatives from allied countries. The British correspondents made a formal protest, which was backed immediately by the American correspondents.

No disclosure has yet been made as to who was responsible for this amazing procedure, and I prefer to withhold a statement until I am more fully informed. The fact remains that the resolution must have been supported by the delegates of at least three powers, which shows how little the doctrine of open covenants, openly arrived at, prevails among those who are engaged in settling the destinies of the world.

Outside of this new and most serious cause for complaint the American correspondents feel that they are not getting a square deal in obtaining information from the American delegation. The daily conferences between the correspondents and members of the delegation are unproductive in every way, and the conclusion has been forced upon the correspondents that the only source of news concerning American participation in the peace negotiations is the President, who is inaccessible.

In spite of condemnation while the war was on of the secret methods prevailing at the Congress of Vienna, the conclusion is being forced upon observers here that this conference is the Congress of Vienna over again.

Opposed by Americans and British.

PARIS, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—The question of whether the Peace Conference is to be secret or wholly open to the eyes and ears of the world, the settlement of which has been long awaited, was brought to a focus today when it was announced that an agreement had been made to confine the information given to the public to a daily official communiqué and that a gentleman's agreement prevailed among the delegates not to discuss or in any way give information of the meetings in the Foreign Office.

No written official announcement of this purpose was issued, but word was passed out to this effect, and it was followed by an explosion which quite drowned out the doings of the Peace Commissioners.

The understanding is that the American and British delegates opposed this decision, but that the French, Italians, and Japanese, voting together, prevailed.

The British newspaper correspondents immediately joined in a memorial of protest, which they put before Premier Lloyd George. The American newspaper correspondent united in what is virtually a round robin to President Wilson, in which they protested in measured terms against the decision, and reminded the President of that one of his fourteen points which specifies "open covenants of peace openly arrived at."

The memorial was before the President tonight, and there is every reason to believe that such a storm has been raised as will force the question before the meeting again before the actual sessions of the Peace Conference begin on Saturday morning.

The question of whether the meetings are to be open or closed has been smoldering for several days. It is associated with conditions which have surrounded the lack of method in making public what has actually been going on in conference for the last month.

The President himself has rarely seen any of the American correspondents, and the newspaper men, who have expressed themselves at a meeting of the organization they have formed as considering themselves trustees, obligated to inform public opinion at home of the moves which are being made here in Paris, have been chafing at what they have characterized as being kept out of touch with the fountainheads of official information, having been confined to information disseminated by an official publicity agent.

Meanwhile, the French newspapers and the British newspapers having Paris editions have been appearing each day with inside information of the conferences, and in some cases have quoted American officials in a manner from which the American correspondents were requested to refrain.

Embarrassed by Breach of Faith.

The American peace envoys have been made indignant at what they regard as a breach of faith on the part of some persons, admitted to the informal discussions they have been holding with newspaper men. These conferences were inaugurated after the delegates arrived in Paris to keep correspondents advised of developments further than those given in official communiqués.

At the outset it was stipulated that nothing communicated to the correspondents during these conferences should be credited to official sources, the restriction being so severe as to prohibit the customary intimations as to sources, so that whatever a correspondent elected to write should be stated on his own responsibility.

Despite this, a statement of informative character, made by Secretary of State Lansing to the newspapermen, appeared in some French newspapers, directly or indirectly attributed to him. It was made more embarrassing to the American delegates because the publications appeared in newspapers opposed to the present French Government.

Because some statements, used in this manner, related to subjects like the denial of the plan to use American troops in Poland, which is understood to be favored by the Clemenceau Government, but is opposed by the Socialists, the American delegates felt that they were in danger of being involuntarily dragged into the complications of French factional political conflicts.

At the request of the American delegation the correspondents then undertook to adopt disciplinary measures and to require a separate understanding from each of their number to observe restrictions imposed regarding news use of matters discussed at these conferences in order to prevent further complications and, perhaps, the termination of the present confidential relations between the delegates and the newspaper men.

No British or French Censoring.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The British Foreign Office announced today that the Government does not intend to exercise any censorship over press messages during the Peace Conference. It states that it has received a similar assurance from the French Government.

TWO SESSIONS YESTERDAY.

Morning Meeting Devoted Mainly to Matters of Procedure.

PARIS, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—The Supreme Council of the Peace Congress resumed its sessions at 10:30 o'clock today. The members in attendance were Premier Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Pichon for France, President Wilson and Secretary Lansing for the United States, Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Secretary Balfour for Great Britain, Foreign Minister Sonnino for Italy, and Viscount Chinda and Baron Matsui for Japan.

The morning session was devoted entirely to discussion of methods of procedure.

The afternoon session of the Supreme Council adjourned at 5 o'clock.

While the apportionment of delegates to the Peace Conference has not yet been officially made known, the list published after Monday's session of the Supreme Council has caused an unfavorable impression among some of the missions, according to the French press. The Serbians and Belgians are notably dissatisfied with the giving of three delegates to Brazil while they are only permitted two each.

In the case of Belgium, the three seats allotted her by the French plan admitted of the nomination of a representative of each of the parties—Conservatives, Liberals, and Socialists. With only two delegates, the representatives of one party must needs be dropped. Logically, it is pointed out, it ought to have been the least important party thus to suffer, but it is impossible to drop from the delegation the Foreign Minister, Paul Hymans, a Liberal. Consequently, the commentators say, it would seem to be Emile Vandervelde, Socialist Minister of Justice, who will be the one eliminated should the Belgian allotment stand.

The Temps inclines to the belief that the discussions of the inter-allied conference will be carried on in both English and French, but remarks that the existence of two authentic texts for the treaty, one in English and one in French, might involve serious inconveniences, as a literal translation is generally impossible. It hopes that French alone will be used in the text of the treaty, as has been done since the Treaty of Westphalia.

GETTING TOGETHER ON LEAGUE

Advocates of Different Plans for World Society Nearer Agreement.

PARIS, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—With the resumption today of the meetings preliminary to the Peace Conference it is apparent that the movement to create a League of Nations is being carried on by two forces, having the same object but differing as to the means for making effective the decisions of the proposed world society.

One of these represents the contention that the decision of the league must be backed by its combined physical forces, while the other represents the view that its findings can be enforced without the aid of a common world-police force.

Diplomatists, watching the movement of the two ideas as they come into bearing before the conference, seem impressed with the view that both are moving toward a common ground which, for example, might provide that the nations could reserve for each individual case their decision whether they would utilize armed force or avail themselves of other means.

There is reason to believe that such an arrangement would meet with the support of some of the European statesmen, and there is nothing to indicate that it would be rejected by the American representatives.

This is the feature of the situation as it exists today. The plans are being rapidly put into shape in informal conferences and are working toward a position where the Peace Conference in full session can discuss them thoroughly and then probably name a committee, or commission, from among its membership to produce the framework in writing, with the assistance of the technical advisers.

The work before today's session of the Supreme Council comprised completion of the allotment of representation of the various nations and a further delving into the question of whether Russia should have delegates in the larger body. In a large sense the work today may be compared to that of a credentials committee preceding the sittings of an American national convention. The preliminary sessions will continue work on the question continuously, with the expectation of having it entirely disposed of by Saturday, when the first formal sitting of the Peace Congress will be held.

The program commonly agreed upon calls for primary consideration of the forming of a League of Nations and the congress will work on this to the exclusion of all other subjects.

Those European statesmen who now appear friendly to the purpose of putting the League of Nations questions to the fore have repeatedly expressed the view that the formation of the league and the making of peace are joint problems which cannot be dissociated.

The efforts thus seem to be to bend all energies to the laying of the foundations of the league, so that the conference may proceed to the actual making of the peace treaty in the early Spring, even, indeed, if it be only a preliminary one which will dispose of the pressing question of demobilization and the return of the warring countries as nearly as possible to the economic conditions of peace. This is recognized by all the statesmen at the conference as of the utmost necessity, and is not a view confined to the Europeans alone.

The sponsors for the League of Nations plans contemplate the broadening out of the functions of the proposed league as the preliminary discussions proceed, their assumption being that these will range far into the subjects of raw material and finance, proceeding on the theory that the financial or economic domination of smaller nations by the larger is no less a danger than armed domination. The financial program of the league, as viewed in these quarters, will be to consider whether the league itself should lend its aid financially and economically to the small independent States which are rising out of the war.

WILSON SURPRISED ORLANDO?

Daily Mail Says the President Opposes Claims Beyond Trieste and Trent.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—In commenting upon the conference between Premier Orlando of Italy and President Wilson last Friday, persons in touch with the Italian mission declare that the Premier was surprised at Mr. Wilson's attitude, says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail.

"President Wilson was firm in his refusal to recognize Italian claims beyond Trieste and Trent," the correspondent writes. "It is known that Foreign Minister Sonnino of Italy demands an important part of the Dalmatian coast, as well as the Fiume, while Premier Orlando would be content to give up the Dalmatian coast if sure of Fiume. It is reported that even on this point Mr. Wilson was unwilling to give way.

"While the majority of the inhabitants of Fiume are Italian, that port is the natural outlet for the Austrian Slavs. It is therefore claimed that a few thousand Italians in Fiume are not to be balanced against the needs for a sea outlet for millions of Slavs. It is pointed out that the commercial necessities of the Jugoslavs demand an outlet to the Adriatic, and that if Italy ignores those necessities she may incur the enmity of those populations and create a new danger to the peace of Europe. It is supposed that President Wilson does not consider that Fiume, as a free port in Italian hands, would meet the needs of the Jugoslav hinterland."

TO COMPUTE DAMAGE BILL.

200 American Officers Will Prepare Estimate for Wilson.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—President Wilson will have before him an independent estimate of the actual physical damage suffered by France and Belgium during the war when the Peace Congress reaches the stage of discussing indemnities. A survey is now being planned, and probably will be conducted by more than 200 American Army officers chosen especially for the work.

Many difficulties are presented, for in many of the devastated regions there are absolutely no records available upon which to base an estimate of what existed there before German guns and troops ground the towns and villages into heaps of ruins. The work of visualizing what pre-war conditions were and fixing the proper value for the damage inflicted will, therefore, take many weeks, and probably months.

In the opinion of some observers, the bill of actual damages, when computed, will be so great that the Entente nations probably will be more concerned with the ability of the German people to pay it than with the possibility of exacting further damages in the nature of punitive indemnities and war costs. President Wilson's attitude toward the question of what indemnities are to be exacted from Germany has been made plain on several occasions.

He believes that damages should be restricted to restitution, reparation, and restoration, and should not be extended to financial punishment of the German people.

$400,000,000 FUND NEEDED FOR FOOD

Supreme Relief Council Estimates Minimum Required Until Next Summer.

MOST MUST GO FROM HERE

Allies' Payments Here Will Be Much Larger Than the Amount Wilson Has Requested.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Supreme Council of Supply and Relief, which has been engaged for the last three days in considering the situation of the liberated countries stretching from Belgium to Poland and Armenia, has concluded that the minimum sum necessary to feed these peoples until next Summer is $400,000,000.

The Council has asked the treasury departments of the associated Governments to determine how the money can be provided. The allied Governments in Europe, it is said, have agreed to undertake their full responsibilities in the matter.

Considerable difficulty, however, arises from the fact that the bulk of the foodstuffs must come from the United States and, while the allied Governments can pay for transportation and can furnish clothing and other services, the payments made in the United States will greatly exceed $100,000,000 which President Wilson has asked Congress to appropriate.

Herbert C. Hoover, Director General of International Relief, has proposed that a commission representing each of the four great powers be established in each of the countries to be relieved under the general term of "Relief to Liberated Countries."

To Avert Chaotic Conditions.

Mr. Hoover also suggests that every effort shall be made to encourage and sustain the Governments in these countries by placing in their hands the distribution of foodstuffs under the supervision of the allied council to the end that political stability may be obtained by upholding the hands of the Governments. Without stable Governments in these countries, it is believed, there would be no peace, but anarchy and chaos, which might necessitate further military action.

If the arrangement now under discussion can be carried through, it is estimated that more than $100,000,000 will go back to the American people in payment for foodstuffs to be used in these regions. It is expected that a certain amount of actual and tangible payments by the liberated countries can be obtained through the export of such goods and raw material as they possess, and it is regarded as a matter of prime importance by the council to encourage the rehabilitation of industry in order that the peoples may at the earliest possible moment get on their feet economically and be able to support themselves.

All the countries which have set up democratic Governments are struggling to maintain order and to establish themselves permanently. Any failure on the part of the United States to support these issues, the members of the commission are said to believe, will bring ruin in Europe beyond anything since the Middle Ages.

It is understood that the American War Department is co-operating with the Food Administration in sending foodstuffs into various Mediterranean ports, but the distribution of these supplies is necessarily being held up until financial matters can be arranged. The money asked from Congress, it is declared, is solely for the purpose of supporting the liberated countries, and will not be used for relief in Germany.

The conferences Tuesday of the members of the Supreme War Council and the Supreme Council of Supply and Relief was devoted to efforts to find the solution for these problems.

Council Issues Statement.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—An official statement has been issued here relative to the meeting of the Supreme Council of Supply and Relief held at the Ministry of Commerce in Paris on Monday. It follows:

"A statement was before the council summarizing the present position of relief work in regard to Belgium, North-France, southeastern Europe, and northern Europe. Resolutions were passed respecting the appointment of committees representative of the four associated Governments to supervise arrangements in certain districts.

"Generally speaking, the position in regard to allied and liberated territories is that there is a sufficient world supply of food available to meet their needs, and that all possible steps are being taken to ascertain and meet them and solve the attendant financial and transport questions.

"Pending the presentation of reports by representatives of the four treasuries, it was agreed in principle that all four countries would participate in the financial arrangements. Following upon the decision of the Supreme War Council concerning the utilization of German shipping, certain consequential arrangements were made and representatives of the associated Governments were nominated to deal with the matter.

"Consideration was then given to the position of neutrals in the matter of food supplies. Bulgaria's situation was also discussed. An agreement was likewise reached on certain questions regarding the organization of the council."

URGE $100,000,000 BILL.

State, Treasury, and Food Officials Before Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Representatives of the State and Treasury Departments and the Food Administration appeared today before the Senate Appropriation Committee in executive session to explain the manner in which it is proposed to expend the $100,000,000 President Wilson has asked Congress to appropriate for food relief in Europe, outside of Germany.

The committee had before it the relief bill passed by the House, which provides that some of the fund also may be used for aiding the distressed civilian populations in countries of the Near East formerly under domination of the Turks.

Disposition of the resolution was deferred, with the prospect that hearings would be continued several days.

No information in addition to that already given the House was presented to the Senate committee today, according to Acting Secretary of State Polk, Judge Glasgow, counsel for the Food Administration, presented many cablegrams from Herbert Hoover outlining famine conditions and was closely questioned by many committee members.

An amendment advocated by Republicans, upon which action was postponed, would stipulate that there must be cooperation by England, France and Italy in the relief work. Another minority amendment would require detailed statements of expenditures.

VIENNA GETS BRITISH FOOD.

Tommies Convoy First Trainload for Women and Children.

VIENNA, Jan. 14.—A small body of British troops arrived here today as the convoy of a trainload of foodstuffs, a present from the British Army in Italy to the women and children of Vienna. Great crowds followed the convoy through the streets, giving the men a cordial welcome, but one devoid of any especial enthusiasm.

The British officer in command explained to the burgomaster that the supplies were sent in recognition of the fact that Austria had treated her British prisoners with consideration, in contrast with the inhuman treatment given them by the Germans.

Three additional train loads are to follow the first to alleviate the needs of the women and children until regular shipments begin coming in.

The burgomaster told the British commander that the food had arrived at an opportune moment, as the situation was reaching a crisis through the fact that Vienna had not enough food to last more than the next four days.

When the British convoy marched through the streets of Vienna, it was, perhaps, the first time in history that British troops had appeared in a group in the Austrial capital.

COL. HOUSE HAS INDIGESTION.

Continues to Improve and Expects to be Out in a Few Days.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Colonel E. M. House, who has been confined to his bed with a slight attack of indigestion, was report to be much better today.

He expects to be out in a day or two.

GERMANS RELUCTANT TO GIVE UP AIRPLANES

Many of Those Surrendered Are Worthless—Large Bombers Are Held Back.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Germany is surrendering the airplanes required by the armistice terms with reluctance, THE NEW YORK TIMES learns from an authoritative source, and the total number to be delivered to the Allies in good and serviceable condition is as yet far from having been reached. German machines were simply left behind without guards in the airdromes, and as the British advancing cavalry patrols reached them, guards were posted. In many cases the cavalry found the machines damaged or deficient in instruments or parts, and the question arises whether they were so left by the Germans or whether they had suffered owing to souvenir-hunting propensities of the civilian population.

This point is being investigated with strict impartiality. On the British sector the proportion of large bombing planes—only about twenty were left by the Germans—is very small. This emphasizes the German comprehension of the commercial possibilities of converted bombers.

The total number of German airplanes collected by the Royal Air Force is just over 500. It does not follow that anything like the whole of this number will be accepted as coming within the armistice definition of "in good condition." Only a small proportion are immediately flyable, and when it is established the Germans left defective machines they will not be accepted. About 170 of the total number were abandoned in open railway trucks and were, of course, left dismantled, a clear evasion of the terms. Both these and those machines which were left in the airdromes suffered from exposure. In two cases the Germans handed over groups of machines to local municipal authorities, insisting on receipts and declarations that they were received complete, and the enormous work caused to the Royal Air Force by this haphazard manner of surrender will be realized.

Only at Nivelles were the German airplanes handed over in the regular manner. Nearly all these were of the newest Fokker type, though there were some Albatross, scout, Pfalz, and two Junkers. These last are armored trench fighting machines with wings of corrugated aluminium, and have a pair of machine guns which fire through the floor of the observer's cockpit.

The depot at Nivelles will soon be cleared, and the primary task of noting deficiencies will be accomplished. On the result depends whether the Allies will have more to say to Germany after Jan. 17 about the surrender of airplanes.

AGREE ON POLICY TOWARD RUSSIA

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

bulwark against an extension of Bolshevism westward. It was suggested that American troops be employed for this work, but with President Wilson unsympathetic to this proposal the willingness that Polish commands be so used shows recognition of the principle advanced by the French. It is the intention to send in these troops through German territory, but it is acknowledged that the problems of transport are very great.

May Send Commission to Russia.

The American delegation is said to be in agreement also with a British suggestion which is a modification of the original British plan for extending recognition to various Bolshevist authoritative bodies. It was the original proposal that brought from M. Pichon the statement declining to agree that recognition of the Soviets was essential or wise. The British now have modified their proposition so as to provide for sending an interallied commission into Russia to study the situation and find a solution of the problems that are involved in the possible spread of Bolshevist ideas throughout Europe. It is said that the American representatives are not unfriendly to this view, which formed one topic of discussion at the conference between President Wilson and the British plenipotentiaries on Tuesday.

I learn from British sources, where no special desire exists to say pleasant things to me merely because I am an American, that Lloyd George and the other British delegates are greatly impressed with the personality of President Wilson. One of them was quoted to me as saying that the President is very human, with a businesslike directness that is impressive and winning. There is no denying that when the President came to France many shook their heads and predicted that he and Lloyd George were bound to have a clash. Their argument was that both men had positive convictions with a habit of expressing them forcibly, and as each was somewhat stubborn, serious differences were imminent. But quite the contrary has proved to be the case. The British delegates are credited by their friends with saying that th President has shown a grasp of the situations presented and was ready with suggestions that straightened out tangles in an effective manner. At the same time, they say, the President expresses his own views with a courtesy and consideration for the opinions of others that was extremely productive of harmonious conclusions. Of course, it is due to the British that their desire to maintain the best of relations with the American delegation had some bearing in this connection. But the fact stands out that the conviction on both sides that they must work together for a peace that will prevent recurrence of the world conflict has been materially assisted toward concrete accomplishment by the friendly personal feeling that has grown up between the President and the British Commissioners.

I get the same story from a man who sat in the Inter-Allied Council and watched the proceedings. He was impressed by the directness of the President in getting at the point of problems, and even more impressed by the courteous consideration shown by him for the views of others with which he was not in agreement.

The allied experts who are now conferring with German representatives at Treves are seeking an arrangement by which unsurrendered German merchantmen may be employed for the double purpose of carrying American and possibly some Canadian troops home, in return for which Germany will be permitted to use these vessels to bring back cargoes of food not only for the German population, but for the distressed peoples of other countries. Such an arrangement involves a modification of the blockade restrictions, but there is reason to believe that objection to this will be overcome if the representatives of the Ebert Government show a disposition to agree to other things that the Allies desire.

The consideration shown to the Germans in this matter is due to the fact that the armistice failed to provide for allied control of these German vessels, and the Allies wish to do nothing that might be construed as a failure to live up to the very letter of the armistice conditions.

RUSSIANS IN PARIS AGREE WITH PICHON

BAKHMETEFF SEES HOPE

Ex-Ambassador Declares Progress is Being Made in Uniting Anti-Bolshevist Factions.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—No state paper has given more encouragement to the Russian Committee in Paris, engaged in the work of restoring Russian unity and sanity, than the letter of Foreign Minister Pichon emphatically refusing, so far as France is concerned, to receive as delegates to the peace conference representatives of the Bolsheviki.

Although this refusal from the French Foreign Minister was provoked by the proposal of Lloyd George that Bolshevists, as well as representatives of other Russian groups, be so received, the Russian diplomats and statesmen now in Paris refuse absolutely to comment on the action of Lloyd George or to criticize the attitude of the British Government. But they freely discuss the points made public by the Pichon reply to Lloyd George on their merits, and they find nothing but inconsistency both in the idea of receiving the Bolshevist delegates at the peace conference and the idea of receiving delegates of other Russian groups as representatives of seperate de facto governments in North and South Russia and Siberia.

They find this inconsistency first in the fact that the Bolshevists deny the very principle of nationality upon which the peace conference is based, and secondly that the other Russian groups opposed to the Bolsheviki do not in reality represent separatist movements but parts of one great movement, the object of which is a democratic, liberal, united Russia.

Bakhmeteff Explains.

Among the members of this Paris Russian Committee, the same statesmen who are fighting for democracy in their country as against anarchy, is Boris Bakhmeteff, Ambassador of the First Revolutionary Government to America. It was he who pointed out to me today the inconsistency of receiving Bolsheviki at the peace conference or of looking upon the several Governments in Russia now struggling against Bolshevism as separate entities.

"As a premise," said M. Bakhmeteff, "we must recognize a sharp distinction between Bolshevism, the Government of Lenine, and those movements in the north and south of Russia and in Siberia opposed to the Bolsheviki and working for real democracy. These latter Governments are all loyal to the Allies and opposed to Germany. As a matter of fact, in the formation of each of these Governments, at Omsk, Archangel, and in the South, formal allegiance was declared to the Allies, as well as enmity to the Central Powers. The Governments still stand for the old alliance between France and Russia and for the common cause which Russia made with France, England and the other Allies at the beginning of the war.

"On the other hand, the Bolsheviki have made an open pact with Germany, have received money and supplies from her, and are openly hostile to the Allies. Therefore, so far as international lines of demarcation made by the war are concerned, the Bolsheviki and other Russian groups are not in the same category at all.

"But there is a line of cleavage going even deeper than that and touching every fundamental principle upon which the remaking of the world must be made. Assume for the moment that the Bolshevist Government is the actually established Government. Even then would it be qualified to send delegates to the Peace Conference? I do not think so. Why? Peace is to be formed on a basis of free, independent States, on a basis of national democratic unities. But the Bolsheviki deny this very underlying principle upon which everything worth striving for must be built. They deny the existence and reality of the very stuff out of which the League of Nations must come. They deny, in other words, national solidarity, and declare for class solidarity, desiring to make over the world on the basis of the international proletariat, which would know no existence of States.

Foes of American Ideals.

"There is absolutely nothing in common between them and what America, England, France, and Italy want. There is no room in their philosophy for the task of making the world safe for democracy. Therefore there is no common ground on which their delegates could be admitted to the world Peace Conference.

"As to the proposal that representatives of the Russian Governments of the North, South and Siberia be admitted as delegates of separate States, there is also an inconsistency, for there is no spirit of separation in these movements. Geographically, it is true, they are far apart, but nationally and politically they are all one thing. They not only make common cause for the Allies and against the Central Powers, but they are all actuated by the same desire to restore the whole of Russia to a single liberal democratic statehood. These three movements in the North, South, and Far East, are all parts of one enterprise. They do not reveal or indicate a dismemberment of Russia to those who understand them, or to those who are leading them. There is no trace of the spirit of separatism about them. On the contrary, it is the purpose of each group to get all together in one Russia as soon as possible. Here in Paris we are striving to establish unity of representation of these geographically separated regions of Russia and we are succeeding.

Bolshevism a World Menace.

"As to Bolshevism itself, we know it is not a danger peculiar to Russia but something that threatens the world. Russia is merely the first victim of this international disease, which is as much opposed to democracy as autocracy is or was. We have beaten down autocracy, but now there is the new danger, just as menacing, in the form of Bolshevism, of anarchy.

"Woodrow Wilson, William II. of Germany, Lenine of Russia, personify three things from which the world must make its choice. The Kaiser has been rejected. The choice is now between that which Wilson represents and what Lenine stands for.

"To come back to the subject of my own country, a strong liberal united Russia would be the defender of the world's safety. That is obvious. Consider for a moment the new small States to be erected in Eastern Europe. They have got to begin their national State lives from the very beginning, and we cannot expect smooth sailing for that from the start. Think what it will mean to have over beyond their eastern borders a big, serene, quieting, non-aggressive State such as United Democratic Russia should be. Think, on the other hand, what it would mean to have there instead a dismembered Russia, in part given over to anarchy, in part made up of other small States, each of which would furnish one more danger point against world peace!

"Such a conglomeration would be no help to guide and safeguard the new European States, but a constant incentive to disorder and, what is more, a field for future German intrigue in which to renew her schemes and build up her economic imperialism. A big, strong, sane Russia will alone save this situation."

EUROPE'S WAR DEBT PERIL.

French Plan of World Guarantee Approved by London Paper.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Daily News in an editorial says:

"It is interesting that the idea of a world guarantee for war debts should come from France because the attitude of France has been more nationalist than that of the English-speaking countries, and because the idea of a League of Nations seemed to be slower in taking root there than here. * * *

"It was inevitable that a proposal for a common guarantee for the indebtedness of the different countries would be put forward. All the nations are staggering under a mountain of debt and all the nations are in urgent need of credit. * * *

"Some of us are better off than others. Leaving Japan out of the question, America has suffered least. She has incurred a heavy debt, of course, for in the last months of the war her expenditures far exceeded even our own, but she is the creditor nation. She lent abundantly to the Allies. We, too, as a setoff to our debt of £8,000,000,000 or so, have large credit claims in respect of loans we have made to our allies and our self-governing Dominions during the last five years.

"On the other hand, the Continental countries have nothing but debts, and if these debts are to be honored and Europe is to be saved from a complete financial catastrophe there must be a common policy for the re-establishment of the world's credit.

"In this matter the separatism of war has no relevance. We cannot cut off the credit of one country from another any more than we can cut off the atmosphere of one country from another. We cannot be indifferent to the Turkish debt or the Austrian debt any more than we can be indifferent to the French debt or the Italian debt. In finance we all sink or swim together and the interest of each is the interest of all."

PUT LEAGUE IN FOREFRONT

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

cal method of carrying out the President's ideals.

In fact, the basis upon which the League proposals will be worked out will be found in the President's fourteen points. Arbitration or mediation will be one of the first principles of the League, and the judicial possibilities of making arbitration or mediation obligatory through permanent institutions will probably be found to have been worked out in detail by Dr. James Brown Scott of the Law Department at Washington.

Armament as an Obstacle.

The question of limitation of armaments will be one of the crucial difficulties in the formation of the League, for although the lifting of this burden from the world is one of the chief desiderata of all, the views as to where the margin of safety lies differ considerably. The French position in regard to the dangers to be feared from an unregenerated Germany, and the British view of the future possibilities of a menace to the imperial communications by sea, may be instanced.

Another point which will receive attention is that the League of Nations should not merely adopt measures of law and force to prevent future wars, but should proclaim trusteeships over nations and districts where disturbances of the peace may be expected. To this end, it will be necessary for the League to have an adequate police force, and it may be taken as a certainty that in the constitution of such a force the United States will be called upon to contribute its due quota.

The questions of standing armies and conscription inevitably arise out of this situation. Great Britain will undoubtedly oppose any suggestion that makes for conscription.

UPHOLDS BARRING OF THE BOLSHEVIKI

London Morning Post Disapproves Their Representation at the Peace Conference.

BRITISH PRESS AT VARIANCE

Chronicle Says England's Attitude is Misrepresented—Public's Abhorrence of Reds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Morning Post this morning gives prominence to THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial on the British proposal to recognize the Bolsheviki at the Peace Conference. In an editorial The Morning Post says that in declining the proposal the French Government took the only course consistent with its honor and dignity.

This paper regards it as "most unfortunate that from the moment of the Russian revolution this country has never devised a policy toward Russia," and says that "if we except Lloyd George's speech delivered to the Supreme War Council, we find no declaration of a Russian policy other than the recent negative statement that the British Government had decided to send no more troops to Russia.

Arguing in favor of allied intervention in Russia, the paper says that there are two aspects of the case to be considered.

"The one is that to leave Russia alone in her extremity would be what Viscount Milner has described as an abominable betrayal, a betrayal so extraordinarily inconsistent with all fine sentiments we have heard lately that we must continue to believe it will not be permitted. The other aspect is the question of self-defense and security of Western civilization.

Points Menace of Bolshevism.

"If Bolshevism is allowed to spread, it will infect every capital in Europe and there will arise the worst of all wars—civil conflict—in every country, and that at a time when the allied nations have not yet settled their accounts with Germany."

The Morning Post agrees that intervention in Russia on behalf of loyal Russians presents many difficulties. It says the chief difficulty would be solved if the allied Governments and America would agree upon a definite policy, would make that policy known, and would proceed at once to carry it into execution.

The editorial criticism by THE NEW YORK TIMES was also reproduced here by The London Times and is supported in The Globe, which declares itself "simply not able to understand" how the suggestion to deal with the Russian Bolshevists could have been made.

In this the Globe undoubtedly expresses the attitude of the country toward Bolshevism as revealed by the recent election. Practically every candidate who could be accused of any sympathy with extremist views was then defeated by an overwhelming majority, and it was plainly demonstrated how slight were the inroads which Bolshevist ideas had made on the British public.

On the other hand, it was also shown that there was a great distaste for further Russian adventure. The questions asked of candidates showed that the public generally wanted demobilization and was heartily opposed to the employment of the conscript army in military operations for which it was not raised.

This country is undoubtedly war weary, but it might take a different attitude toward the Russian expedition if it were intrusted to a volunteer force. So far, however, there has been no authoritative lead given by responsible statesmen.

The British nation abhors Bolshevism, but would avoid, if possible, spending more blood in interfering in Russian affairs. If, however, a leader with authority would attack the new tyranny with something of the zeal Gladstone used in denouncing the Bulgarian atrocities, he might easily carry the nation with him.

The Chronicle's diplomatic correspondent, on the other hand, says the British attitude to Russia has been misrepresented as a consequence of that "indiscretion" in publication by L'Humanité of the British proposal. The correspondent says:

"It has given rise to the assumption, entirely gratuitous, that Great Britain has no fixed policy but is swayed by vague sentimentality, whereas, it is at least equally arguable that her suggestion had a rhetorical purpose, and came at the end of correspondence on the subject. At least it may be conceded that certain proposals are put forward not as representing the last word but because they offer grounds for discussion."

WILSON MAY VISIT ENGLAND.

Hopes to Return Via Queenstown and Inspect Base of Our Fleet.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—President Wilson may visit England on his way back to the United States next month, but it will not be to confer with statesmen there. He has hoped to be able to sail from a British port, probably Queenstown, and have an opportunity to inspect the base of the American flotilla which did such remarkable work in the anti-submarine warfare.

Mr. Wilson, it is said, might decide, if he visits England, to stop for a few hours at Oxford to receive an honorary degree which that university wishes to confer on him. He would not necessarily visit London on his journey. If, when the President starts homeward, he should feel it necessary to return to Europe later, he might postpone his visit to Oxford, but if he feels there is any doubt about his coming back to the Peace Congress, he might go to Oxford to receive this degree.

SEES BANKRUPTCY FACING GERMANY

Cost of the War Said to Have Practically Equalled Nation's Total Capital.

RAILWAY REVENUE GONE

People Spend Money Recklessly for Fear That It Will Soon Become Worthless.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 14.—Confronted with dangers from without, Germany is internally torn by political dissension and in the grip of practical bankruptcy and starvation.

As regards her economic state, I have learned the following details from an observer who has been closely watching the course of events:

The war cost Germany some $100,000,000,000, which practically equals her total capital. Should the war loans be honored, the interest charge would involve an increase in taxation over the last peace budget of about $3,500,000,000. The handsome surplus previously yielded by the Prussian State railways has now disappeared and the result of working the railways is more likely to be a deficit.

The financial situation is aggravated by the loss of the feeling of security. A traveller who recently returned from Berlin tells me that money is now worth only a day's purchase, as no one knows what may happen the following day.

With no incentive to save, the people are indulging in a wild orgy of expenditure, determined to enjoy money while they have it. This desire for immediate expenditure, I am told, is prompting many of the strikes for higher wages which are impeding the restoration of the country.

Iron Ore Sources Last.

As evidence of the state of affairs regarding raw materials with which Germany is faced, my informant gave me the following figures about iron ore: In order to produce her annual product of some 14,000,000 tons of iron, Germany required 50,000,000 tons of ore. Her own output of ore, exclusive of that from Alsace, amounted to only about 8,000,000 tons, the difference having to be imported mainly from France, Luxemburg, Spain, Sweden, Norway, Tunis and Algeria, while about 21,000,000 tons were obtained from Alsace.

With the French and French-controlled markets closed against her, and Luxemburg probably lost to the German Customs Union, Germany will be hard put to it to find raw material to feed her furnaces. The effect is felt already at Krupp's, whose employes have been reduced from 120,000 to 10,000.

It must be remembered that Germany's purchasing power is heavily reduced because of the fall in the mark, which now equals about one-third of its normal value.

As regards food, my informant, who followed the Food Dictator's announcements and distribution cards for a period of two years, tells me that these cards entitle people to only one-fifth of the nourishment considered necessary by scientists, and the supplies authorized by the cards are not always forthcoming.

Prior to the war Berlin consumed about 1,200,000 litres of milk per day, while the supply now available is only some 180,000 litres. Practically there has been no milk, butter, eggs or cheese for months past.

Fats Almost Unobtainable.

The sugar ration per person is now a pound and a half per month, that of potatoes about seven pounds per week, bread—and that very bad—half a pound daily, with until lately twenty grammes of fat per day. But fat has now practically disappeared.

With the Russian food supplies lost to her, with home production of food reduced to one-sixth of the previous output, and with the potato crop left to be frostbitten in the ground owing to lack of labor, it can be said that Germany's food supplies have really broken down. Her potato supply will last only a few weeks, her cereals only until February.

How this has affected the population can be gathered from the following statistics, prepared by the old régime, but only lately made available: In 1917 the mortality rate for the whole of Germany was 32 per cent. higher than for 1913, and for only the first three-quarters of 1918, 34 per cent. higher. In towns having populations of over 15,000, deaths from tuberculosis amounted in 1913 to 40,334 and in only the first half of 1918 to 41,800. Deaths from respiratory troubles amounted in 1913 to 46,000; in 1917 to 61,000; and in only the first half of 1918 to 34,500. These statistics do not contain the very large number of deaths from the Spanish sickness.

REDS RAVAGE LITHUANIA.

Rob and Torture Land Owners as They Move on Warsaw.

WARSAW, Jan. 13, (Associated Press,) Bolshevist guerilla bands are carrying out many depredations in Lithuania as they advance in the direction of Warsaw. A landowner named Michulsky, who lived in a village near Baranovichi, has arrived in Warsaw, and relates how he and his wife were tortured by the Bolsheviki.

One day his house was surrounded by a band of twenty armed men. Only Michulsky and his wife, a French woman, were in the house. The men demanded money and Michulsky told them he did not have much. The leader of the band then told his followers to undress Michulsky. The bandits tore the clothes from both Michulsky and his wife. They beat the landowner's wife with a whip and pounded Michulsky with the butts of their guns. Michulsky finally agreed to give the men 15,000 rubles.

After accepting the money the band rifled the house and stole all the clothes of Michulsky and his wife. They told Mme. Michulsky that she belonged to the "dirty Allies," adding:

"All your people will soon be like us. There will not be any more property owners. We are going to Warsaw, and then we will overrun Europe."

Later the bandits asked for more money, and tortured Michulsky and his wife until Mme. Michulsky became unconscious, and her husband's wrists were broken. Michulsky gave them 15,000 rubles more, all the money he had. Then, after stealing all the valuables in the house and the horses on the farm, the men demanded liquor. There not being any liquor about, they gave the Michulskys a final beating and then went off to a neighboring house.

They did not find any money there so, Michulsky says, they set fire to the house and shot down the family as they attempted to escape. A girl of eighteen almost made good her escape, but was brought down with a second shot as she ran. The bandits then beat the girl to death with the butts of their guns.

Up to this time the Lithuanian peasants had taken no part in the robberies and cruelties of the Bolsheviki. The peasants themselves are being robbed by the Bolsheviki.

The commanders of the retiring German troops are reported to be carrying on systematic schemes of getting money. One plan is to sell the farms back to their owners before retiring or, if they are unwilling to buy, to sell them to the peasants. One proprietor was told he could have his wheat crop for a payment of 30,000 marks with the threat that if the offer was not accepted the wheat would be sold to the peasants.

GERMAN ARMY NOW NUMBERS 1,250,000

MANY OFFICERS RETAINED

Re-enlistment of Demobilized Men to Protect the Fatherland Also an Important Factor.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Jan. 15.—It is not to be supposed that the German Army has completely disintegrated or that it has ceased to be a potential military machine. Of course, it today is nothing like it was on Nov. 11, but it perhaps is equal in size to what the German Army was the first of July, 1914.

There were about 3,500,000 men in the German Army when hostilities ceased; there are more than 1,000,000 men in the German Army today. Its morale in a crisis is a big question.

But it must be borne in mind that Hindenburg has kept up a large part of the officers' corps, and officers, and the skeletons of many regiments and divisions of which most of the privates have been demobilized. Hindenburg plans to turn over his command of the army to the Government on Feb. 1, and it is his intention to deliver then an appreciable army for whatever use the Government may seek to put it to.

Many Germans Deserted.

An expert has given me the following statement as to the best information on the morale of the German Army:

"In addition to the men regularly demobilized, large numbers have deserted. Considerable numbers of soldiers actually with their regiments in their depots are doing little more than collecting pay. In general such soldiers as remain with the colors appear to have little disposition to obey military orders which involve personal danger to themselves. Of the few exceptions at present appear to be some units employed in enforcing order in Berlin.

"The morale of the volunteer forces is yet to be tried. Officers who have not been regularly demobilized appear to be largely remaining at their post, marking time in anticipation of any turn of events which may restore the normal military procedure. There are many evidences of their attempts to restore regimental life on the same lines as existed in the depots prior to the war, but their efforts do not appear to extend to the enforcement of objectionable orders.

"So long as the present lack of unity of purpose and control continues the German Army is of negligible value for any military operations. Nevertheless, if any turn of events should happen to bring about any common inspiration among the German people there still exists a skeletonized German organization which in such an event might quickly become an effective army."

In consideration of the German Army, especial attention should be paid to the nationwide enlistment of volunteers now going on, under which many men demobilized are again joining the army in response to the call for troops to protect Germany on the east and maintain order within the boundaries of the nation.

For the most part the German divisions have gone to their home districts—that is, the regions where they were garrisoned before the war. This is not true of some forces on the eastern border, which are being held in readiness to fight against the threatened invasion of the Fatherland by the Poles or by the Bolsheviki.

It has been proved not true that all German soldiers except two classes have been discharged. The classes of '96, '97, '98, and '99 have not been discharged officially. Members of classes of '96 and '97 living in occupied Germany have been discharged, and the discharge of all members of these classes had been promised for February, but has not yet taken place.

The size of a class in Germany averages 500,000, but of course there have been heavy tolls among these classes, and the estimate of the number of men now in the German Army is placed at 1,250,000.

How great have been the inroads of Bolshevist preaching in their ranks no one yet, not even their commissioned officers, knows accurately. The officers remain generally faithful to their commanders. It is in his officers' corps that Hindenburg places great reliance as a force to restore order in Germany should the old commander be called upon to undertake that task.

Demobilization of Staffs.

While we have fairly accurate data as to the demobilization of privates, the extent of the demobilization of staffs of divisions and regiments is not so easy to get. In general, it is believed that the Germans will disband all regiments and divisions which were not part of the German Army before the war, except certain new divisions formed of old regiments. It seems that at fewest fifty divisions' skeletons are now functioning and being built up from men from other divisions. The completion of this work would give a standing army of approximately 1,000,000 men.

Great importance is attached to the public volunteer recruiting now going on, and unemployment among the demobilized soldiers seems to be aiding this work. Recruiting posters call for lovers of their country to shield it against invasion from the East and against the Bolshevist poison from within.

A number of German divisions on the Russian-Balkan line have not been at all demobilized, and units whose home districts are in the region next to the Poles appear to be preparing for operations without much change in their personnel. In addition, units whose home districts are in and about Berlin are there and recently other units, although not any large number, have been moved into the vicinity of the capital. Units belonging in occupied territory are distributed in occupied districts.

A careful review of the situation in a belt of 150 kilometers from the Rhine eastward shows that there are in that territory only units which were there before the war or which occupation has moved there. This means that no precautions have been taken by the Germans looking toward a resumption of hostilities with the Allies.

While on the eastern front the army staffs continue to operate, in the rest of Germany the army staffs have disbanded, and local command is vested in the corps staffs which were Germany's system before the war.

Headquarters to Close.

We have information that on or about Feb. 1 Hindenburg will close his General Headquarters at Cassel and pass on its functions to the War Ministry at Berlin.

The last official task of Burgomaster Clostermann, who died the day before yesterday, was to prepare a statement of the part that the City of Coblenz played in supporting the personnel of the German Army. His report showed that the total number of soldiers drafted from the City of Coblenz, with 70,000 population, was 11,723. Of this number 1,033 were killed or died, and 449 were discharged because of wounds. Since the armistice 6,532 have been demobilized. Had America been called on to place the same proportion of soldiers in the field as did Coblenz she would have had an army of 17,000,000.

COMPELS CITIZENS TO GIVE UP ARMS

on piers resembling those of the New York elevated road.

There was fierce fighting here between the Government troops and the Spartacides on housetops, lasting from 10 to 11 P. M. Passing trains were constantly exposed to fire, and it was said that the Spartacides were shooting at the trains to terrorize the passengers and employers and stop all traffic.

They certainly succeeded in compelling the passengers to crouch together at the bottom of the cars, trembling, while the trains raced at high speed through the danger zone.

This morning the subways were closed by the employes striking. It is true that they had been negotiating with the company for some days for higher wages and seemed in a fair way to come to an agreement, but at a meeting one morning it was decided to compel the company to concede all demands by a strike. The fact was that the employes wished to have traffic suspended, fearing that their lives were endangered. Probably their demands will be granted and the subway will be reopened again tomorrow if the Spartacides permit.

Several cars were hit last night by rifle bullets and several persons were wounded by splinters, but none seriously. It is reported from Munich that a fast train from Berlin was stopped in an open field by a danger signal just before reaching Regensburg. A hundred and sixty Spartacides jumped out and fled. Twenty-six suspected passengers, who remained, were captured. All were fugitives from Berlin.

The Spartacides captured in the Vorwaerts Building had rifled the cash drawers and safes of neighboring stores containing a million and a half of marks.

All dwellers in the newspaper district spent from three to seven days there in cellars, the other parts of the houses being unsafe.

TRACE LIEBKNECHT LINK WITH MOSCOW

BERLIN, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—The wife and youngest son of Dr. Liebknecht, head of the Spartacides, who were arrested when Liebknecht's house was surrounded by soldiers and searched yesterday, have been liberated. Many incriminating Bolshevist documents were seized.

Liebknecht's eldest son is still in the hands of the police and the Spartacide chief's sister was arrested yesterday. Among others arrested was Fraulein Jakob, Secretary of the Spartacus Union.

Still nothing is known of the whereabouts of Dr. Liebknecht, former chief of Police Eichhorn or Rosa Luxemburg.

Jan. 14.—Dr. Liebknecht, George Ledebour, head of the revolutionary Independent Socialist element, and the immediate supporters of these revolutionary chiefs, were so certain that their plans for the recent uprising would succeed that they had prepared a proclamation, dated Jan. 6, in which the Ebert-Scheidemann Government was declared to be deposed and formal announcement was made that the Government had been taken over by the revolutionists.

It was already known that Dr. Liebknecht and the then Police Chief Eichhorn had told Lieutenant Fischer, the city commandant, on the day named that it had been decided to overthrow the Government, and documentary evidence to this effect is now adduced by the Vorwärts in the form of the proclamation referred to.

Text of Liebknecht Proclamation.

The proclamation was addressed to "Comrades! Workmen!" and read:

The Government of Ebert and Scheidemann has made itself impossible. It is hereby declared deposed by the undersigned Revolutionary Committee and representatives of the revolutionary workmen and soldiers (Independent Social Democratic Party and Communistic Party.) The undersigned Revolutionary Committee has temporarily taken over the Government's affairs.

Comrades and workmen, give your support to the measures of the Revolutionary Committee.

Berlin, Jan. 6, 1919.
THE REVOLUTIONARY COMMITTEE, per LEBEDOUR, LIEBKNECHT, and SCHOLZE.

The proclamation which, including the signatures, was typewritten, was presented to Lieutenant Hamburger at the Ministry of War, on Jan. 6 by a marine who appeared before the Ministry with 300 armed men from the royal stables, which was then one of the headquarters of the revolutionists. The marine demanded that the Ministry be turned over to him.

Lieutenant Hamburger objected to the typewritten signatures, but said he was ready to surrender the Ministry to the new Government if the document were properly signed.

The troops withdrew and returned later with the proclamation bearing the personal signatures of Liebknecht and Scholze, together with an annotation by Dr. Liebknecht signing himself "as the representative of Georg Ledebour, who is for the moment absent."

Lieutenant Hamburger took the proclamation, but retained the Ministry in his own hands.

"It is characteristic of Liebknecht's cynical conscienceleseness, as well as of his naive megalomania, that he believed he could with a stroke of the pen lead the entire War Ministry to faithlessness and rebellion," says the Vorwärts in its comment.

RHINELAND'S HOPE RISES.

Encouraged by Firm Stand at Berlin Against Revolutionists.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Jan. 14.—The firm stand taken by the Berlin Government against the Spartacides has made a deep impression on the people in this section, everywhere feelings of renewed confidence being manifested.

Numerous political meetings are being held, the speakers exhorting their hearers to elect candidates to the National Assembly who will build for Germany a strong, conservative Government. The population hereabouts expresses the hope that if the Spartacides again appear to have a chance of obtaining control in Berlin American troops will go there to enforce order.

CONFERS ON CONSTITUTION.

German Cabinet Also Discusses Assembly—Move for New Republic.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A Copenhagen dispatch says that the German Cabinet met yesterday to discuss the new constitution and to consider proposals for the meeting of the National Assembly. Germany's participation in the Peace Congress was also taken up. The meeting will be continued today.

The Government of Brunswick has issued a proclamation proposing the formation of a "Central North German Federal Republic" with a preliminary constitution resembling that of Switzerland. Soldiers and workmen's councils in various districts are asked to pass upon the question.

Employes of the elevated and underground railroads in Berlin have struck, as their demand for higher wages has not been met. It is not known when traffic will be resumed.

CHEMNITZ REBUKES RADICALS.

Their Vote 6,269 Out of 117,000—Liberal Gains in Wuerttemberg.

BERLIN, Jan. 15, (Associated Press.)—The numerical unimportance of the Bolshevist elements outside of Berlin has been demonstrated again by city elections.

At Chemnitz, in a total vote of more than 117,000, the combined Spartacides and independents polled 6,269 and the Majority Socialists 64,534.

A comparison of the Württemberg results with the vote in the Reichstag election of 1912 shows the enormous growth of the Democratic vote. Whereas the Progressives polled only 18 per cent. of the total vote in 1912, they received nearly a third of the whole vote last Sunday.

OUR TROOPS THINK THEY DELAY PEACE

Believe Their Early Return to America Would Speed Up Conferees' Work.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Our soldiers want to go home. With the exception of comparatively few adventuring spirits who would not mind seeing Germany or even tackling Russia, our men are eager to get back to America.

As long as there was a real war to be fought to save the world and particularly the United States from German aggression they were game for it all the way to Berlin if necessary. But among the soldiers it is held that the purpose for which they came to Europe has been accomplished.

They argue that it is not justifiable to keep them here to do police duty or to furnish a basis of establishing some kind of balance in Europe or to put down anarchy in Russia or to occupy Germany or even to help establish a League of Nations.

The latter should be a question of moral suasion. If we cannot persuade Europe to adopt American ideas and ideals, then we should leave Europe to work her own salvation in her own time and her own way, extending all possible aid, moral and material, from the other side of the Atlantic.

It is argued that the presence here of the American Army creates an artificial situation, which prevents the operation of natural forces for restoring European equilibrium. Germany no longer possesses organized military power on land or sea. Four and a half years of war have spent the military spirit in the allied armies. Sheer exhaustion creates a condition favorable for peace plans.

But it is urged that the presence of an unspent American Army furnishes a basis for individual national hopes, ambitions, and demands. European countries are tempted to count American military strength as a part of their stock in trade and may be drawn into enterprises not properly part of the work of establishing peace. From the American soldiers' viewpoint the war is over, and they do not see why they should be held here while statesmanship dilly-dallies with peace details.

The sentiment of the soldiers is shared in other American circles here. It is widely believed that if it was determined and announced that the American Army would be sent home just as rapidly as transportation could be provided it would clear the atmosphere and speed up peace proceedings.

From six to ten months are required to transport all the troops, which would incidentally provide enough American soldiers for a sufficiently long period to take care of all legitimate needs in Europe.

REDS PLAN REUNION OF AUSTRIAN LANDS

BAUER OBSTRUCTS RELIEF

Austrian Leader Attempts to Increase Discontent by Keeping Allied Food from Vienna.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 13.—Although political developments in the States which formerly composed the Empire of the Hapsburgs seem peaceful enough in comparison with the outbreaks of Bolshevist frenzy in Germany, there are certain signs that a storm is also breaking in German-Austria, Hungary, and even in Bohemia.

It is a very significant symptom that attempts are at present being made by the extreme Socialist elements in Budapest, Vienna, and Prague to effect an agreement between Hungarian, German-Austrian and Bohemian Socialist parties, with a view to joint political action.

The Hungarian Communists, among whom Bolshevism is most prevalent, and who are in close touch with the Russian Soviet, are the chief promoters of this scheme. At a recent meeting of the Budapest Workmen's Council eighty delegates voted in favor of a proposal to conclude an alliance between the Hungarian Communist Party and the German-Austrian Social Democrats. The idea of the alliance, by which the Hungarian, German-Austrian and Bohemian Socialists would pledge themselves to afford one another support in their attempts to prevent the formation of a Bourgeois Government and to establish proletarian domination, is certainly gaining ground.

This plan, the realization of which would incidentally reunite the dismembered Hapsburg Empire under the red flag, is regarded with favor by the Viennese Socialists, who for the same reason are the only powerful party left in German Austria today which still obstinately advocates union with socialistic Germany and is the sworn enemy of the Entente.

It is no secret in Vienna that Bauer, the Austrian Socialist leader, has been secretly intriguing to prevent German Austria from being supplied with food by the Entente. He has raised difficulties of all kinds in order to prevent food from reaching Vienna, for the Austrian Socialists fear that the Allies' generous action toward their fallen enemy may influence the population and forestall not only union with Germany, but also the establishment of Socialistic rule, and any humanitarian intervention calculated to alleviate the misery and discontent of the working classes fills them with selfish dismay.

Bauer's unscrupulous and heartless intrigues show to what lengths the Socialist leaders in Eastern Europe are prepared to go to realize their ambitions.

Moreover, the entire territory of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire is flooded with Bolshevist agents, most of whom are liberated Austrian and Hungarian war prisoners, dispatched from Russia owing to the general state of disorganization. These agents find no difficulty in passing from Hungary into Austria and Bohemia without passports. Their propaganda is beginning to bear fruit even in Bohemia, which until lately seemed altogether free from Bolshevism. The attempt to assassinate Kramarcz is not, as was at first supposed, the isolated act of a youthful fanatic, but the consequence of a Bolshevist plot in which numerous accomplices are involved. A marked change is noticeable in the tone of the Czech press, whose chief organ, The Pravo Lidu of Prague, attacks Professor Masaryk's Government, saying, the "millionaires Kramarcz, Rashin, Praczec, and Svehla dominate it. It is devoted to the Bourgeois interests and remains deaf to the wishes of the working classes, who demand the nationalization of mines and industries and the confiscation of war profits," adding: "If the Government persists in its capitalistic policy much longer it will be overthrown."

During the last two days numerous meetings of a frankly revolutionary character have been held at Prague, and serious riots have occurred in the towns of Ziskow, Klapno, and Dux, where large warehouses were plundered by the mob. In Hungary, which is a hotbed of Bolshevism, the agitation is, of course, most critical of all. Count Karolyi's Government, even in the opinion of its supporters, seems doomed presently to succumb in its hopeless struggle against the continual Bolshevist and counter-revolutionary conspiracies. The triumph of extreme Socialism in Budapest would naturally exert an immediate influence on Vienna and Prague and further the Socialist plan of united action against the Bourgeois classes and in conjunction with Bolshevist Russia and Socialistic Germany against the Entente.

CUT PERU RAILWAY; LIMA IN DARKNESS

Strikers Also Attempt to Stop City's Water Supply to Coerce Employers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Dispatches to the State Department today said that all business between Lima and Callao, Peru, had been suspended as a result of the dynamiting of part of the Central Railway during strike disturbances which began in Lima Monday.

The city lighting system was attacked with resulting darkness through the city, and an unsuccessful effort was made by the strikers to interfere with the city water supply. The city is being patrolled by policemen armed with rifles, and soldiers.

A cablegram to the Peruvian Legation today from the Peruvian Foreign Minister said it was expected that the strike would be ended within twenty-four hours, as conferences between the workmen and officials were taking place today under Government supervision.

LIMA, Jan. 15.—An unconfirmed report has been received here that strikers have dynamited the power transmission lines on the Morococha properties of the Cerro de Pasco Company, flooding the mines. Cavalry reinforcements were dispatched to Morococha.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Seymour Raikley of New York has been the prinicpal figure in a pathetic ceremony which has just taken place. Raikley belongs to the American Red Cross and has done splendid work at the Italian front, relieving and comforting the inhabitants of villages destroyed by the Austrian bombardments.

After the victory at Vittorio and Veneto, Raikley was one of the first Americans to enter ruined Conegliano. He took food and warm clothes to the inhabitants, who had suffered all kinds of hardships under Austrian rule. What was left of the population of Conegliano, mostly peasants, wished to express in tangible form their gratitude to this American who had done so much to help them. All clubbed together, each bringing a small offering, to buy a gold medal for presentation to Raikley to show their deep gratitude. Women came up with their last savings, saying they were glad to give them. "He saved my small child from dying of hunger," said one. Another explained: "My old mother was bedridden. He personally came and gave her blankets and food."

Raikley in receiving the gift was visibly moved as he delivered a short speech of thanks to the crowd which surrounded him.

TALK OF COUP D'ETAT IN HOLLAND ON JAN. 20

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 13.—Revolutionary meetings are taking place in Rotterdam, attended by Dutch, Russians, and Germans, and it is stated that a coup d'état and riots are planned for Jan. 20.

The Haagsche Post states that 4,000,000 gulden have been sent to Holland by the Bolsheviki for propaganda in Holland and Belgium. Socialist Leader Wynkoop, who recently was not allowed to go to Germany, is again at the head of the movement. The Dutch Socialist leader, recently speaking at Braunschweig, stated that Holland could not withstand the revolution much longer.

The people of Holland were greatly surprised at the final outcome of the last uprising. The great royalist demonstration at the time was the feat of the Catholic Party with the help of the capitalists and Court circles. The oldest and most aristocratic families turned out to cheer the Queen on Amalie Feld at The Hague, but big demonstrations of this sort can hardly be repeated.

A Dutch committee at Herenveen has drawn up an address to President Wilson signed by 4,000 persons, asking the President to allow representatives of all States to attend the Peace Conference in order to co-operate in the organization of a League of Nations.

AMERICA INVADED, AS R. S. BAKER SAW IT

Article Published in 1915 Pictured Nation as Supine in Face of Germans.

SHIPS SUNK, FORTS USELESS

Publicity Man for Peace Conference Described Delighted Hun Invaders as Finally Settling Here.

Ray Stannard Baker, who has been appointed by President Wilson to be publicity man for the American Peace Commissioners, wrote for the American Magazine of January, 1915, of which he was editor, an article which caused widespread comment at the time, in support of extreme theories of disarmament and nonresistance.

Mr. Baker pictured America, with her fleet sunk and army disbanded voluntarily, invaded by a German host who found that they liked the country so much that instead of fighting they settled down here.

Mr. Baker portrayed the President and his Cabinet and a woman orator represented as a sort of reversed Joan of Arc as leading the movement which sunk the American ships and dismantled the American forts as the method of meeting a threatened German invasion.

This article is entitled "The Last Phase of the Great War—the German Invasion of America, A. D. 1915-16." It begins with a description of Germany's victories in the European war, finally involving this country and making war apparently inevitable. A great political conflict at home between the "peace party" and the militarists is described.

"In the mist of this struggle," continues the article, "at this most dramatic climax, the President of the United States, a man of the noblest ideals and most unselfish devotion, appeared one day before the Senate wearing upon his coat the iron plowshare of the Party of Peace. It was discovered on the same day that all but two of the members of the Cabinet were wearing the same insignia. It is difficult to describe the impression upon the country of the news of this event, for the influence of the President at that time upon the Government was profound.

"It is not necessary to recount fully the debate that followed. At that great moment men were lifted out of themselves, parties and private interests were forgotten—even the selfish and narrow interests of the nation were for the moment set aside, and the problem of what was best for humanity, for civilization, came, for the first time in history, to be seriously discussed in the great legislative forum.

"In two weeks time the disarmament of the fleet—save for a few of the lesser vessels which might be needed for police service—had begun, and the disarmament of the forts and of the army rapidly followed."

Most of the country has been brought to favor this state of affairs, according to the article, which continues:

"A few irreconcilables, as usual, refused to abide by the judgment of the country. Most of them belonged to that class of men of big property interests, or of unearned incomes, who had been the loudest of any in their demands that large numbers of other people should immediately enlist for war, and they now realized all they could in gold upon their possessions and fled to Siam, Chile, and Madagascar, the only places where there was no immediate danger of war."

In the meantime Germany developed plans for an attack on the United States, to finish her conquest of the world.

"During these weeks of excitement in America," continues Mr. Baker, "the German Kaiser had been organizing for the attack on the United States. He and his General heard with amazement and incredulity of the events in America. They could not believe the reports sent out by the press, and spies in great numbers were dispatched to the principal centres to test the sentiments of the country. None of the cusotmary signs of preparation for war was evidence. No one was engaged in breaking the windows of the German Consulates or in robbing German bakeshops, but, on the contrary, a large number of Americans were asserting their friendship for the German people and their abhorrence of war in any form. No one was proposing to smother the acts of Government in secrecy or to censor the newspapers, for the people through years of practice in the free discussion of their affairs had grown suspicious of anything that needed to be hidden in darkness. They believed in 'pitiless publicity.' The German spies were, therefore, allowed to circulate freely in Congress and to send full reports to the Kaiser. Having no wish to steal anything or murder anybody, what reason had America to hunt spies or cloak their deeds in darkness?"

Unopposed, the German fleet reached our coast and the invading army landed on Long Island. Instead of a resisting army, they were met by a note from the President.

"The communication," the article continues, "closed with these nobly simple words:

"'We are your friends. We ask you to be ours.'"

This, however, was not acceptable to the German commander. He saw a trap in the failure to oppose his landing and had his troops intrench in Long Island. Instead of committing atrocities and spreading a reign of frightfulness among the peaceable inhabitants of Long Island, Ray Stannard Baker's German soldiers fraternized pleasantly with the population, paid for all they received from them and did not harm a hair on any one's head. The German commander, one General von Schwab, was dissatisfied with this idyllic campaign, and sent a fiery communication to the Mayor of New York demanding $30,000,000 and other things at once. There was a tense moment throughout the country, but the situation was met, according to the article, by a humorous editorial in a New York paper.

"He handled von Schwab's ultimatum," the article says, speaking of the editorial writer, "with delicious irony, advised an immediate payment of the indemnity upon the ground that the 'war so far was cheap at the price,' especially in view of the fact that the German armies have already largely increased the trade of Long Island. He met the threat of the German commander to seize the city government of New York by observing that the government of the city had long been in the hands of what was probably far less efficient control than the Germans could give it. It was known throughout the world that German municipal government was unexcelled—was it not possible that a German expert in the City Hall, by improving the methods of Tammany, could save enough for the indemnity in a year or two? As for the fear of German domination, had not the city long been governed by the Irish and Jews and had any one objected?"

To the disgust of General von Schwab, his army began to disintegrate. His soldiers began to desert and settle in America like other German immigrants. How the coup de grace was given to the gentle Hun invader is told as follows:

"At this juncture, American manufacturers and business men, seeing the golden opportunity for securing the most priceless addition to their equipment—skilled human beings—began bidding for the services of these Germans, offering them wages and salaries quite beyond their dreams. Having already absorbed 10,000,000 Germans, who became the best of American citizens, it was without difficulty that every man in the German armies who wished to do so found a place in American life."

With his army thus tempted away from him, General von Schwab was forced to flee. Shortly after America's demonstration of the success of meeting an invader by non-resistance, a Federation of the World is established in the article.

12 KILLED WHEN TANK OF MOLASSES EXPLODES

Hugh Sheets of Steel, Hurled Through Air, Destroy Structures on Boston Waterfront.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Probably a dozen persons were killed and fifty injured by the explosion of a huge tank of molasses on the waterfront off Commercial Street, near Keany Square, today. At a late hour tonight the only bodies identified were those of a fireman, George Leahy, two residents of tenements in the vicinity, Mrs. Bridget Clougherty and William A. Duffee, and James Lennon, a motorman, of Lenox, and J. M. Seiberlich, a blacksmith, also of Lenox. The tank was owned by the Purity Distilling Company, a subsidiary of the United States Industrial Alcohol Company, with a plant in Cambridge.

A dull, muffled roar gave but an instant's warning before the top of the tank was blown into the air. The circular wall broke into two great segments of sheet iron which were pulled in opposite directions. Two million gallons of molasses rushed over the streets and converted into a sticky mass the wreckage of several small buildings which had been smashed by the force of the explosion.

The greatest mortality apparently occurred in one of the city buildings, where a score of municipal employes were eating their lunch. The building was demolished and the wreckage was hurled fifty yards. The other city building, which had an office on the ground floor and a tenement above, was similarly torn from its foundations.

One of the sections of the tank wall fell on the firehouse known as Engine), which was near by. The building was crushed and three firemen were buried in the ruins. One, George Leahy, was killed and the other two injured. A fourth fireman was thrown through the window into the water, but was picked up.

Wagons, carts, and motor trucks were overturned. A number of horses were killed. The street was strewn with débris intermixed with molasses and all traffic was stopped.

The first rescue party on the scene was a squad detailed from the State nautical schoolship Nantucket, which was anchored at the playground pier. Under the direction of Lieutenant Commander H. J. Copeland the enlisted men gave first aid to the injured, searched the ruins for bodies, and assisted in patrolling the district. Shortly afterward police reserves arrived, together with a military company from an army station.

CARRANZA WARNS OF POLITICAL STRIFE

Tells Mexicans It Is Not Yet Time to Electioneer for New President.

FINDS AN "UNEASY FEELING."

Gives New Assurance of Determination to Retire at the End of His Term.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15. — President Carranza, in a statement to the public, repeats his declaration that he will retire at the end of his term. Declaring that it is not yet time to start a campaign for the election of a future President, he warns against a possible attempt by the reactionaries of the old régime to elect a member of their group as President.

"Although there are two years more before renewing the executive power," he says, "yet there is a noticeably uneasy feeling due to the future campaigns for this position. The political agitation following nomination is unavoidable in all democratic countries, and in Mexico sooner or later it will be felt.

"Effectiveness of the suffrage and no re-election of the President are two democratic principles most firmly established as a result of the revolution. The Mexican people need not fear nor doubt that in the future these principles will be respected. As President, I consider them legitimate and just.

"As the preparatory work for the future electoral campaign is more effective and as the participation of the citizens in it is more earnest, the best guarantee is offered that the nation could have that it will be governed by proper men who will really represent the wishes of the people.

"For my part, I think I have complied my duty toward my country, working as I have since the democratic movement in 1913, later heading the constitutionalist revolution and continuing the fight until the re-establishment of a constitutional régime. I think I have the right to retire to private life when the present Presidential term, for which I was elected by my fellow citizens, is over.

"I have a duty toward the Constitutionalist Party not to abandon prematurely the responsibilities I have contracted with the whole country, and have an obligation to remain at my post as a true chief of State, continuing my administrative work until the last minute of the Presidential term.

Pointing to the dangers of prolonged political agitation, the President states that electoral agitation takes a special form in a country like Mexico, "where we have not had sufficient education nor democratic experience, and have just commenced to recover from the revolutionary movement which has shaken our country."

He continues:

"A long period of political activity for the Presidential elections or premature anticipation of electoral work, owing to the conditions in Mexico, will bring serious difficulties for the consolidation of the revolutionary work for the cohesion of the Constitutionalist Party and for the regularity of administrative working. It is then the duty of the Mexican people and their Governors to try to reduce to a minimum the effects of political agitation, helping in the electoral campaign but at the same time shortening the period of agitation, making a short campaign and the most rapid one possible so as not to produce new political complications or disturb the working of the public administration.

"If the reforms proclaimed in the Constitution as a result of the revolution were definitely and irrevocably consolidated, a division of the Constitutionalist Party would not be hurtful but necessary for the best working of our democratic institutions. We must, however, remember that there exists a strong enemy, rich and organized, which is not convinced of defeat through the revolution and which considers possible a reaction against the work of the revolution.

"I do not refer to the armed bands whose action is insignificant, whose only work consists of hostile acts, not only against the Government but also against the lives and property of private persons. I refer to certain discontented Mexicans who have established in foreign parts their centres of conspiracy, utilizing in their work against the Constitutional Government foreign elements and the sheltering interests, specially under the shade of powerful foreign interests which seek resistance against the actual regime.

"The situation of Mexico now is extraordinarily like that which confronted the Liberal Government of Juarez in 1860. The elements which frankly seek to overturn the Constitution of 1917 and all principles included in it are in reality the enemy confronting the Constitutional Party, which should not believe that its enemies do not exist, but, on the contrary, should continue fighting, especially in this Presidential campaign.

"As they will appear, the organized financial elements will either frankly present a candidate or join one group into which the Constitutionalist Party may divide. So, the duty of all members of the party who have fought for its principles is not to lose sight of their ideals before they are sure that the work of the revolution is not undone.

"The problem is undoubtedly ours of electing a new leader to direct the destinies of our country."

The body of the statement calls the attention of the people to the possible disturbance of judicial power, also disturbances which may be in the army and civil branches of the Government owing to the many promises which the candidates will make and be unable to fulfill.

The President states in his character of temporary leader of the Constitutional Party that he thinks it necessary to call the attention of all citizens to the advisability of postponing the electoral work until the end of this year. He especially tells the candidates who may spring up that before starting their campaign work they should be sure of the popular wishes, not merely the desires of personal friends, and should make known to the public the principles of government which they wish to follow. His statement warns all Government employes, military men, Judges, Governors, &c., not to begin campaign work yet, as it will have a bad result.

GREECE PRESENTS DEMANDS AT PARIS

Asks for Northern Epirus, Thrace, Vilayets in Asia Minor, and Islands of Near East.

PARIS, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—Greece has laid before the Peace Conference a memorandum signed by Premier Venizelos setting forth the situation of Greece and her claims in the settlement of the war. The memorandum says that the Hellenic nation consists of 8,256,000 persons, of whom 55 per cent. live in the Kingdom of Greece and the remainder outside its limits. Half a million Greeks in America are included in the figures submitted.

Wishing to reunite the Greek populations in the Balkans, Asia Minor, and the islands adjacent to the Kingdom, Greece asks, first, Northern Epirus, which contains 120,000 Greeks, against 80,000 Albanians. It says that "the former, besides being in the majority, also possess a higher form of civilization."

As a second demand, Greece asks for Thrace, without Constantinople. Thrace, according to the memorandum, is peopled largely by Greeks.

"Since Constantinople, according to the twelfth point of President Wilson's program, cannot remain under Turkish rule," the memorandum declares, "the natural solution would be to award Constantinople to Greece and to establish international guarantees for the freedom of the Straits."

It is pointed out that the principal native element of the population of Constantinople is Greek, being numerically greater than "all the other nationalities put together except the Turks."

"But if a society of nations be established immediately," the memorandum continues, "Constaninople might, in consequence of great international interests connected with the possession of the Straits, be formed as a separate entity by the society of nations, which would nominate its Governor for certain fixed periods."

The third territorial claim made by Greece is for parts of vilayets in Asia Minor. These have a population, it is said, of 1,188,000 Greeks, against 1,042,000 Mohammedans, and are claimed to be both "geographically and historically integral parts of Greece."

The Armenian provinces, with Russian Armenia, the memorandum says, should be erected into a separate State, organization of which should be intrusted to one of the great powers by the society of nations. It is admitted that the vilayets of Trebizond and Adana, although having, respectively, 350,000 and 70,000 Greek inhabitants, might be attached to the new Armenian State.

All islands in the Near East which are ethnographically, geographically, and economically Greek must return to the Hellenic State. These should include islands which, according to the treaty made in London in April, 1915, are to be annexed to Italy.

All the figures given in the memorandum are said to have been taken from Turkish statistics. There is a long discussion of Bulgarian claims, in which that nation's attempt to dominate the Balkans, with a view to realizing her dreams to possess four seas—the Black Sea, the Sea of Marmora, the Aegean, and the Adriatic—are detailed. The memorandum ends by saying:

"It must be thoroughly understood that Bulgaria seeks to play in the Balkans the rôle that Prussia played upon the European stage. Having been the first among her neighbors to organize a strong army, she believed she could easily enslave the nations near her.

"Militarism is as deeply rooted in Bulgaria as in Prussia. The Bulgarians have every right to boast of being 'the Prussians of the Balkans.' They resemble the Prussians in militarism, in their worship of brute strength, and in their inhuman manner of making war, but are far from equaling the Prussians in the domain of science, letters, and art."

FIGHT TO STAMPEDE MOONEY CONVENTION

Radicals Are Beaten on Organization in Chicago, but Continue Struggle.

CHEER BOLSHEVIST MOVES

Resolutions Offered for Soldiers and Sailors' Council and General Strike.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—After a fight which occupied the entire morning session, the conservatives defeated the radicals by a vote of two to one today in organizing the National Labor Congress, called to consider plans for obtaining a new trial for Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life term for murder growing out of the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bomb outrage. Edward D. Nolan of San Francisco was elected Chairman.

The convention also decided that it would take action on the Mooney case before considering any other business. This plan was hotly contested by the radicals, who want to discuss international questions.

Despite this setback the radicals made a determined attempt to capture control of the convention later in the day. The Credentials Committee had not reported tonight, making it impossible to say which faction was the final victor.

With the gallery packed with radicals, they did about as they pleased at the afternoon session until the proceedings were ended by an early adjournment. Every mention of Socialist or I. W. W. principles was loudly cheered.

A letter was read from two members of the Italian Labor Commission, appointed by the Government of that country at the request or the American Federation of Labor, expressing sympathy with the movement to aid Mooney and asking to be seated as fraternal delegates in the convention. Chairman Nolan recommended that the request be granted, but the reading of the letter caused a hostile demonstration on the part of the radicals, who declared that the two Italian labor representatives had been repudiated by the Bolshevist element in that country. After an hour's heated discussion the motion to permit the Commissioners to sit in the convention was voted down.

The radicals followed this victory by presenting a motion that Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader recently convicted of violation of the Espionage law, be invited to address the convention. The radicals cheered for several minutes at the adoption of this motion. It is said that Debs will decline the invitation.

Apparently nearly every radical delegate had at least one resolution to offer. One delegate presented ten. They embodied various revolutionary ideas on government based on Socialist and I. W. W. propaganda, and were referred to the Committee on Resolutions without being read. A few of the ideas suggested in the resolutions offered were:

Organization of a National Soldiers and Sailors' Council to safeguard the interests of labor during reconstruction.

A referendum vote on the terms of peace.

Abolition of all restrictions on the issuance of passports.

Calling for a general strike to compel the repeal of the constitutional amendment for national prohibition if passed.

For Government ownership and operation of all manufacturing, commerce, banking, and insurance.

A general strike to compel the immediate release of all political and industrial prisoners or persons under charges, including Thomas J. Mooney, Warren Billings, William D. Haywood, Emma Goldman, Rose Pastor Stokes, Eugene V. Debs, Victor L. Berger, and Adolph Germer.

Representation of Russian, German, and Austrian Bolsheviki at the Paris Peace Council.

A uniform workday of six hours and a uniform lunch period of two hours in all lines of industry.

Word was received from the League for Amnesty for Political Prisoners of Niagara Falls, N. Y., indorsing the plan of calling a general strike to enforce the demands.

A message from the Workers' Council of Butte, Mon., asked the convention to declare for one organization of all workers under the Australian plan, the immediate withdrawal of allied troops from Russia and that greetings be sent to the Russian Soviets.

Frank P. Walsh, former joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board, sent a message expressing regret that he was unable to come to address the convention.

The conservative forces want to take action on the Mooney case and adjourn tomorrow. The radicals want to stay several days longer and discuss international and labor questions.

Charity Ball for K. of C. Relief.

In order to raise a fund of $50,000 to care for the disabled Knights of Columbus men in the service, the War Relief Charity Ball will be held in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 24, under the auspices of the forty-two councils comprising the New York Chapter. In an announcement issued yesterday, John Moroney, Chairman of the committee, declared that every dollar raised would go in full to the disabled veterans. Tickets at $1 each may be obtained from William P. Smith, Financial Secretary, New York Council 124, 107 West 101st Street.

INSIST ON PAYMENT FOR U-BOAT RAVAGES

Seamen Will Offer Plan to Peace Conference for Compensation to Dependents of Victims.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—In the absence of a definite policy from the Allies concerning the manner in which Germany shall make compensation for the dependents of submarine victims among seamen, the Executive Committee of the International Federation of Seafarers has evolved a plan by which the officials hope to force the Peace Conference to act. The committee has called an international conference in London on Feb. 24, at which the British delegates will present a resolution providing that the seamen will not man any ships going or coming from an enemy country until the proper compensation is agreed upon. J. Havelock Wilson, President of the International Seamen's Union, said to The Associated Press today:

"It seems that the British statesmen and those of other nations have been too busy to think of the seamen in preparing for the conference, so we will take the matter into our own hands in the hope of emphatically bringing to the notice of the peace delegates the necessity for taking care of our people. I have no doubt that the conference will adopt a resolution providing that no food shall go to Germany until these dependents are compensated."

The leaders of the seamen, including Andrew Furuseth of the United States, expect that the February conference will adopt a universal wage scale. They hope that this question will not be taken up by the Peace Conference or that wages will not be mentioned in the peace treaty. After the seamen have been in conference four days they will be joined by representatives of the engineers, stewards, and officers for a discussion of subjects in which all are interested.

Mr. Wilson said that all of the principal countries had promised to send representatives to the conference.

DRY AMENDMENT ON EVE OF VICTORY

thirds of each house concurring therein,) that the following amendment to the Constitution be, and hereby is, proposed to the States, to become valid as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of the several States as provided by the Constitution:

ARTICLE —.

Section 1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States, as provided by the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

CHAMP CLARK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
THOS. R. MARSHALL, Vice President of the United States and President of the Senate.

JAMES M. BAKER, Secretary.

It was learned tonight that, following the successful completion of the campaign for nation-wide prohibition, the Anti-Saloon League leaders will initiate a movement for world-wide prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Several State Assemblies now in session are expected to take action tomorrow, on the prohibition amendment, with a probable race by Nebraska, Missouri, and Minnesota as to which shall be the thirty-sixth on the list.

The ratification completed today by the Legislatures of Iowa, Colorado, Oregon, New Hampshire, and Utah make a total of twelve States in two days. Of the thirty-five States that have taken action, only fourteen have certified their action to the Federal State Department. They are Virginia, Kentucky, North Dakota, South Carolina, Maryland, South Dakota, Texas, Montana, Delaware, Massachusetts, Arizona, Georgia, Louisiana, and Michigan.

States Ratifying Yesterday.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 15.—The Legislature ratified the Federal prohibition amendment today, making this the thirty-first State to approve it.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 15.—By a vote of 29 to 1 the Senate of the Colorado Legislature today adopted the concurrent House prohibition resolution, thereby ratifying the national prohibition amendment. The House adopted the resolution last week.

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 15.—The Legislature completed ratification of the national prohibition amendment today when the Senate, by a unanimous vote, adopted the amendment. The House ratified the amendment last night, 53 to 3.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 15.—Ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment was completed today when the Senate, 19 to 4, voted in favor of the resolution embodying it. The House passed the resolution earlier in the day, 221 to 121.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Jan. 15.—The State Senate today ratified the prohibition amendment to the National Constitution, making the thirty-fifth State. The vote was unanimous. The House ratified the amendment yesterday.

Nebraska All But Unanimous.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 15.—The Nebraska Legislature, with only one adverse vote, is for ratifying the national prohibition amendment. Recently the Senate approved the amendment, with one member voting no. Today the House passed its own amendment bill by a vote of 96 to nothing. Then it took up the Senate bill, which it amended slightly. Tomorrow this amended bill will be passed by the House and go back to the Senate. The House wants the Senate to adopt the House bill, believing it nearer proof against attack than the Senate bill.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 15.—The Wisconsin wets today secured a postponement of the final vote on prohibition ratification until Friday. The Senate voted ratification, 19 to 11, but the wets in the lower house prevented immediate action. It takes a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, and the vote for immediate action was 57 to 37. The Speaker then set Friday as the time for the vote. It is sure to pass at that time, but Wisconsin will not be one of the original thirty-six States to vote for the amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 15.—Governor-elect William C. Sproul made ratification of the prohibition amendment one of his platform pledges, and he will work for its adoption. The Legislature will reconvene Monday evening. The Dry Federation of Pennsylvania claims a majority of the members of both houses as dry. In all probability the Legislature will adopt the resolution in order to keep the party pledges, but not before thirty-six other States have voted dry.

HOW THE STATES LINE UP.

States That Have Ratified Have Population of 69,000,000.

The following table gives the facts as to the order in which thirty-five States have ratified the prohibition amendment and the status of the liquor question in the thirteen States that have not yet ratified it. The population figures for the two groups are from Census Bureau estimates for 1918. The totals show more than 69,000,000 population in the States voting to ratify, and 35,000,000 in those that have not taken action:

TELLS OF HORRORS SEEN IN BELGIUM

Squires's Account Offsets von Mach's Defense of Germans Before Senate Committee.

PURPOSE IN ATROCITIES

Cities Razed, People Subjected to Indescribable Cruelties, to Destroy Nation's Morale.

CRUCIFIXION OF BABIES

Evidence of That and Other Unspeakable Crimes Obtained from Those Who Suffered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A story of German atrocities in Belgium was told today to the Senate Committee on Propaganda by Grant Squires, a New York lawyer, one of the pioneers in Belgian relief work and now an officer of the Military Intelligence Service. He told the story apparently with reluctance. Senator Nelson brought out this testimony, apparently to offset that of Edmund von Mach on the same subject.

"I entered Belgium in November, 1914, and helped in the organization of the Relief Committee in Liége, Namur, Charleroi, Mons, Louvain, and one or two smaller towns," said Mr. Squires.

"I saw cities leveled to the ground, civilian populations driven out of their homes with the butts of rifles, old men and women brained because they did not work fast enough to suit their new rulers in the baking of bread. I saw places where babies were crucified on the doors of houses. I saw bread lines.

"I have seen mothers bring to me their babies to give them food, which I could not give them, because it was not possible to carry it around in quantities to feed a thousand or two thousand in a town. I have seen the insults of the German soldiery, mostly drunkards, visited on women whom they met in the streets."

Seizure of Food Supplies.

Senator Wolcott—Did you see whether the German armies took food that belonged to the civil population and used it for themselves?

Mr. Squires—I did not see that. I understand at one stage in the occupation of the country they were rather careful to give tickets to those from whom they took food, so that within a few days those same people could go to the German commissariat and get there an equivalent of what had been taken from them.

Senator Wolcott—Do you know whether they ever got any food on those tickets?

Mr. Squires—I do not. I do not think the Belgian population ever sought to redeem any German promise made in that way. They were a cowed, terrorized people. Their only hope was to be permitted to live. You can picture any town in which you have ever been as being leveled to within about four feet of the ground, which was the condition of many of the cities that I visited. People who had homes there ran up the alleyways, after their homes had been destroyed, whenever any one in uniform came along. They would hardly under those circumstances enter into negotiations with them to redeem the tickets.

Senator Wolcott—Were these villages destroyed by bombardment or ruthlessly and deliberately to terrorize the population?

Mr. Squires—Ruthlessly and deliberately, largely with fire grenades charged with explosives and fire-igniting substances.

Senator Overman—Where did these people live? In the cellars of their houses after they were destroyed?

Mr. Squires—Yes, or out in the open; it was the rainy season when I was there. I frequently was accosted by little children of 4, 5, or 6, borne in the arms of little people 10 or 12 years of age, asking for two sous with which to buy a loaf of bread.

Two Aged Men from Vizet.

"In one town I was able to take a small deal table, where we gathered thirty or forty of the victims, and gave them soup or bread. On one occasion I went into a place where refugees were being fed on bread and soup. There were two gentlemen there, advanced in years, and who sat at the table with nothing on but trousers. I said to one of them, 'Where are you from?' and he said 'I am from Vizet,'—the first town in Belgium after you leave the Dutch frontier that had not been completely demolished. Until the war broke out there were 6,000 people there; now there was none left at all.

"To the old gentleman who had said, 'I came from Vizet,' I said: 'How old are you?' and he replied: 'I am 73.' I said: 'That old gentleman next to you—who is he?' He replied: 'He is my father; he is 91.'

"Their feet were bare, and they were given socks, which, without waiting to finish their food, they drew on; the penetrating cold was very searching, even to those better clothed. They were feeding in the open; there was no shelter for them."

Senator Nelson—Go ahead. Have you anything more to tell?

Mr. Squires—It is not a case of anything more, Senator. It is a case of trying to forget it.

"As to the organization of relief, as soon as I entered a town I went, say, to the proprietor of a hotel that might be still remaining, took him into a car that I had commandeered on the frontier, and induced him to take me to the homes of a half dozen leading citizens. These I got into some one place and asked them to organize a committee to receive any shipments of American food that might be sent to them, so that the food should not be wasted."

German Officers Not Guiltless.

Senator Overman—In regard to ill-treatment of women, was that done in the presence of German officers, or by drunken soldiers who were skylarking?

Mr. Squires—It was mostly the work of private soldiers. I do not think the German officers were quite guiltless. At the doors of houses I have heard the shrieks of women upstairs recovering from their treatment of the night before. They knew no difference between a German and a man from some other country, and for that reason were afraid to open the door to give me something to eat. It was mostly a case of trying to pacify these people, in view of the treatment they had received, and to let them feel that better days were coming, in the way of food at least. It is not a pretty picture to be called on to redraw, and I had hoped that I would not be asked to do it. The mistake that I made was to come back here.

Senator Overman—I suppose Senator Nelson asked you those questions because of a statement that was made here—

Senator Nelson—I asked you these questions to meet the imputation of von Mach, who appeared here as a witness the other day, and who insinuated in one form or another that the treatment of the Belgian people by the German soldiers in 1914 was not worse than our soldiers had treated the people of the South in Sherman's march to the sea; and he also referred, I think, to the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Squires—They did not go through the country according to any practice of similar warfares in the past that I know anything about.

Senator Nelson—They destroyed these villages absolutely—ruined them?

Mr. Squires—Yes, Senator, for the purpose of the terrorization of the people, to reduce their morale and their ability to withstand the advance of the German armies.

Senator Nelson—And they crucified children.

Crucifixion of Children.

Mr. Squires—I have had places pointed out to me by fathers who had been crazed by the sight of their children hanging on door bells the night before. One man took me up to a door and showed me the nail points in the door where his little baby had been nailed the night before because the baby got in the way of the German guard of four or five men and in some way hindered their passage; one of the men snatched up the baby and held it up against the door, probably in their drunkenness, nailed it up against the door, and it was dead in five minutes, I suppose.

Senator King—You did not see the child?

Mr. Squires—No. The child was not permitted to remain there more than a minute of two after the soldiers went on. I know it is very difficult to believe these stories, gentlemen, and that is one reason why I hesitate to tell them—because I am met by the perfectly respectful questioning attitude of Senator King—if that is your name, Sir; but I have seen all that I have told you myself.

Senator Nelson—Are there many of those towns and villages in Belgium that have been razed to the ground?

Mr. Squires—Not so many completely razed. Many of them have been partially razed, notably Louvain. Louvain was destroyed to a degree for an offense committed, I am told, by the daughter of the Mayor of the city, who was entertaining the first incoming general oficers of the German Army that were occupying Louvain. I verified this as far as possible when the events were only a few days old by speaking with some who were present.

"It seems the incoming Generals were being entertained by the Burgomaster in his home. He called upon his daughter to bring in some cigars and light wine for the guests. While she was bringing in the cigars and wine one of the officers offered her an insult, which she did not note at the time or make any refernce to, but during the evening word of it came to the brother of the young woman, whereupon, with less consideration than he should have had for his father's guest, he went in and shot the man dead in the presence of the other German officers. Whereupon they left the office of the Mayor, and the next day the section of the town where the Mayor's office was, and where the family resided, was burned—about one-third of the city, including the university and the Town Hall. The handsome section of Louvain was destroyed that day. There has been no other explanation given for the destruction; it was the penalty for the offense committed against those visiting German officers."

Senator Thomas of Colorado appeared before the committee in defenseof Colonel I. N. Stevens and Alva Swain of The Pueblo Chieftain, which paper, according to the testimony of Austin G. Smith, its former advertising and circulation manager, entered into a contract in 1915 with Ambassador von Bernstorff to aid the German cause in the Rocky Mountain States. Senator Thomas said Colonel Stevens and Mr. Swain were Republicans, warm personal friends of his, and among the most prominent citizens of Colorado. He said that in his opinion they were the victims of a scheme to blackmail and were entirely innocent of the charges made by Mr. Smith.

Excerpts from various Chieftain editorials also went into the record.

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN TO BE CHOSEN FEB. 26

President Said to Favor Cummings—Plans for National Campaign to be Pushed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Formal announcement of the resignation of Vance C. McCormick as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee was made at Democratic National Headquarters today, but no official confirmation was forthcoming from the White House or the State Department regarding the resignation of William G. Sharp as American Ambassador to Paris. It can be stated, however, despite the absence of an official announcement, that Mr. Sharp's resignation has been submitted to the President.

Mr. McCormick has called a meeting of the Democratic National Committee to be held at the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, on Feb. 26, to receive the resignation of the Chairman and elect his successor and transact other business which may be laid before the committee. The text of the resignation of Chairman McCormick, dated Dec. 28, 1918, prior to his departure for France, was made public today by Carter Glass, the present Secretary of the Treasury, in his capacity as Secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

The letter reads in part as follows:

"It is with regret that I am compelled to take this action, as I had hoped upon the conclusion of the war to be able to again resume active control of the committee's affairs, but this I find now impossible to do, and as it is most important that the organization work of the committee should be vigorously prosecuted I feel, in justice to the committee, that I should take this step.

"I want to take this opportunity of expressing to you my deep appreciation for the hearty co-operation which you have always accorded me since I assumed the Chairmanship in the campaign of 1916. It is with the deepest regret that I am compelled to sever a relationship which has been so full of many delightful associations."

There is every indication that when the National Committee meets it will name Homer S. Cummings, now Vice Chairman of the committee, as its Chairman in succession to McCormick.

It is realized by Democratic leaders that with the passing of control of Congress by the Democratic Party on March 4, and with the Republicans attempting to make a fight against the National Administration after that date, great activity must be displayed in arranging for the next national campaign.

read by Mr. Heney one of the attorneys wrote that there were but three courses open to the packers:

1. To kill the Borland resolution in the House.
2. To obtain a hand-picked committee that would smother it.
3. To divert the investigation of the packers to the Bureau of Markets.

The attorneys advised, Mr. Heney said, that the Bureau of Markets need not be feared, as any investigation which it might make would be largely perfunctory.

Mr. Heney went on to say that, while the resolution was still pending, a rider to the 1917 Appropriation bill was offered in the House providing that the packers' investigation go to the Bureau of Markets. After it had been accepted by the House, Mr. Heney said, Representative Mann and Representative Carlin of Virginia hugged each other, as they stood before the Speaker's desk, and clapped each other on the back.

Mr. Heney read a letter from Colon N. Livingston, Vice President of a Washington bank and an accredited lobbyist for the packers at the Capitol, in which Livingston said that they had Representative Carlin "lined up" against the Borland resolution and knew how he would "stand."

The committee was told by Mr. Heney that, while he was a Jeffersonian Democrat, and had been opposed to the principle of Government ownership, he felt that, in view of what he had learned of the Chicago packers, Government ownership of everything but the packing houses themselves was essential. The packers, he said, had obtained an appreciable hold upon the food market everywhere throughout the country. He spoke of their buying interests in hotels so as to insure their own product being used. Armour & Co., he said, owned a $250,000 interest in the Biltmore Hotel in New York and an interest in the Washington Hotel here.

LABOR ADVOCATES DRASTIC POLICIES

Federation Report to Senate Committee for Federal Ownership or Control.

SAYS WAGES MUST STAND

Land Taxes, Immigration Bars, and Reversing of Supreme Court Decisions Included.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Comprehensive legislation looking to the adjustment of after-war economic and industrial problems is urged by the American Federation of Labor in a report submitted today to the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, which is conducting an inquiry upon which reconstruction legislation may be based.

The Federation insists, as one of the fundamentals of future betterment, that labor's wage scale be maintained at the existing war standard, although no legislation is suggested as to wages.

"There must be no reduction of wages," says the report. "In many instances wages must be increased. There is no such thing as good wages when the cost of living in decency and comfort equals or exceeds the wages received. The American standard of life must be maintained and improved."

Eighteen suggestions, embodying legislation the Federation of Labor considers vital to the problem of readjustment, are made in the report. They are:

1. To make it a criminal offense for any employer to interfere with or hamper the right of workers to organize into trade unions or to interfere with legitimate activities of trade unions.
2. To put an immediate end to the exploitation of children under 16 years of age.
3. To provide that in the event of a Supreme Court declaring a law unconstitutional, either of Congress or of a State, if the people acting either directly or through Congress or a State Legislature should re-enact the measure, it shall then become the law, without being subject to annulment by any court.
4. To put public and semi-public utilities either under Government ownership or Government control.
5. To apply a graduated tax on all usable agricultural lands above the acreage cultivated by the owner, so as to prevent private ownership of very large tracts of usable land, and to prevent as far as possible the extension of the tenant class.

Licensing of Corporations.

6. To limit, define and regulate the powers, privileges, and activities of corporations so that their methods cannot become detrimental to the American people. All corporations organized for profit should be subject to a Federal license.
7. To amend workmen's compensation laws so as to make them more adequate. State insurance must supplant employers' liability insurance operated for profit.
8. To prohibit immigration into the United States for a period of two years after the proclamation of peace.
9. To provide for a progressive increase in taxes on incomes, inheritances and upon land values, of such a nature as to render it unprofitable to hold land without putting it to use. Taxation should rest as lightly as possible on constructive enterprise.
10. To provide for Government exercise of advisory supervision over public education, and, when necessary, maintain adequate public education through subsides without giving the Government power to hamper development of public education by the States.
11. To prohibit the operation of private employment agencies for profit.
12. To provide for a small standing army and voluntary State militia.
13. To provide for the free transportation of discharged soldiers and sailors to their homes, and the continuance of their monthly salaries for not to exceed twelve months, if employment is not secured within that period.
14. To project Government development of waterways, including canals, so as to decrease the cost of freight transportation.
15. To have the Government utilize water power of public waterways and sell power to consumers at rates based upon actual cost.
16. To invest Government ownership of all wharves and docks connected with public harbors and used for commercial purposes.
17. To provide Government supervision of the public educational system, the Government to maintain, where necessary, adequate educational facilities in States or communities.
18. To inaugurate a plan by which the Government may build model homes for workers, and to establish a system of credits by which workers may build their own homes.

Keeping Out of Politics.

The federation's report, dwelling upon thepolicy of the federation in keeping aloof from politics, states:

"The disastrous experience of labor in America with political parties of its own amply justified the American Federation of labor's nonpartisan political policy. Tradeunion activities cannot receive the undivided attention of members and officers if the exigencies, burdens, and responsibilities of a political party are bound up with their economic and industrial organizations."

Taking up hours of labor, the report says:

"The shorter work day and a shorter work week make for a constantly growing higher and better standard of productivity, health, longevity, morals, and citizenship. The right of labor to fix its hours of work must not be abrogated, abridged, or interfered with.

"The day's working time should be limited to not more than eight hours, with overtime prohibited, except in the most extraordinary emergencies. The week's working time should be limited to not more than five and one-half days."

Equal pay for women for the same character of work as men perform is advocated, but the federation urges that women not be put at work "disproportionate to their physical strength."

Regarding corporation control, the report says that "Federal supervision and control should include the increasing of capital stock and the incurring of bonded indebtedness with the provision that the books of all corporations shall be open at all times to Federal examiners."

The Federation of Labor opposes militarism as "a system fostered and developed by tyrants in the hope of supporting their arbitrary authority." For that reason it opposes a large standing army.

"During industrial disputes the militia has at times been called upon to support the authority of those who through selfish interests desired to enforce martial law while the courts were open and the civil authorities competent to maintain supremacy of civil law," the report says. "We insist that the militia of our several States should be wholly organized and controlled by democratic principles so that this voluntary force of soldiery may never be diverted from its true purpose and used to jeopardize or infringe upon the rights and liberties of our people."

For Government Ownership.

As to the railroads and transportation, the Federation report says:

"Whatever final disposition shall be made of the railways of the country in ownership, management or regulation, we insist upon the right of the workers to organize for their common and mutual protection and the full exercise of the normal activities which come with organization.

"The Government should own and operate all wharves and docks connected with public harbors, which are used for commerce or transportation.

"The American merchant marine should be encouraged and developed under governmental control and so manned as to insure successful operation and protect in full the beneficent laws now on the statute books for the rights and welfare of seamen. The seamen must be accorded the same rights and privileges rightfully exercised by the workers in all other employments, public and private."

MANUFACTURERS FIGHT MISS PERKINS

Insist on Representation on Industrial Board—Labor Also Against Her.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Vigorous protest against Governor Smith's nomination of Miss Frances Perkins of Manhattan to be a member of the Industrial Commission was made today to J. Henry Walters, President pro tem of the Senate, by the manufacturers of the State, through their organization known as the Associated Manufacturers and Merchants. Similar protest probably will be made by the labor people when the State Federation of Labor meets here tomorrow.

The manufacturers as well as the laborites will make a determined fight to have the Senate refuse to confirm the new nominee. The manufacturers protest that they will have no representation on the commission if Miss Perkins succeeds Louis Wiard, who is a manufacturer, while the labor people take the ground that Miss Perkins does not represent their interests and is not the right person to interpret the compensation and other labor problems sure to come before the commission.

Faced with the certainty of a bitter fight against the confirmation of his selection, Governor Smith today defied the manufacturers and declared that he would not reconsider the nomination.

WAS URGED TO VOTE FOR IT

Women Leaders at Capital Now Believe They Can Win with Favorable Vote by Senator Moses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The action of the New York Legislature today in adopting a resolution calling upon Senators Calder and Wadsworth to vote for the Federal suffrage amendment failed to change the situation so far as they are concerned individually.

Senator Calder, who voted for the woman suffrage amendment when the test vote was last taken in the Senate on Oct. 1 last, said tonight:

"I bow to the will of the State Legislature and will vote for the amendment when it comes up again just as I voted for it before."

Senator Wadsworth, who has been a staunch opponent of woman suffrage, and whose wife is a very active worker in the National Anti-Suffrage organization, said tonight that he would not change his vote.

"I have the greatest respect for the legislature of the State of New York," said Senator Wadsworth, "but my vote against the amendment last October represented my convictions and I cannot surrender my convictions in this matter."

The situation facing the suffrage amendment is one in which only two votes are needed for its ratification, and unless these votes are obtained in the forty-eight days elapsing between now and March 4 suffrage cannot be attached by amendment to the Federal Constitution for three years, because even if the amendment is adopted after March 4 it will be three years before enough Legislatures will meet to enable the suffragists to obtain the support of the necessary thirty-six States for making the amendment valid as part of the Constitution.

The suffrage leaders insist that if the vote is taken in the Senate now they would be only one shy, even if Senators Wadsworth of New York and Moses of New Hampshire, both Republicans, should vote against the resolution. When the vote was taken last October the Senate divided this way:

For the Resolution—54 Senators.
Against It—30 Senators.
Paired—12 Senators.
Total—96 Senators.

There were 84 Senators voting and 56 constituted the necessary two-thirds vote.

After the vote was taken Senator Jones of New Mexico, who had charge of the bill, changed his vote from the affirmative to the negative, making the vote as actually recorded fifty-three for and thirty-one against. But this change of vote by Senator Jones was merely technical. Under the rules, in order to be able to move a reconsideration, a Senator must have voted in the negative and, in order to be in position at some convenient date before March 4 to seek another vote on the measure, Senator Jones changed his vote to the negative.

Since the vote was last taken there have been two changes in the Senate that might in any way change the poll. Drew of New Hampshire, who for a few weeks served by appointment in the Senate in place of the late Senator Gallinger, voted against the resolution in October. He has been succeeded by Senator Moses, upon whom the suffragists have been laboring hard in an effort to swing his vote on the affirmative side of the tally. Senator Benett of South Carolina, who was a bitter opponent of suffrage, has been succeeded by Senator Pollock, who, the suffragists claim, is ready to vote for the amendment.

Should Senator Pollock vote the way the suffragist leaders say they feel sure he will, if the opportunity for voting comes, the vote would stand 55 to 29, or one shy the necessary two-thirds, provided both Wadsworth and Moses voted negative.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—The New York Assembly, without opposition, adopted today the Graves-McNab resolution, which would request the State's representatives in the United States Senate to vote and work for the passage of the Federal suffrage amendment. The resolution was adopted by the Senate yesterday and now will be transmitted to Senators Wadsworth and Calder.

A Big Difference

The difference between re-covered and re-upholstered furniture is just the difference between solid worth and veneer. We hesitate to just re-cover but many times when we re-upholster an article it leaves our workrooms better than new.

For instance, we received a chair which had every outer indication of being a very high grade piece. When we opened it up we found but five springs and a filling of tow. This accounted for its losing shape so soon. We refitted it with twelve springs and a hair filling and returned it to a greatly satisfied customer.

Giving unusual satisfaction to our patrons is one thing our upholstery department is justly proud of, for during our years of service we have rarely received a complaint.

Our staff of skilled workmen has been with us for years and works under hygienic conditions in sunlit workrooms.

They will arrange draperies and wall coverings, make awnings, slip-covers or any kind of cushions. Our estimator will be glad to call and give quotations.

DECEIVED SOLDIERS IN HEARST PETITION

Signed Under Impression That Document Related to Their Pay.

AGENT PUT OUT OF HOSPITAL

Free Evening Journals Barred—Independent Citizens' Welcome Plan Grows.

One method of obtaining signatures of wounded soldiers in support of Mayor Hylan's appointment of William R. Hearst to the Mayor's Committee to welcome returning troops was revealed yesterday at Debarkation Hospital No. 5 in Grand Central Palace.

According to the officers, a man got into the hospital on some pretext, and was found soliciting the signatures of the patients, especially those who were least able to read, and informing them that the main purpose of the petition was to obtain for the men six months' pay upon their discharge. After being informed of the deception, and finding that the paper they had hastily signed had nothing to do with pay, but was simply laudatory of Mr. Hearst, the men became indignant, the officers say, and were ready to throw the solicitor out.

The letter, which was similar to one made public on Monday by the Mayor, in a refutation of the charge that the soldiers were opposed to the appointment of Hearst, speaks of the appointment being a proper recognition of his interest in the welfare of the soldiers, and declares that "our heroes have no greater champion, no more sincere and patriotic friend than Mr. Hearst," and goes on to say that "the appointment of Mr. Hearst is taken advantage of not so much to criticise you as to afford occasion and opportunity for the advocates and beneficiaries of special privilege to attack a man who has been unswerving in his devotion to the cause and the liberties of the exploited public."

Nurse Discovered Deception.

The officers say a stranger was discovered circulating among the men with the petition in his hand yesterday and telling them what great advantages would come to them if the petition were granted. After several had signed it without reading it, a nurse told them that the paper was in praise of Hearst, "who was not their friend." The men then decided to read the petition, and after doing so became indignant.

The officers vouch for the fact that if the stranger had not been ejected summarily and the petition taken away from him the men themselves would have handled him in no gentle manner. Those who showed their feelings unmistakably were John J. O'Neill, 105th Machine Gun Battalion; Houghton Keen of the 119th Infantry, and Lester Joyner of the 118th Infantry.

The officers also told yesterday of several attempts made recently to distribute The Evening Journal among the patients. On Monday a man went to the Red Cross Field Director with an offer to distribute evening papers free to the men. It was supposed that the offer included all the papers, and was, of course, accepted. When they arrived they proved to be a bundle of 500 copies of The Evening Journal.

The Director had them removed immediately, and informed the representative that they would not be accepted in future. Without the knowledge of the Red Cross Director, the Hearst agent then approached Army Chaplain E. Ashley Gerhard, with what result is told in the following letter:

Chaplain Gerhard's Letter.

Debarkation Hospital No. 5,
January 15, 1919.

The Circulation Department,
New York Evening Journal,
238 William Street, City.

Sirs: Yesterday a man came into my office with an offer to distribute free of charge Metropolitan newspapers each day to the wounded men in this institution. I told him, in the course of my conversation with him, that I would be willing to attend to the distribution of these papers in the event of his sending them in, but that I would be unable to permit him or his agent to come in with them.

Today I learn that the newspapers he was referring to, but which he did not mention by name in his conversation with me, were copies of the New York Evening Journal. I am writing to inform you that I am unwilling, in view of this further information that has come to me regarding the intentions of this man, who, I presume, represented you, to allow the distribution of these papers in this hospital. In view of the attitude of the management of the New York Evening Journal, expressed in your editorials and news columns and revealed in the recent investigations by a Congressional Committee, I cannot reconcile my position as Chaplain in this institution with participation in the dissemination of the ideas which you have so frequently and frankly given expression to.

My position here has very directly to do with the loyalty maintained by the patients in this hospital toward their country and with the encouragement of their admiration of those countries which are allied with us in promoting the cause on behalf of which the war has been fought. It is clear to me that my duty here cannot be reconciled with compliance to the request made of me yesterday.

National Support to Citizens.

I shall be grateful if you will attend to the immediate termination of our arrangement for the distribution of your papers in this place. Very truly yours,

E. ASHLEY GERHARD,
Chaplain, U. S. A. M. C.

Commenting on the movement begun in the West to have Congress discontinue using New York as a port of debarkation, because Hearst is a member of the Mayor's Committee to Welcome Homecoming Troops, Richard M. Hurd, Chairman of the Arrangements Committee of the Citizens' Welcome Committee, said yesterday:

"Strong national support has come to the uprising of citizens which crystallized in the Independent Citizens' Committee of Welcome for returning troops from the action of the Western States. The action of the Legislature of South Dakota in memorializing Congress to prohibit returning troops from landing at the port of New York because the special committee on welcome of the Mayor's Committee is headed by William Randolph Hearst is now being followed up by telegrams to the Governors of Texas, California, Washington, and many other States requesting them to have the Legislatures of their States also appeal to Congress to have returning troops land at some other port. In other words, the feeling against Mr. Hearst is national and not local.

"It is believed that when the Western States learn that a large representative and independent Citizens' Committee of Welcome is organized, of which Mr. Hearst is not a member, that their objections to the use of New York as a port of debarkation will be removed. It is unnecessary to point out how grave an injury would be inflicted upon all stores, restaurants, hotels, theatres, movies, &c., should our heroes, coming from France, not be permitted to pass through New York, in addition to which these men have many friends in New York who desire to see them, and it would be an intolerable stigma if New York should be ruled off the map as unworthy to greet returning heroes because of the presence on the Mayor's Committee of Mr. Hearst."

"All soldiers, sailors, and marines are cordially invited to attend the mass meeting with their friends in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, and reserved seats may be obtained at the office of the American Defense Society, 44 East Twenty-third Street. Men in uniform will be admitted and given reserved seats when the doors open at 7:15. Among the speakers will be the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, Montagu Donner, President of the Finland Constitutional League; James M. Beck, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Father Barnard Clifford."

The Citizens' Committee of Welcome has received many letters from various organizations expressing their willingness to take part in the citizens' welcome. The Société des Beaux Arts wrote: "It will be an honor to have our society participate in the plan to welcome our men on their return. Only true Americans should be permitted to extend their gratitude to these brave men."

The Iowa New Yorkers wrote: "A committee from our organization has been appointed to work with the Independent Citizens' Committee of New York. We shall be glad, indeed, to help."

The National American Woman Suffrage Association, Carrie Chapman Catt, President: "I will personally give my name to the General Committee of the Citizens' Committee of Welcome to the home-coming soldiers. My organization is also glad to join."

Club to Welcome Wyoming Men.

What promises to become a nationwide movement for the adequate reception in New York City of the soldiers of other States, especially those of the West, was accelerated yesterday by the receipt of a telegram from the Governor of Wyoming, pledging his co-operation and that of the Legislature of his State in having the Rocky Mountain Club designated the representative of the State in welcoming the boys. Governor Stewart of Montana wired on Tuesday, appointing the club as his official representative here, and saying he felt sure the Legislature would back him up with a substantial appropriation. Francis S. Bangs of 44 Wall Street, and Edwin O. Holter of 60 Broadway, who is already a member of the Independent Citizens' Committee, expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the movement.

When asked for the plans of the club the Secretary said last night that he was not in a position to make a statement until more of the Governors and the Legislatures have responded, but that it was natural that the boys of the States which provided funds would be taken care of by the club. "Judging by past performances of the club," he said, "they can depend upon a welcome that will do justice to the service they have rendered the country. Taking the cue Case (J. I.) Co......7 .. Jan. 28 Jan. 18 from Governor Stewart's action, a telegram has been sent to the Governor of each of the Western States placing the club at the command of the State if the State wishes to officially designate it as its representative to welcome the boys from the State landing in New York."

Mr. Herbert Wall, Secretary, Rocky Mountain Club, New York:

Our Legislature meets Tuesday, and I will recommend to them that funds be provided immediately so that returning Wyoming soldiers can be welcomed on arrival by citizens of this State. Appreciate the offer of your club in this matter, and if Legislature carries out my request, which I think it will, we can co-operate with the other Western States through your club in providing entertainment for these men. As soon as action is taken by the Legislature will advise you.

ROBERT D. CAREY, Governor.

BARS HEARST PUBLICATIONS.

Montclair, N. J., Club Directors Take Action at Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 15. — All Hearst publications are barred from the Montclair Club in Church Street, near the town centre. It has a membership of upward of 300, most of them New York business men. The action against the Hearst papers was taken at a meeting of the Board of Directors last night, and the prohibitive resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote. The resolution reads:

"Resolved, That the Montclair Club, Inc., shall not subscribe to any Hearst publications, and that no Hearst publications are to be allowed to appear on the tables in the library or reading room."

ONLY SEVEN EAGLE BOATS.

Taylor Says Other Contracts Besides Ford's Were Delayed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Despite the best efforts of shipbuilders holding navy contracts, none was able to meet building speed estimates during the last year, Rear Admiral Taylor, Chief of the Bureau of Construction, told the Senate Naval Committee today at its investigation of contracts for Eagle submarine chasers.

The Eagle boats, he said, were not built as fast as promised, but added that delay by builders was general.

While forty-three Eagle boats were to be delivered before the closing of navigation on the Great Lakes, the navy received only seven, and had bad luck with three of them, he said.

The Admiral explained that of sixty boats to be built, fourteen had been completed and twenty-one were on the ways.

Senator Lodge, who proposed the investigation, suggested that contracts for the remaining twenty-five be canceled.

Admiral Taylor presented official reports to deny published statements that the first Eagle boats launched leaked and had to be laid up for repairs.

Rear Admiral Earle said that if the Eagle boats had not been ordered he would not favor awarding a contract now. Rear Admiral Griffin, Chief of the Engineering Bureau, said he would not approve construction of this type of vessel in peace times.

EXPECTS END TODAY OF THE MILK STRIKE

Dowling Predicts a Compromise and Lower Prices Ultimately for Consumers.

SUPPLY HERE INCREASES

John Doe Inquiry in Magistrate McAdoo's Court Will Be Continued by Dooling.

The final effort of Gov. Smith's Milk Commission to settle the milk strike, which has entered into its third week, will be made this afternoon in the office of the Chairman, Robert E. Dowling, 165 Broadway. The commission was in session yesterday afternoon for nearly three hours, and Chairman Dowling said that at one time it appeared that an agreement would be reached, but the representatives of he producers and distributers felt that they should go back to their respective bodies for further instructions before any definite action was taken.

Chairman Dowling said that any settlement of the controversy would involve concessions on both sides. "In other words, it will be a compromise," he said. Mr. Dowling said he believed that at the meeting today a settlement would be effected that would be satisfactory to the consumer. He announced that there would be a decrease in the price of milk to the New York consumer in February and March and no increase in price during the remainder of January, as the situation now appeared.

While the Milk Commission is making an effort to settle the controversy, New York's milk supply is gradually moving toward the normal supply, receipts yesterday, according to the Health Department, being 1,469,044 quarts, which is the largest amount received any day since the dairymen's strike was declared.

Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling said yesterday that he would resume the John Doe milk inquiry before Chief Magistrate William McAdoo this morning and that the hearing would continue irrespective of whether or not an agreement was reached between milk producers and distributers. In its bulletin, issued yesterday, the Dairymen's League announces that a campaign was started yesterday to raise $10,000,000 in ten days with which to buy enough country plants to care for all league milk.

PACKERS IN GROCERS' TRADE

Association Hears of New Wholesale Competitive Factor.

The thirty-first annual convention of the New York State Wholesale Grocers' Association ended last night with a dinner at the Hotel McAlpin. Mr. Philip C. Staib presided.

Governor Edge of New Jersey was the principal speaker. Other speakers were George E. Roberts, assistant to the President of the National City Bank, and the Hon. Mark I. Requa, Director of the Oil Division of the United States Fuel Administration. These officers were elected for the coming year: Edward Crumpson, President; E. S. Truesdell, R. T. Reynolds, and Arthur P. Williams, Vice Presidents; Howard T. Sills, Treasurer, and H. M. Foster, Secretary.

At the morning and afternoon sessions of the association the chief topic of discussion was the formidable competition by the meat packers in the wholesale grocers' trade. "This condition," said Edward Crumpson of Buffalo, Vice President of the association, "is one of the largest problems which the grocers will have to cope with. Besides owning and operating food-canning factories, grape juice bottling works, and various factories closely connected with the packing industry, the meat packers are now entering the field of cereal production to a large extent. Recently they were the only dealers able to furnish rice to the trade."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Recommendations that Distinguished Service Medals be awarded two civilians and sixteen officers for important work done in the conduct of the war were approved today by Secretary Baker. Edward D. Anderson, operation branch, General Staff.

Samuel T. Ansell, Acting Judge Advocate General.

COLONELS.

W. K. Wilson, Chief of the War Department Cable Service.

Ira C. Weldorn, Chief of the Tank Corps.

Mr. Baker said the medal was awarded Mr. Felton for conspicuous service "in supervising the supply of railway material and the organization of railway operation and construction troops," which contributed materially to the success of the American Army in the field. The commendation of Mr. Thorne is for his services "in the reorganization of the service of supply, thereby enabling the heavy demands of the increased army to be met."

The Secretary's announcement emphasized that each of the officers mentioned both organized and administered the branch of the work of which he was in charge.

Are women less honest than men?
A well-known business man asks The American Magazine that question.[1]
His experience is that women don't pay up when they borrow money.
In twenty-five years he has loaned $15,000 to women in various amounts and not one cent has been repaid.
A business woman who answers this business man says it is the men's fault.
Which is right?

WANTS SO ABOLISH DRUG CONTROL BOARD

Governor Urges Legislature to Turn Duties Over to the Department of Health.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Governor Smith asked the Legislature today to immediately abolish the State Narcotic Drug Control Commission as an unnecessary bureau entailing unnecessary expense to the Governor suggested in a special message to the lawmakers, should be taken over by a bureau to be created in the State Department of Health.

The commission resulted from the Whitney act, passed by the 1918 Legislature after a series of hearings in New York City conducted by a legislative committee which investigated drug conditions. Ex-Governor Whitman named Dr. Frank Richardson of Cambridge head of the commission. Senator Whitney was named first deputy, and Mrs. John Francis Yawger of New York City third deputy. The second deputy remained unnamed.

Governor Smith, in his message, said that he is in sympathy with the purposes of the law and believes that the State should provide for the regulation and control of the sale of narcotic drugs.

"I am hoping that we will see our way clear to reduce the number of State departments now performing similar duties," declared the Governor. "The creation of new departments leads to additional expenditures not necessary. By the creation of a bureau in the Health Department, everything sought to be done by this new commission can be accomplished. Inspectors and other employes of the Health Department now performing similar duties can, at the same time, give their attention to the enforcement of the new law.

"I am looking forward to the day when some of the business of the State, now conducted by outside commissions, can be given to the elected constitutional officers of the State. For years we have all been saying that there are too many boards and commissions, but, nevertheless, we seem to go on continually creating new ones. Here is your opportunity to dispose of at least one of them and transfer the function to a well organized and highly developed agency of the Government—the State Department of Health."

Republicans here looked upon the Governor's suggestion as more or less of a political plan to reward ex-Senator Brackett for the position he took during the campaign last Fall, as well as to make more positions for the Democrats.

In appointing Senator Whitney as head of the Drug Control Commission Governor Whitman made it possible for the Senator to build up a political machine in Saratoga County, through the patronage which goes with the office, much to the discomforture of ex-Senator Brackett, the Republican leader of Saratoga. Brackett did not support Governor Whitman, but, on the contrary, is said to have done favors for Mr. Smith.

PLAN STATE INCOME TAX LAW.

Legislative Leaders Assert Loss of Revenue Tariffs Must Be Made Up.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—There is a good chance for the passage this year of a State income tax law, according to legislative leaders who have been considering the question of devising ways and means of meeting the deficit caused by the loss of revenue taxes. At the meeting of the State conference of Mayors here a committee was appointed to draft such a bill for presentation to the Legislature. Speaker Sweet of the Assembly believes the Legislature will pass the law before it adjourns.

"The only question to be decided," he said, "is the rate to be fixed and what size incomes should be exempted. The Mills committee concluded that it would not pay to collect a State income tax below $2,000. I believe that a flat rate on all incomes over $3,000 would realize sufficient funds to meet the State's requirements."

It has practically been decided by the legislative leaders to provide for increasing the tax on automobile licenses. At present the license cost is from $5 for a small runabout to $75 for the largest commercial auto trucks. The proposal is to increase the minimum tax to $10 and the maximum to $125.

New Yorkers Head "Land Army."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Despite the ending of the war, there will be no let-up in the movement to have women take more interest in farming, according to speakers before the Woman's Land Army of America, which concluded its convention here today. Officers elected included: President—Mrs. William Adams Brown, New York; Vice Presidents—Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, New York; Mrs. William H. Schofield, New Hampshire; Treasurer—Mrs. Wendell T. Bush, New York.

BOY AIDS MME. LEBAUDY.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 15.—Mme. Augustine Lebaudy's chance of escaping prosecution for the killing of her husband was increased today when District Attorney Weeks obtained through a detective the story of Mark Rosenfeld, a messenger boy of 123 East 110th Street, who accompanied Jacques Lebaudy from New York to "The Lodge" at Westbury on the night that he was shot.

It had been represented that Rosenfeld had said that he was ordered from the house by Mrs. Lebaudy just before she had shot her husband. District Attorney Weeks was interested in this account, as the story attributed to Rosenfeld was the only thing that indicated a possible plan on the part of Mrs. Lebaudy to kill her husband. When Rosenfeld was questioned today, he said that Mrs. Lebaudy had not spoken to him, and that he had fled from the house in fear of his life because Lebaudy was acting like a madman.

District Attorney Weeks began another investigation to make sure that the revolver found in the coat of Lebaudy after his death was there before he was killed. It had been represented to Mr. Weeks that there was a possibility that some one had placed the revolver in the pocket to clinch the case of self-defense for Mrs. Lebaudy.

An application had been made to the District Attorney by the Columbia University Medical School for a chance to examine the brain of Lebaudy in the interests of science. The request will not be opposed by the District Attorney, but it may be held up until some one has been designated as the legal possessor of the body.

Don't trust soap and water

The breeze blows dust into your house and lodges disease-germs in the floor cracks. Muddy, wet shoes transfer germs from the street to the home. Germs get on your floors in many other ways.

Don't let them increase and multiply, and threaten the health and life of your family. Don't trust soap and water to kill germs.

Lysol Disinfectant

instantly annihilates all germ life. Begin at once the practice of using it in your scrubbing water.

Other germ-breeding places in the home are garbage can, sinks, drains, toilet, cuspidor and dark, damp, sunless corners.

The regular use of Lysol to disinfect these danger spots will keep them permanently germ-proof.

A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant—enough to last for months. A 25c bottle makes two gallons.

-Disinfect regularly with Lysol and you will make a better fight against disease than it can make against you.

Lysol Toilet Soap
Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream
Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

AGREE TO RESTORE 2-CENT LETTER RATE

Free Use of Mail for Forces Abroad Also Accepted by the Revenue Bill Conferees.

CHILD LABOR WILL BE TAXED

Senate Special License Imposts Also Go Through—Congress May Get Bill In Few Days.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Senate and House conferees completed their preliminary review of the proposed Revenue bill today by agreeing to restore the pre-war postage rates on first-class mail matter after July 1 next, and by adopting other Senate amendments to the original House bill, such as special license taxes, the Advisory Tax Board amendment fixing the number of members at five and the salary of each at $9,000, and the tax on the employment of child labor.

The agreement on postal rates will mean a return to the use of the two-cent stamp for letter postage and the one-cent postal card rate. The Senate amendment also provides that soldiers, sailors, and marines "in a foreign country, engaged in the present war," may have free use of the mails for the delivery of letters they write, under regulations to be promulgated by the Postmaster General. The question of second-class postal rates which vitally affect newspapers and periodicals was discussed, but it is understood that the adoption of the Senate amendment providing that the rate shall be one cent a pound for delivery within the first and second zones, (150 miles,) and 1½ cents a pound for all other zones, was blocked by Representative Kitchen.

By agreement on the child labor amendment of the Senate, the conferees placed a heavy Federal tax penalty on all industries employing children, a step which has been strongly advocated by persons who viewed with alarm the recent court decision concerning the control of the employment of minors. If the Revenue bill becomes a law, industries which employ children under certain stated ages will be called upon to pour into the Federal treasury 10 per cent. of the entire net profits received or accrued for the tax year for the sale or disposition of products, in addition to all other taxes imposed by law.

The Senate's special license tax amendments will substitute a licensing system, requiring definite payments of $10 and $20 for each passenger automobile, seven-passenger capacity and over, respectively, operated for profit; add to the tax burden of the pawnbroker, and make other readjustments from the original House bill.

Among the more important questions on which the conferees will now centre their attention are the second-class postal rates, the war and excess profits taxes, consolidated returns, the inheritance tax, depreciation deduction, and the definition of capital.

There were reports about the Capitol today that the conferees hoped to reach an agreement by the end of the week and have the report ready for submittal early next week. The general belief, however, was that the conference sessions would continue well into next week. The most hopeful indication of a reasonably early agreement is found in reports that both Senator Simmons and Representative Kitchin, Chairmen respectively of the Senate and House Ways and Means Committee, have promised Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass that the bill will be adopted by both branches of the legislative Government by Feb. 1.

In order to accomplish this it probably will be necessary for the conferees to complete their deliberations some time next week, as it is expected that at least two days will be required for its passage in the Senate and from three to five days in the House, especially if the Senate amendment to the second-class postal rates is adopted by a split vote in the conference and the fight is carried to the floor of the House by its opponents who wish to retain the higher rates in the new revenue law.

There is said to be considerable variance of opinion among the conferees as yet over the war and excess profits taxes as well as on the inheritance tax program and other important features of the proposed bill.

Many provisions under the heading "Special Taxes," Title X, are of wide public interest, as they affect numerous branches of business. Under the Senate amendment, brokers who are not members of a stock exchange will pay a tax of $40 instead of $100, as provided in the original House bill. The Senate made other changes in the original House schedule, and other taxes included in the schedule to which the conference agreed, "with minor changes" which, it is understood, dealt largely with phraseology, are as follows:

Brokers, members of exchange, board of trade or similar organizations whose seat or membership was $2,000 or more but not over $5,000, $100. If such value was more than $5,000, $150.

Pawn brokers, $100. If gross receipts for year ending June 30 were $2,000 or more but not over $5,000, $100 additional if more than $5,000, $150 additional. (The House bill did not contain the last two provisions.)

Ship brokers, $40.

Custom brokers, $40.

Theatres, museums, and concert halls: Seating capacity not exceeding 250, $50; over 250 and not exceeding 500, $100; over 500 and not exceeding 800, $150; over 800, $200. In towns of less than 5,000 population the tax is to be half of that fixed by the schedule.

Halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical performances were exempted by the House bill. The Senate amendment adds to these exemptions edifices owned by religious, educational, or charitable institutions, societies or organizations where all the proceeds go to these institutions or are collected for the benefit of the military or naval forces of the United States.

Circuses are to pay a tax of $100, and other public exhibitions not covered in the provisions made $15, with the provision that no collection of shows such as State fairs shall be asked to pay a greater combined tax than $100.

Bowling alleys and pool and billiard parlors are to pay $10 for each table or bowling alley, and only tables and alleys in private homes are exempted from this tax. Clubs are included. Shooting galleries are taxed $20; riding academies, $100.

Persons operating or renting passenger automobiles for profit must under the Senate amendment pay a tax of $10 for each automobile with a capacity of not less than two nor more than seven, and $20 for each automobile with a seating capacity of more than seven. Other taxes of passenger automobiles proposed by the House draft of the Revenue bill are eliminated.

Special taxes imposed by the House bill on the tobacco trade with amendments by the Senate are as follows:

Manufacturers of tobacco—Annual sales not over 50,000 pounds, $6; from 50,000 to 100,000 pounds, $12; 100,000 to 200,000 pounds, $24; exceeding 200,000 pounds, $24, and an additional tax of 10 cents a thousand pounds on all sales in excess of 200,000 pounds.

Manufacturers of Cigars—Annual sales not over 50,000, $4; 50,000 to 100,000, $6; 100,000 to 200,000, $12; 200,000 to 400,000, $24; in excess of 400,000, $24, and an additional tax of 10 cents per thousand or fraction of the excess over 400,000.

Manufacturers of cigarettes, including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, 6 cents per 10,000 cigarettes or fraction thereof.

Upon the use of all yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats, with fixed engines of over five gross tons, length not over 50 feet, $1 for each foot; length over 50 feet and not over 100 feet, $2 for each foot; length over 100 feet, $4 for each foot; motor boats not over five gross tons, with fixed engines, $10.

Swift & Company's 1918 Earnings

How They Affected You

During the twelve months ended Nov. 2, 1918 (its fiscal year), Swift & Company transacted the largest volume of business on the smallest margin of profit in its history.

Profits of the meat business—under regulations of the United States Food Administration—were limited to a maximum of 9 per cent on capital employed but not to exceed 2½ cents per dollar of sales.

Swift & Company in the regulated departments earned 7.57 per cent on capital employed and 2.04 cents per dollar of sales, out of which had to be paid interest on borrowed money and taxes. Here is how these earnings affect you.

Live-Stock Raiser—

Swift & Company killed 14,948,000 head of livestock, which weighed alive, 4,971,500,000 pounds.

Consumer—

The sales of our meat departments were 4,012,579,000 pounds on which our earnings were less than ½ cent per pound.

The per capita consumption of meat in the United States is given as 170 pounds. If a consumer purchased only Swift & Company's products, he would contribute only about 78 cents a year, or 1½ cents a week as profit to the company.

the interests of all with judicial impartiality.

Mr. Ransom replied that he feared the court was missing his point. The receiver, he said, should give proper consideration to all interests involved, but, since it was to be hoped that, out of the receivership, would come a permanent and constructive re-organization that would benefit alike the owners of the property and the general public, the city should be represented in the receivership, because the city was the best qualified to advise in the determination of the great future transit policy of the Borough of Brooklyn.

At the conclusion of Mr. Ransom's argument, the court announced that he would hear the Corporation Counsel. Mr. Burr's argument was in the form of a long affidavit from which he read. The affidavit had been prepared and printed and was ready for use, when, yesterday morning, some one remembered that no action had been taken by the city authorizing any one to intervene for it in the receivership proceedings. A special meeting of the Board of Estimate was called hurriedly and a resolution was passed authorizing the Corporation Counsel to intervene. The resolution follows:

> Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the rights of the city, its taxpayers, and its people should be protected and secured to the utmost advantage during said receivership, in view of the vast sums of money now invested in said properties by the people, or due by said companies to the City of New York, it is therefore
> Resolved, That the Corporation Counsel be and he hereby is instructed to appear on the return day of said order appointing said Lindley M. Garrison as such receiver, to wit, Jan. 15, 1919, and for and in the name of the City of New York then and there to ask for the appointment of the Controller, Charles L. Craig, the chief financial officer of the City of New York, as co-receiver in the said suit now pending in the said United States District Court.

Explains City's Financial Interest.

Mr. Burr called attention to the fact that, for the purpose of constructing rapid transit lines to be operated by the B. R. T., the city had appropriated $124,811,928.60. Of this amount $110,695,775.95 had been expended, and contract obligations incurred for $14,157,270.24. The New York Municipal Railway Corporation, on the other hand, had contributed only $10,000,000 of the amount agreed and required to be contributed by it. Furthermore, the Corporation Counsel said, the city had claims against the defendant aggregating $11,531,165.28.

"So it happens," said Mr. Burr, "that the financial interest of the city, represented by expenditures actually made for construction, under Contract 4, and by its unpaid claims and judgments against these defendants and the subsidiary companies of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, is over $136,284,000. * * * Disputes and controversies have arisen between the city and these defendant corporations, both in connection with the contribution agreed to be made to the construction and in respect of the inadequate, and, at times, even unsafe service rendered by the companies in the operation of the roads as far as completed.

"* * * It is a grave question which the local authorities have had under consideration, by reason of the responsibilities devolved upon them by the Constitution and laws of the State of New York, as to whether the defendant Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company should be aided, either by favorable action upon applications for increases of fare, or by grant of other measures of relief, in further strengthening and perpetuating the corporation's control over the transit system which it has operated with such poor results and so inadequately, having regard to the welfare and interests of the people of the city."

Mr. Burr, after he had proceeded a little further in his argument, asked the court to impose, as a term of the receivership, that neither the receiver nor the defendant companies should abrogate any compulsory free transfer obligations, enforced by State statute, in the endeavor to abrogate leases or unprofitable contracts. In speaking of the rentals paid by the defendant companies, Mr. Burr said they "probably ought to be modified." Then, as if anticipating that only Mr. Garrison would be named as permanent receiver, Mr. Burr read an extract from the judicial code of the United States which provides that a receiver must manage properties turned over to him according to the laws of the State in which the property is situated and in the same manner that the owner would be compelled to do. Violation of this section of the code imposes a fine of not more than $3,000 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both. Mr. Burr closed with a request that Controller Craig be appointed co-receiver.

Mr. O'Leary spoke of the claims for damages for the tunnel wreck, and said that the claimants were residents of Brooklyn and ought to be represented in the receivership by a Brooklyn man. That ended all opposition to making Mr. Garrison's receivership permanent. Mr. Cravath said he had no opinion as to the claims of the city or the Public Service Commission, but he, representing all the heaviest security holders of the defendant companies, felt that a single receiver was best for all parties concerned. Mr. Bisbee and Mr. Erbe were of the same opinion.

In denying the motions made Judge Mayer said that, while no applicant for a co-receiver was foreclosed from applying again, he had concluded that, for the present at least, the interests of all parties concerned would be best served by one receiver, and he confirmed the permanency of Mr. Garrison.

"At some future time," Judge Mayer added, "when the question of financing comes up, it may be very desirable to have a coreceiver. If it so appears, he will be appointed. But it should be clearly understood that this receiver will make it his first business to see that those properties are made safe and comfortable for the public. During this receivership, at least, there must not be another accident like that which occurred in the Malbone Street tunnel.

"And while I am saying this, I may as well add that the receiver will make every effort to pay every just claim arising from accident just as soon as he can find the money to do so. A receiver cannot represent any particular faction or interest. He must represent fairly all the interests involved, and I think the Court is most fortunate in being able to get a man of the experience and training of the present receiver, who is willing to take the job. He not only showed marked executive ability as Secretary of War, but he served with distinguished ability and judicial fairness as Judge of a court that has been distinguished for the learning of its Judges for years."

EXPLAINS B. R. T. AFFAIRS.

Company's Chief Difficulty, Garrison Says, Is Lack of Cash.

The preliminary report, submitted to Judge Mayer of the Federal Court yesterday by Lindley M. Garrison, as temporary receiver, contains a survey of the finances, general resources and obligations of the companies, the rapid transit lines in operation and equipment and lines under construction by the city. The report discusses also the organization of the various departments of the companies, the functions of each, and the salaries paid to officials and department heads. It gives, also, the cost of conducting each department. To the report, which contains twenty-nine pages, are attached thirty-two schedules, which present figures and statistics regarding the condition of the company and its affairs.

In the beginning Mr. Garrison gives a condensed history of the corporate existence of the companies, their mileage, and the territory served. Then he summarizes the terms of the contract between the city and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, its present status, and the obligations under it which already have been fulfilled. Obligations yet to be fulfilled by the railroad corporation, and which will cost, exclusive of taxes, discount, and interest during construction, $10,000,000, are the following:

Completion of equipment of city railroads for "initial operation," (includes 100 additional cars not yet delivered)	$5,500,000
Completion of additional tracks on extensions of existing railroads	2,500,000
Reconstruction of existing railroads, (includes yard at Coney Island and 36th Street inspection shed if not furnished by city)	2,000,000
	$10,000,000

In commenting on these items a digest of the report prepared by the receiver says:

"In respect of the above, obligations outstanding on account of work now under way or contracted for will call for approximately $5,000,000, which will be payable at monthly intervals within the next ten months. Included in the above total of $10,000,000 are items aggregating approximately $3,000,000, the expenditure of which will probably not be required until after July 1, 1920.

"Owing to the increasing volume of travel and the desire both on the part of the city and company to substitute new steel cars for wooden cars operated in subways, the report recommends that provision be made as soon as possible for 400 or 500 new steel motor cars, to cost approximately $20,000 each.

"Work that remains to be done by the city, including the extension and construction of rapid transit lines, and the completion of switching and other facilities required for full operation, both in Broadway, Manhattan, and in Brooklyn, is described. Fourteen major items of construction, either uncompleted or unbegun, are named specifically, with the statement that there are a great number of items of construction on lines now in operation which have not been completed by the city, such as waterproofing at Canal Street, completion of station buildings on the West End line, and signal towers and miscellaneous buildings along the lines now in operation."

Continuing, the digest of Mr. Garrison's report says:

"The effect of the delay on the part of the city in completing its part of the contract has been to throw an unanticipated amount of traffic over the one subway outlet in the Borough of Manhattan, namely, at the Canal and Centre Streets loop, and over connecting lines in Brooklyn, greatly retarding efficient operation and causing great congestion and other disturbances, resulting unfortunately both to the satisfactory operation of the road and its financial returns therefrom.

"Altogether there remain unfinished forty-seven miles of track out of a total of 115, and nineteen miles of road out of a total of forty-one, of the lines which the city assumed to construct and which the company agreed to equip and operate."

The digest of the report then gives the main sources of income of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and then continues:

"The chief difficulty of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company at present is lack of cash. Dividends on stocks of companies owned have been reduced or entirely suspended, the constituent companies are in arrears in payment of interest on their certificates of indebtedness, and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation has failed to pay the interest due Jan. 1 last on its bonds, most of which are owned by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

"Furthermore, while the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has been financing for a great many years, the requirements for capital expenditures on the part of its constituent companies, taking the obligations of those companies, therefor, it has itself sold no securities (except for the benefit of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation in the subway contracts with the city) for a period of about ten years, and these capital expenditures, representing a great many millions of dollars, have been met out of current cash, or out of monies temporarily borrowed either from banks and trust companies or from constituent companies.

"Under the heading, 'Increased Cost of Labor, Material, and Supplies,' it is stated that the receivership companies have suffered greatly from those causes. Marked increase in the cost of material is also noted. The effects of higher costs generally throughout the system are set forth in a statement for the five months ending Nov. 30, 1918, compared with the same months of 1917, which shows that in those months the system earned only $318,720.46 over all charges, whereas, in the corresponding period of 1917 it earned $2,395,750.54, a falling off of $2,077,021.08 or 86.70 per cent."

The financial requirements for the immediate future, for the three receivership companies, are given as follows in Mr. Garrison's report: For construction and equipment work now under way, pursuant to city contracts and payable at intervals during the next ten months, the New York Municipal Railways Corporation must pay $5,000,000. It must also pay interest, chargeable to construction, to Jan. 1, 1919, and unpaid, $809,500. It must also provide for the sinking fund due Jan. 1, 1919, $100,500. The situation in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is described as follows: Bills payable to banks and trust companies, $3,350,000; additions to power facilities, (mostly under contract and payable in the next six months,) $1,453,000. Most of this work is being done by the B. R. T. as agent for the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, and the costs eventually will be repaid by the latter company.

The situation in the New York Consolidated Company is shown by the following items in the receiver's report: Interest due Jan. 1, 1919, underlying bonds, $540,000; conversion of surface cars for trailer operations (as agent for surface railroad companies), $200,000; replacement of storage and dock facilities, required by Government requisition of existing facilities, about $50,000; interest on 7 per cent. notes, due Jan. 1, 1919, and unpaid, $2,020,725.

The report also contains the salary schedules. The total amount of salaries paid in the legal department is $120,300. Of this amount, George D. Yeomans, general counsel, receives $25,000; Charles L. Woodie, assistant general counsel, $12,000; while the salaries of nineteen other attorneys range from $1,500 to $9,500 a year.

President Timothy S. Williams, according to the report, draws $75,000 a year, of which Receiver Garrison pays $50,000. W. S. Menden, chief engineer of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, and assistant to the President, receives $25,000 a year. Two Vice Presidents, C. P. Meneely and J. J. Dempsey, each receive $15,000 a year. C. E. Roenl, electrical engineer, receives $12,000 a year, and Howard Abel, the controller, receive $10,000 a year. The salaries of other officers range from $9,000 down to $1,200 a year. The total salaries paid by all the companies in the hands of the receiver amount to $197,700 annually.

MERCHANTS FOR HIGHER FARE

Association Calls on Estimate Board to Reconsider Action.

The Merchants' Association, through its Acting President, Lewis E. Pierson, delivered yesterday to the Board of Estimate a statement protesting against the refusal of the board to permit a temporary increase in fares on the city's transportation lines and against the "apparent willingness" of some members of the board that the city should acquire and operate the properties. After declaring that the city has recently made new investments of approximately $250,000,000 in transit development and is responsible for the payment of interest and sinking fund charges upon the amount, the statement says these charges must be paid out of taxation unless the revenues were sufficient to provide for them.

It is contended that a public utility should earn its own carrying charges, and that the result of the continued refusal by the Board of Estimate to permit an increase of fares on city-owned lines will be to throw the transit system into "financial chaos." The board is urged to reconsider its expressed intention against higher fares and to allow such an increase as the Public Service Commission, after an investigation, should prove to be reasonable and just. Concerning the question of public ownership the statement says:

"This association has made a thorough and exhaustive study of the results of govermental operation of public utilities and has found that those results are almost uniformly disastrous. Almost without exception, Government operation has resulted in inefficient service and excessive cost. In very very few instances has the public derived any benefit from such public operation. The almost uniform result has been poorer service and higher cost. In addition, the political abuses and dangers which are likely to result from public ownership and operation are most serious."

New Test of Transportation Efficiency for Packard Owners Starts February 1st

$17,640.00 in Cash Prizes to Drivers, Accountants and Shipping Clerks

How much work can a motor truck deliver? What ought to be the cost of doing the work?

THESE are two of the most pressing questions in American business today—what with the need to save freight cars; with the staggering quantity of merchandise to be moved; and with the great business expansions already taking shape.

Motor truck efficiency means not only gasoline economy, tire and oil saving, and repair economy.

It means also the right size truck for your average load; efficient routeing; saving of time in loading and unloading; the way the truck is handled.

It means standardizing costs—every item known.

Basic principles, all of them—and the purpose of this new National Truck Efficiency Test is to show the Packard owner how these basic principles can give him better hauling at lower cost in his individual business.

The test covers one year's operation — demonstrating what can be done under all conditions of weather, temperature, road and load.

The Packard owner may enter as many of his Trucks as he wishes.

Prizes are awarded not only to the Driver, for lower costs and better service; but to the Accountant, who tabulates the records; and to the Shipping Clerk, because much of truck efficiency depends on efficient work at the shipping platform.

A Packard Truck of any size can compete on a fair basis.

Here is where the owner will learn whether his truck is just the right size for his work — or too large, power lost by running on underload — or too small, necessitating overload to get his hauling done.

The Packard owner starts the test with the basic principles developed by the Packard Organization of transportation specialists.

He has a year to apply these principles to his individual business.

What can he not achieve in efficiency!

How to Enter Your Trucks in the Packard National Truck Efficiency Test

YOUR local Packard Branch or Packard Dealer will accept your entries and see that your Packard Truck or Trucks are formally enrolled on the Official List of Contestants.

The Test starts on February 1st, 1919, and continues to January 31st, 1920.

Trucks are divided into seven Divisions, according to size:

"A" Division—all 6-ton Trucks
"B" " " 5-ton "
"C" " " 4-ton "
"D" " " 3-ton "
"E" " " 2-ton "
"F" " " 1½-ton "
"G" " " 1-ton "

The Grand Total of Prizes is $17,640.00—including five prizes for Drivers, Accountants and Shipping Clerks in each Division—as follows:

PRIZES	Drivers	Accountants	Shipping Clerks
1st	$500	$125	$225
2nd	400	100	175
3rd	300	75	125
4th	200	50	80

Contestants shall be Packard Trucks only.

All cost and operating records shall be kept and submitted on the standard forms of the National Standard Truck Cost System, as perfected by the Truck Owners' Conference, which can be obtained through your Packard Branch or Packard Dealer.

Recapitulation of operating and cost data must be submitted monthly by owner to the Packard Factory for inspection and correction.

NATIONAL LEAGUE SALARY REDUCTION MAY CAUSE STRIKE OF BASEBALL PLAYERS

CLUB OWNERS CUT PLAYERS' SALARIES

National League Limits Each Club's Payroll to $11,000 a Month.

NEW YORK CLUB PROTESTS

Strong Objections of Giants and Chicago Cubs Overruled in Stormy Baseball Session at Waldorf.

A tremendous blow was aimed at the baseball players' pocketbook by the National League yesterday, when it established a salary limit of $11,000 a month for each club. This is the first time in the history of the modern game that a major league has attempted to interfere with the financial affairs of the teams. The latest move at retrenchment came as a great surprise, and was not adopted until after a hot fight, the New York and Chicago Clubs voting against the proposition. The action means that the players' salaries will be cut in half.

The radical action means that the payroll of each National League club next season must be limited to $55,000. As the payroll of a club like the Giants or the Cubs amounts to $100,000 or more a season, the big cut means a sweeping reduction of salaries. Under the new arrangement the average monthly salary would be $523. It was openly predicted among baseball men last night that the players would not accept the change without a fight. It was even hinted that if the measure is carried out, a players' strike in the National League might result.

Some of the less prosperous clubs decided that the 140-game schedule, which was adopted, and the limiting of the salaries, were the only way they could make up for financial losses of the past. The vote on the question stood 6 to 2, the Giants and Cubs holding out for a higher figure. Some of the clubs wanted the salary limit reduced to a lower figure even than $11,000. The penalty for a violation of the rule is $5,000. President Heydler was instructed to see that the measure was rigidly enforced next season.

The action of the league hits the Giants harder than any other club on the circuit. The new owners of the New York team held out at the meeting for the old conditions which ruled the game. They wanted a full schedule of 154 games, a high player limit of at least twenty-five players, and no restriction on training camp trips. They were prepared to pay good salaries and leave no stone unturned to build up a pennant winner at the Polo Grounds next season. Chicago was the only club to back up the Giants in their contention, and they were hopelessly in the minority.

The salary limit passed by the National League will come up at the joint meeting with the American League this afternoon, but it is pretty certain, so American League men said last night, that the American League will not tamper with the financial affairs of its own clubs. It is feared that such an unequal state of affairs in the two leagues is sure to cause dissatisfaction among the players.

The league also limited the training season to thirty days before the opening of the baseball season on April 23. This means that the clubs cannot report at the training camps before March 23. A $500 fine will be imposed on clubs violating the rule. President Heydler said that the sending of pitchers to Southern resorts to work out before the regular players go to the training camps was contrary to the spirit of the rule.

Manager John J. McGraw, the newly elected Vice President of the Giants, and Fred Mitchell, manager and President of the Cubs, sought to gain permission to attend the joint meeting tomorrow, but the league turned down the suggestion which was offered by William Veeck, Vice President of the Chicago Club. This action brought a storm of protest from the New York and Chicago representatives.

It is many years since the National League has had such a stormy session. The club owners were in session from 11 o'clock until 7, and did not even come out of the meeting room for luncheon. It was a case of the New York and Chicago Clubs lined up against the other six organizations.

The first opposition from New York and Chicago came when the league adopted the 140-game schedule. Treasurer Francis X. McQuade of the Giants immediately got up with an argument for a regular 154-game schedule. The matter was discussed for some time, but was finally referred back to the Schedule Committee for adoption.

The National League did not go on record yesterday on the player limit, but will wait until after the joint session with the American League today. Johnson's organization has made the player limit twenty-one, while the National League limit last season was twenty-two. The National League is divided on the subject, several of the club owners holding out for a limit of twenty players. It is believed, however, the same player limit as that of the American League—twenty-one—will be adopted. In the off season, before May 15, each club can carry thirty-five players. The salary limit which was adopted covers only the championship playing season of 140 games.

The waiver rule was changed so that hereafter when waivers are asked on a player he must report to the club claiming his services, no recall of the waiver being permitted. The league passed a resolution advocating the same prices at the parks which prevailed last season and the same method of collecting the war tax.

The league went on record as advocating a change in the division of the players and clubs' shares of the world series' receipts. The spoils hereafter are to be distributed on a percentage basis instead of a stipulated price for the players on the winning and losing clubs, as was adopted last season. It was decided that the clubs should contribute 50 per cent. of their share of the receipts to the club treasuries instead of 25 per cent., which has been the rule in the past. The league went on record as favoring a joint meeting of the two major leagues each season such as the conference which is to be held today.

Although the National League is opposed to one of its own members, August Herrmann, for a re-election to the chairmanship of the National Commission, it has advanced no candidate to take his place. The league yesterday discussed the commission question and, although some of the club owners favor a one-man commission, there is opposition to this innovation from other members. While President Hempstead favored the one-man commission idea, the change in the ownership of the club puts a different complexion on the New York Club's stand on the question. The sentiment of the league was that if the one-man commission did not meet with approval at the joint meeting tomorrow, the National League would favor the old commission, with a chairman not connected in any way with baseball.

HUGGINS INTERVIEWS BAKER

Yankee Manager Talks with Home Run Slugger at Trappe, Md.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees returned from the South last night and on his way North he stopped off at Trappe, Md., to talk with Frank Baker about his contract for next season. Baker has stated his intention of retiring from the game, but it is believed that he can be persuaded to join the Yankees on their training trip.

The club has received word from Pitcher Ernie Shore, who is at his home in East Bend, N. C. Shore has been discharged from the navy and says he is ready to negotiate for terms with the club. Dutch Leonard, another of the Yankee pitchers, is in town and expects to talk with Manager Huggins today.

Secretary Harry Sparrow of the Yanks returned from Jacksonville last night and will send Phil Schenck South to get the baseball park in readiness for the coming of the New York club on March 23.

Ty Cobb, came to this city last night at the suggestion of Manager Hugh Jennings and President Frank Navin of the Detroit club. The Georgia Peach, it is expected, will come to terms for the coming season.

Many rumors of baseball trades filled the air yesterday and it is said that Manager Huggins has offered Pitchers Russell and Ray Fisher to Cleveland for outfielder Bobby Roth. Boston is also after Roth, but no deal has yet been offered by Frazee.

Clarence Rowland, the deposed manager of the Chicago White Sox, had a talk yesterday with August Herrmann of Cincinnati about the managerial job with the Reds. Herrmann will make no arrangements about getting a manager until he hears definitely from Manager Christy Mathewson, who is now in France.

Russell Gardner said yesterday that he had made an offer for the St. Louis Cardinals to President Branch Rickey, but it is understood that President Rickey has no authority to make a deal for the sale of the club. If the St. Louis club is put up at auction, Mr. Gardner says he will make a bid for the franchise. He is anxious to buy the club and said yesterday that he would bid as high as any one else for it.

ROOSEVELT'S WORK PRAISED

Schoolboy Athletic League Adopts Resolution of Tribute.

A resolution on the death of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was given out yesterday by the Public Schools Athletic League. The resolution was adopted at a special meeting of the P. S. A. L. Executive Committee, composed of General George W. Wingate, President; S. R. Guggenheim, Treasurer; Gustavus T. Kirby, First Vice President, and Darwin R. James. Colonel Roosevelt was an honorary Vice President of the league.

The resolution follows:

"The sudden and unexpected death of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, while deplored by the entire nation, is also felt by the officers and members of the Public Schools Athletic League as a great personal loss.

"When the league was first organized and was practically unknown Colonel Roosevelt, who was then President of the United States, not only accepted the position of honorary President of the league, but wrote and gave out for publication a letter strongly commending its work and urging its public support. He had since continued to hold that position, and had in many other ways exerted his personal influence to assist the league and promote the work which it has been carrying on, in doing which he had largely contributed to the great success which it has been able to achieve.

"As an athlete, as a scholar, as an untiring champion of the righteous and the relentless foe of the wrongdoer, and as a patriot, the life and character of Colonel Roosevelt represented the finest type of American manhood and constituted an ideal which the league will always point to as one for the boys and girls of our public schools to strive to emulate.

"It loses in him a stanch and powerful friend and a bright and shining light to the children of our public schools and the athletes of the world."

MINORS IN CLASH WITH BIG LEAGUES

May Withdraw from Organized Baseball if Demands Are Not Granted—Time Limit Set.

The minor leagues, in session at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, threw down the gauntlet to the major leagues, and have given the majors until 6 o'clock tomorrow night to make an answer to their demands. If the big leagues should decide to reject the propositions offered, the minor leagues may decide to break away from organized baseball.

A complete readjustment of minor league conditions is demanded by the smaller organizations. Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association presided at the meeting yesterday. The following leagues were represented: American Association, International League, Pacific Coast League, Western League, Southern Association, Texas League, Eastern League, Pacific Coast International League, Virginia League, and Western-Canadian League.

The following are the changes which the minors have asked the major leagues to accept:

"Major leagues may arbitrarily purchase one player from each Class AA club for $7,500 between Nov. 1 and Nov. 10. In the event of that player not being wanted by the club purchasing him or by any other major league club, he shall be offered to the club from which he was purchased for $2,500. In case that club does not want him, he is to be offered to all clubs in the same class for $1,000. If no club in that class desires him, he goes to Class A for $500, Class B for $300, Class C for $150 or Class D for $75."

"All major league players waived out of respective leagues must be offered to the Class AA league clubs for $1,000 each. In event more than one club wants any of such players he is to be awarded by lot. If he goes to a lower class, the price shall be $500 for Class A, $300 for Class B, $150 for Class C, and $75 for Class D.

"Cash must be paid for all players.

"All clubs in all leagues (majors as well as minors) must have player limits and must conform to same on the opening day of the season.

"A new Governing Board shall be formed, on which the major leagues shall have one representative and the minor leagues one, the two representatives to select a third member.

"The National Association also shall retain its Governing Board elected by itself to have final jurisdiction over all differences between its club members and between its club members and players. It shall fix all its salary limits and impose penalties for violation thereof and also regulate all of its internal affairs."

NEUSTADT DEFEATS CLASS C CHAMPION

J. Neustadt, a young Brooklyn amateur, gained his second victory yesterday in the national Class C 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. In doing so Neustadt toppled the Metropolitan district champion and created a new tournament average record. Neustadt, in one of the afternoon games, defeated George Spear, who only recently won the local title, by a score of 150 to 126 in twenty-eight innings. This gave Neustadt an average of 5 10-28, and he had two high runs of 20 and one of 17. Spear made a high run of 30, the highest of the tournament to date.

The contest was easily the most interesting of the tournament. Both contestants were in excellent stroke and each manipulated the ivories with a skill and consistency which continually drew the applause of the spectators. Frequently, the lead alternated, but toward the end Neustadt crept out in front and was never headed.

Spear started with an early lead. At the fifth inning, with a run of 20, he was off in front by 25 to 20. Neustadt came back later with a collection of 20 points in his sixteenth turn at the table, and took the lead by a count of 83 to 51. Neustadt was still leading at the twenty-third inning, when Spear made a run of 23 and drew within striking distance of his rival, the score being 104 to 90 in Neustadt's favor. A run of 30 in the following session placed the metropolitan champion in front by 120 to 11, but Spear's leadership was not maintained for long. In the twenty-fifth session Neustadt left the table after clicking off 20 points, gaining the upper hand by 131 to 122. Spear collected a brace of 2s for his next two innings, while Neustadt registered a single marker in his twenty-sixth inning, and just missed by a hair in completing the game in the next inning, when he missed after making 17 points. In his next inning, however, Neustadt completed his string.

The other afternoon contest brought together J. S. Blaisdell and J. T. Jaeger. After a long-drawn-out match which went to sixty-two innings Blaisdell was returned the winner by a count of 150 to 126.

The winners in the evening matches were Louis A. Servatius and Gus Gardner. The veteran Servatius scored over A. Briggs by a count of 150 to 56 in thirty-two innings. Servatius had a high run of 19. Gardner defeated E. C. McGill by a score of 150 to 123 in fifty-seven innings, making a high run of 14.

This afternoon one game will be played. The principals will be C. J. Steinbugler and A. Briggs. In the evening Sydney Brussel will oppose A. Briggs and Ardie Wickers will oppose Humboldt Foss.

SMITH IS NONCOMMITTAL.

Governor Will Wait Before Giving His Decision on Boxing.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Reports that he had said he would sign a bill to legalize boxing in the State if one were passed by the Legislature were called to Governor Smith's attention today.

"I'll wait until I see the bill in my hands before making any comment on the situation," the Governor said. "It's one thing to legalize boxing and it's another thing to create a commission to see that the law is properly administered."

NEWTOWN DEFEATS BRYANT

Queens Five Scores Second Victory in Three Days.

Newtown High School's basketball team, champions of the Queens division of the Public Schools Athletic League tournament, defeated the Bryant High School five yesterday for the second time in three days. The score was 26 to 9. The contest was played on the Newtown court. Bryant's forwards were held practically helpless by the excellent guarding work of McGrattan and Platow.

In the first half the play was close, the whistle finding Newtown in the lead by 7 to 6. The Newtown lads completely outclassed their rivals in the second half and scored almost at will.

VOLLMER WINS IN TANK.

New York A. C. Swimmer Takes Fast Race in 100-Yard Race.

Herbert Vollmer of the New York A. C., 150-yard swim record holder, made his first competitive appearance after a year's absence last night in the tank of the New York A. C. In the special 100-yard invitation race Vollmer swam to an impressive victory over Leo Giebel and Leeming Jelliffe, both title holders, in the fast time of 0:56 1-5. This mark is only two and three-fifths seconds behind the record on the books, creidted to Perry McGillivray of Chicago.

Vollmer showed much speed considering his long absence from competition. He was first to hit the water and was followed by Norman Buck, Illinois A. C., junior Central A. A. U. champion. Buck took Vollmer's wake from the start. Before the first length of the pool had been covered, the national record holder had opened up several yards on his rival. After the turn Buck gradually weakened and was passed by both Giebel and Jelliffe. Thereafter Buck continued to drop behind, while Giebel and Jelliffe came on to give Vollmer his only opposition. This did not mount up threateningly, and at the finish Vollmer had an advantage of about four yards.

In a plunging contest Cyril Carroll, tank record holder, was successful from scratch with an effort of 68 feet 6 inches. Another successful scratch competitor was Arthur McAleenan, Jr., in the fancy diving, which he won from the honor mark with a point score of 105.34.

The summaries:

50-Yard Swim, Novice.—Won by John B. Kane, New York A. C.; Edward Heitman, unattached, second; Ralph Hearn, New York A. C., third. Time—0:28.

100-Yard Swim, Handicap.—Won by J. T. Trumpbour, U. S. Navy, (19 seconds;) Paul B. Bernard, unattached, (14 seconds,) second; Charles Gunthner, New York A. C., (8 seconds,) third. Time—1:11.

Plunge for Distance, Handicap.—Won by Cyril Carroll, New York A. C., (scratch,) with 68 feet 6 inches; A. Hann, Rutgers College, (6 feet,) with 64 feet 9 inches, second; Charles Rosengren, De Witt Clinton H. S., (8 feet,) with 63 feet 6 inches, third.

YOU MEN WHO PAY THE FAMILY SHOE BILLS

Tramping 18 miles a day, Mr. H. M. Foreman, a mail carrier of Allentown, Pa., found that shoes with ordinary soles last about one month. But he says a pair of Neōlin-soled shoes gave him more than nine months of service, in which time he walked over 4,000 miles.

His experience shows how you may save shoe money by providing your family with Neōlin-soled shoes, which give extra wear where other shoes wear out quickest.

You can get Neōlin-soled shoes in any type of shoe you want. Prices are about the same as for shoes that give only ordinary wear, sometimes they are even less. If your dealer hasn't the style you want, he can get it for you quickly. Remember, Neōlin Soles are created by science to be what soles should be. They are available everywhere for re-soling as well as on new shoes. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

Come Ride in the Essex

Its First Showing—A Light Weight Quality Car

We Want Your Opinion of It

All motordom has waited a year for the Essex.

Dealers have ventured all sorts of descriptions for it. But today it is having its premier showing in hundreds of cities and towns throughout America.

For months the trade papers have given first prominence to whatever news they could get of its details.

Their interest was awakened because it combines the advantages of the light low priced car, and its economy, with the performance, sturdiness and beauty of the large and costly car. One leading writer proclaimed the Essex a new development in motor car transportation.

Don't you want to be among the first in this locality to see the car that has awakened this interest? We wish you would come and ride in it for

You Are To Do Its Advertising

We have long wanted to reveal the details of the Essex. But the manufacturers said they wanted the car to speak for itself. They said no description that could be applied to it would create as favorable an impression as would result from a ride in the car.

Even now we hesitate to praise the Essex since we can say nothing that has not already been claimed in praise for some other car.

So the endorsement it is to receive is such as you and other thousands of motorists volunteer to give. All we ask is that you come see and ride in it.

We Were Surprised—Let Us Surprise You

When we went to the factory to see the Essex we wanted to know in advance something of its detail. But we were told that was for us to discover as we inspected and rode in the car.

Perhaps we would have been skeptical and have concluded there was nothing unusual about the Essex if we had not known the men who are building it. But knowing them as we do and knowing the quality of cars they build, our faith and curiosity were aroused.

What a Ride Proved to Us

Our first experience was a ride over a road so rough that you would willingly go miles out of the way to avoid if you were in the average light car.

We took it at high speed, but the effect in both the front and rear seats was more in keeping with what you might expect in riding over a smooth pavement.

Then we drove into soft sand where the wheels sunk in below the felloes, going through as though it were thin mud.

Every test that reveals performance was shown us. There were no squeaks. The motor did not labor. The car had been in similar service for months and still retained its appearance of newness. These are things we want to show you. A demonstration like that which surprised us is ready for you if you will come to our store.

The Essex is Built To Endure

Every part that wears is adjustable. Hard service can not loosen the body nor twist the radiator. It is so sturdily built that the frame remains solid and rigid over the roughest roads and through the hardest service. The motor is practically free from vibration. If you were blindfolded and placed in the Essex without having seen it and then were given such a ride as we want you to take with us, you would likely say you were in a large and costly car.

After you have ridden in the Essex we will tell you all about it.

Then, we think you will be so enthusiastic you will tell everyone you know that you have ridden in the most surprising car you have ever seen.

INVOKE PRESIDENT ON THEATRE TAXES

Managers Call Meeting Today to Ask Hearing Also by Congress Committees.

SAY IT IS A FIGHT FOR LIFE

Plan Appeal to Public as Interested Party to Join in Protests Throughout Country.

Holding that the proposed 20 per cent. tax on theatre tickets means the ruin of the amusement industry, the theatrical managers of New York made known last night their intention of waging a bitter war against the figure agreed upon by the Conference Committee of House and Senate at Washington. There will be a meeting this afternoon of all the theatrical managers of New York and as many from other centres as can get here in time.

According to William A. Brady, the meeting will send a cable message to President Wilson begging his intervention to secure what the managers assert is simple justice. The plea to the President will be put on the ground, as several leading producers phrased it, that the whole theatrical industry did its utmost toward furthering victory, and that it would be black ingratitude for the Government to turn round and tax it out of business.

Practically every theatrical manager in New York yesterday signed a telegram sent to the Conference Committee, in which it was urged that the theatrical interests should have a hearing before the 20 per cent. tax is allowed to stand. Though hearings before such a committee are unusual, the managers believe they are as much entitled to present their side as were the group of business men who appeared before the committee to protest against what they regard as unjust discrimination against partnerships.

Mr. Brady was one of many who voiced their apprehension for the future of the theatre business last night. He said the theatrical men were prepared to fight, and that if necessary "the theatre and the moving picture industry will get into politics with a punch and will fight for their lives." So convinced were the managers that the entire public was as deeply interested and as seriously threatened as were those directly concerned, he declared, that great mass meetings were to be held throughout the country to protest against taxing the theatre out of existence.

$50,000,000 Theatre Tax Paid.

"Reports show that during the twelve months of 10 per cent. tax the theatre and moving picture industry poured into the treasury of the United States $50,000,000. It is the third contributor in the list of industries. Now I want to say, and I base the statement on a lifetime in the business, that as an economic measure that bill is going to defeat its own end. You will see the Government's revenue from the theatre cut down to one-half or less.

"Next, I want to emphasize that, without helping itself, the Government is going to make thousands of innocent people suffer. For this tax means that thousands of actors and all sorts of persons allied with the theatre are going to be thrown out of work just when the nation is striving with all its resources to avoid unemployment.

"As another example of unfairness, I ask the public to note that, while the theatrical industry itself, with all its investment, its risks, its creative effort, is to be taxed 20 per cent., the Broadway ticket speculator, who invests nothing, risks nothing, creates nothing, is to be taxed 5 per cent."

"If the bill is passed," said David Belasco last night, "making a 20 per cent. tax on theatre tickets, it will be the death blow not only to theatrical managers but to the entire theatrical profession. It is such a ruinous and drastic thought that I myself am quite overwhelmed by the unspeakable sorrow of the picture which I see and which I am sure would become a reality.

"It is monstrous and uncalled for. Every theatrical manager in the city and throughout the country has done gladly everything in his power to co-operate with the Government. We have weathered the storm. The war is over and won. We have an equal right to enjoy the blessings of peace, for we have surely done our bit in bringing about victory.

"Businesses, mercantile and industrial concerns have the opportunity of raising their prices in order to compete with the advance of the cost of living. Not so theatres. Our expenses are increasing, the same as other businesses, but our incomes have remained the same. The theatre is not a luxury, a dissipation, it is a necessity, and just as necessary as the doctors, or the public playgrounds, or any legitimate form of wholesome recreation.

"That the Government would seriously consider such an unjust thrust is so monstrously unfair that I do not choose to believe that the bill will ever be passed. It must not be, for it would mean not only great personal suffering, but the scrapping of the millions invested in the theatrical industry of our country."

Shubert Sees Broadway Dark.

Lee Shubert was another who made a strong protest against the proposed tax, and who told of the efforts of the managers to get a hearing before the Conference Committee.

"It will be absolutely ruinous to the business," he said. "And not only will it force us to close our houses, but it will work a severe hardship on the public. Neither we nor the public deserve it. There was no other industry that did more in every way to convey every appeal of the Government, to promote every war activity in which it could aid.

"It is a habit of most managers to keep plays running in New York often at enormous losses in order to be able to send them upon successful road tours later. This practice will have to be abandoned. That means many fewer plays running in New York, and it means that there will not be enough production to supply a great part of the theatres throughout the country. Only the sensational success will be able to survive a New York season, and one unhappy result of that will be the throwing out of work many thousands of people who earn their livelihood, directly or indirectly, in the theatre.

"The effect of this tax," Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., said, "will be to close two-thirds of the houses. Even now expenses have gone up so that only the enormous successes are making any money. Canvas, of which we use hundreds of thousands of yards, has jumped from 34 cents to $1.64.

"Chorus girls' shoes which used to cost $3.50 now cost $10 a pair, and we pay enormous wages to union electricians, stage hands, and musicians, besides increased railroad fares and all sorts of added expense. The theatre simply can't stand it.

"Mr. Dillingham and I had the Century when the 10 per cent. tax went into effect and receipts dropped 50 per cent. and stayed down for three months. The 'Follies' now pays the Government $350 a night; it will not be able to pay that if the tax is doubled. We shall simply be put out of business."

BARRY IN COMMAND HERE.

Successor to Major Gen. Bell Takes Up Duties at Once.

Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry was greeted with a salute of thirteen guns at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when he arrived to take over the post of Commander of the Department of the East, succeeding the late Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who was buried in Arlington Cemetery on Monday. At the request of General Barry the official ceremonies were omitted, and he held an informal reception at Governors Island which was attended by the senior officers and those on duty at Hoboken and other points around Manhattan. This is the second time he has been in command of the Department of the East, the previous occasion being when he succeeded the late General Frederick Dent Grant.

General Barry was born in New York City sixty-three years ago and was educated in the public schools. He was a student at the College of the City of New York when Congressman Robert Roosevelt, an uncle of the late Theodore Roosevelt, appointed him to the Military Academy at West Point, from which he was graduated in 1877. From the Seventh Cavalry, after three years, he was transferred to the First Infantry and rose step by step through the various grades until he was made a Brigadier General by President Roosevelt after his return from the task of pacifying Cuba in 1902. He also saw active service in China with the Allied Relief Expedition in 1900, and for a time commanded the Philippines Department. Recently General Barry commanded the Central Department, with headquarters at Chicago.

He took up his duties at once and notified Washington to that effect.

Women's Committee Begins Work for Palestine Drive.

A committee of prominent women of this city, under the Chairmanship of Mrs. Philip Lewisohn, has been formed to aid in the "drive" for the $3,000,000 Palestine Restoration Fund which is to be raised within two weeks beginning Sunday, Jan. 19. The committee has established headquarters at 55 Fifth Avenue, and is co-operating with the General Palestine Restoration Fund Committee of the Zionist Organization of America.

Mrs. Lewisohn, in a statement issued last night at Zionist headquarters, said that the main object of the women's committee in the campaign is to solicit the interest in the Palestine Restoration Fund of the banking houses, department stores, theatres, and other industrial and commercial concerns in the city to allow the committee to place booths for soliciting contributions for the fund. The city has been divided into various districts and captains appointed to take charge of their respective localities.

Among the members of the women's committee are Mrs. Nathan Straus, Mrs. Philip Lewisohn, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Randolph Guggenheimer, Mrs. J. C. Guggenheimer, and Mrs. N. R. Lindheim.

GATTI TO CONTINUE 4 YEARS

Metropolitan Opera Directors Extend Contract Signed in 1908.

The Directors of the Metropolitan Opera House announced last night that Giulio Gatti-Casazza's contract as general manager of the company has been extended until May, 1923, which will be fifteen years from the time he came here in 1908 from Milan. On behalf of the board, the following letter was made public by Chairman Otto H. Kahn:

> Dear Mr. Gatti-Casazza:
> I confirm hereby our verbal arrangement, according to which your contract as general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company is extended to May 1, 1923.
> I am happy to avail myself of this occasion to express to you once more the confidence, esteem, and gratitude of the Board of Directors, as well as my personal sincere regard and friendship, and I remain, with best wishes,
> Chairman Metropolitan Opera Company.
> New York, Jan. 11, 1919.

At the opera last evening Caruso, Hempel, Perini, Didur, and others repeated Flotow's "Marta" to a large audience. The talk of the lobbies between the acts was that Mr. Gatti's reappointment for four years more would relieve any persons who had been grooming themselves as candidates for the Italian impresario's successor. During his term he has directed more than 1,600 performances of opera in New York.

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

The Schola Cantorum.

The first concert of this season given by the Schola Cantorum took place at Carnegie Hall last night. Kurt Schindler was conductor, and, as might have been expected, presented an interesting program of compositions for mixed chorus ranging from early English and Italian and Spanish composers to the Russian Ornstein. Lambert Murphy, tenor, was the solo singer. No one could complain of monotony in the order of the selections: "Praise of the Gallant Warriors," William Byrd (London, 1588;) "The Queen of Love and Beauty," J. Dowland, (London, 1603;) "Danse of the Nymphs," Th. Greaves, (London, 1604;) these three were madrigals for mixed chorus. "Brigg Fair," folksong from Lincolnshire, tune taken down at Brigg, 1905, from the singing of Joseph Taylor by Percy Aldridge Granger and set for a single high male voice and mixed chorus; "Cargoes," words by John Masefield, music by H. Balfour Gardiner; "Scaldava il Sol" ("The Siesta"), by Luca Marenzio, (Venetia, 1582;) three secular madrigals by Palestrina; "Catalonian Country Dance," J. Cumellas Ribo; "Cradle Song," Sancho Marraco; two ballads of Spanish Galicia, Juan Montes; three settings of Catalonian folk melodies for eight-part chorus, by Kurt Schindler; new Russian choruses by Leo Ornstein, "Russian Winter," "Russian Lament"; and "A Day in Merry Old England, Anno 1600: a medley of Elizabethan ditties and roundelays set in the form of a quodlibet," by Kurt Schindler.

The general tone quality of the society is not distinguished, nor is the attack as impeccable as it should be. Flabbiness of rhythm marked the first half of the evening, but when the more characteristic section was reached, particularly the Spanish music, the Schola sang with fire and precision. Mr. Murphy was hardly inspiring in "Brigg Fair," nor much better in the two ballads of Spanish Galicia. Perhaps he was suffering from a cold, his voice was so uneven. Mr. Schindler conducted with his accustomed enthusiasm, and the large audience quickly responded. No doubt it would have achieved more musical results if the accompanist, Mr. Deis, had played the various compositions throughout. A capella singing was a sad test for the pitch last night.

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM."

John Cumberland and Walter Jones Shine in Fairly Amusing Farce.

UP IN MABEL'S ROOM, a farce in three acts, by Wilson Collison and Otto Harbach. At the Eltinge.

"Up in Mabel's Room" is the title of a moderately amusing farce of the lingerie genre played here for the first time last night at the Eltinge Theatre. Its action is concerned chiefly with the pursuit of an incriminating undergarment which a shy bridegroom in a single bold moment had presented to a young woman whom he had temporarily fancied. It is a farce rather adroitly put together by Wilson Collison and Otto Harbach, (probably in larger degree by the latter, since he is the more experienced of the pair,) and it builds situation upon situation, with much passing to and fro of the evidence, whispered conferences, constant interruptions, frantic husbands, and distraught wives.

But for all its technical proficiency the fun does not flow with any degree of steadiness. This was particularly true of the first act, which was torpid; the second, passing in the select spot of the title, is better, and the last act keeps up the interest fairly well. Through it all, however, there is the inescapable feeling that these things have happened before in countless farces, that endless husbands have hid under endless beds in endless strange boudoirs, and have been discovered by endless jealous wives.

The acting is varied, with the honors going almost without reserve to the men in the cast. John Cumberland and Walter Jones, dependable farceurs both, are the mainstays of the piece. Mr. Cumberland has a positive genius for the depiction of worried innocence, and it was the play's misfortune that he was required to spend most of the second act under the bed. Mr. Jones is at his best as a husband whom the complications involve. Mabel, the owner of the undergarment, was played by Hazel Dawn, who looked her prettiest, but revealed only scant acting abilities. A good performance was given by Lucy Cotton.

MUSIC NOTES.

Ruth Miller will sing the title role in "Marta" next Tuesday at the Park Theatre. The following Saturday evening Maggie Teyte and Orville Harrold will appear in "Madame Butterfly."

Clarence Dickinson, choirmaster of the Brick Church, will play his first recital on the new organ, given in the name of Dr. Henry von Dyke, a former pastor, this evening.

Emilio de Gogorza, the baritone singer, is ill with Spanish influenza, and his managers have canceled his Aeolian recital on Sunday afternoon.

A special performance of "Le Prophete," with Caruso, will be given at the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday night for the benefit of the French Hospital of this city.

A New Dunsany Play.

There is no resisting the imaginative spell of Lord Dunsany, and especially when he touches his favorite theme of the Great Gods. The play last night, like "The Gods of the Mountain" and "A Night at an Inn," introduced us to a group of worldlings, each occupied with his trivial mundane foibles or cares, and all scornful of the old, eternal forces. A sacrilege is committed, and slowly, deliberately, with the irresistible power of a cosmic spirit let loose, the vengeance of the Great Gods descends on them and destroys them utterly.

This time the milieu is an ancient Egyptian court. As the result of a whim of a King it has been removed to a jungle city, where the courtiers find themselves insufferably bored and long to return to the capital. The characters of the worldling courtiers and their wives are drawn with deliciously whimsical humor. They do not believe in the gods—or, if they do, it is only to think that they look upon human life to laugh at. In order to force the King to return they frame a plot, blackmailing the prophet-priest to declare that unless the King does return the jungle city will be utterly destroyed and all who remain in it.

Even as the priest utters his enforced prophecy, however, one feels that the breath of some high spirit has entered into it. Omens are manifested, weird and strangely beautiful. The courtiers struggle to maintain their belief in gods who only laugh at human affairs. But at the appointed time the walls of the city fall, and all within them shrink and perish. Then, amid death and destruction, the pealing of awful thunder is heard—the laughter of the gods.

The play lacks, perhaps, something of the grewsome horror of its predecessors. No gods are seen; one only hears the grim reverberations of their laughter. But the play has a keener touch of satire, a deeper spiritual content than its author has revealed before.

The setting which Stuart Walker has provided is highly characteristic and beautiful. The acting is of the excellent quality to which he has accustomed us, full of delicious shading and inspired by good taste, which is as positive as it is harmonious. The Prophet of George Gaul is highly impassioned and imaginative. The King of McKay Morris and the Queen of Margaret Mower are very noble figures, contrasting finely with the worldly levity of the various persons of their court. Among these the characer created by Elizabeth Patterson stands out in freshness and subtle salience of humor.

Of the two one-act pieces that precede "The Laughter of the Gods," the pantomime "Stingy" is the more notable. It tells a children's story of considerable charm, and, with the aid of Mr. Walker's able company, it made a very pleasant impression. The author, Maxwell Perry, was an aviator with the American Army in France, who disappeared last July after bringing down his second German plane in five days.

Agreeable music for all three pieces was provided by Herbert E. Hyde, organist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Paula Pardee, Pianist, Makes Debut

Paula Pardee, a young pianist, short haired as Leginska, and who, like others since the war, has found her musical models in New York, appeared for the first time in recital yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall, playing a program of four composers. She displayed not so much forceful as sound technique and appreciation of some higher demands, in Beethoven's sonata, op. 27, No. 1, and the G minor rhapsody of Brahms. A Chopin group could have shown more variety, but her present high mark was made deftly in the "Forest Murmurs" and E major polonaise of Liszt.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

In Berlin the Spartacan revolution is reduced to the dregs. Sporadic looting is about all that is left of it. After too long a patience the Government, the forces of order, have struck hard. The Prussian elections to the National Assembly will be held on Sunday. In Prussia, as everywhere else in Germany, the Reds and the Independent Socialists, whose extreme Left they were and who veered toward the Bolshevist faction, are a pitiful, if boisterous, minority. In Baden, as even the notorious Red Freiheit of Berlin admits, the Independent Socialists cast only some 15,000 votes in a total of 1,000,000. Not one of their candidates was successful. Forty-one Centrists, thirty-five Majority Socialists, twenty-four Democrats, seven National Liberals were chosen. The "bourgeois" parties got 72 members to the 35 of the Majority Socialists, who, as against the Bolsheviki, must themselves be regarded as a "bourgeois" party.

In Bavaria the Majority Socialists elected about half of the members of the Bavarian Constituent Assembly; the Centrists and Conservatives 32 per cent.; the German Democrats, a coalition of the old Progressive People's Party with a portion of the old National Liberal Party, 14 per cent. The remaining scant 4 per cent. was "scattering." In Bavaria, as in Baden, the Independent Socialists were beaten ignominiously, were "nowhere," as we say in America.

In Württemberg the Majority Socialists got 52 seats, the German Democrats 38, the Centrists 31, the Conservative coalition, the old Conservative and Reichspartei, 25; the Independent Socialists, 4, and their vote was not even a tenth of that of the Majority Socialists. Encouraging reading for the runagate sons and daughters of Spartacus, Eichhorn and Rosa Luxemburg and Liebknecht.

In Bremen, seized for the moment by the Spartacans, they had been beaten by the Majority Socialists in a local election. In miniature, this is a true picture of Bolshevism, a minority ruling by violence.

A Coblenz dispatch to The Times the other day called the Centrist and Social Democratic candidates in the Coblenz-Treves district men and women "of high calibre, representing all classes," conservative. When Social Democrats, so long anathema, nominate conservative candidates, you begin to doubt if what German statesmen of the old régime said about the political incapacity of Germans was anything but moonshine and prejudice. The twelve Treves-Coblenz Majority Socialist nominees are "a "labor union secretary, a clergyman, "a notary public, a master teleg-"rapher, a School Superintendent, a "wine merchant, a business woman, "a retail merchant, a railroad work-"er, a steel worker, a meat dealer, "a landlord." In short, whatever the differences of their party programs, the Germans outside of a turbulent minority are substantially united for sane and orderly government.

ITALIAN IMMIGRATION.

Our gallant townsman and airman, Mr. La Guardia, Representative in Congress of the Fourteenth District, was stirred into warmth of expression by the fears uttered to the House Immigration Committee by Mr. Densmore, Director of the Federal Employment Service. Mr. Densmore had been "reliably informed" that "hundreds of thousands" of Italian prisoners in Austrian Silesia would be allowed to go to the United States.

Many of us might rejoice instead of shuddering at the prospect, if prospect there were, of those sound and sturdy and willing workers coming to add to the wealth of America and their own. But, as Mr. La Guardia says, "Italy requires all of her people now." He has been told on good authority that Italy will restrict emigration. Italy hopes to develop her extraordinary wealth of Alpine and Apennine water power to make electricity take the place of coal, of which she has none. Professor Francesco Nitti, looked upon by many Italians as a future Premier, prophesied, when he was over here as a member of the Royal Italian Commission in 1917, that within eight or ten years Italy would be the greatest industrial nation in the world.

If the prophecy seems a little enthusiastic, the prophet is an expert in industry as well as in finance. At any rate, Italy, whose sons have done so much of the hard work of the world, will strive to keep them at home to work for her and not for strangers.

THE DRY FASHION.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 14.—If all the rest of the country is to be Dry, and if the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, or more, want prohibition, Connecticut is not likely to attempt opposition.

Does this yearning to "get on the band wagon" explain the wild rush of Legislatures to ratify? It is a wet day when several of them don't join the procession. Yesterday the joiners were five. Ponder the theory put forth in the capital of the Land of Steady Habits. This is what it amounted to: If three-fourths of the States are willing to give up an important State right and cram prohibition down the throats of the few unwilling States, why should Connecticut bother herself about her rights or those of the minority States or the need of prohibition when men are soberer than ever before? Never mind principles or the merits of the case. Prohibition seems to be the fashion, just as drinking used to be. Let's adopt it, not because we want it, but because we "want to be on the winning side."

One would think, seeing the fury of Legislatures to ratify, that the alteration of the fundamental and permanent law was of rather less consequence and worthy of rather less thought than an act to increase the license tax on dogs.

THE GREEK CLAIMS.

The memorandum of the Greek territorial claims laid before the Peace Conference by Premier Venizelos reflects the wisdom with which that statesman's foreign policy has always been characterized. As head of a people whose patriotism and racial consciousness are very strong, a people nearly half of whom are outside the present boundaries of the Greek Kingdom, Mr. Venizelos naturally wants to unite the Greek race so far as possible. But he understands that for reasons partly political and partly geographic complete realization of this aim is hardly attainable, and he presents useful suggestions for settlement of questions in which a Greek population has the principal interest, but which are affected by other interests, too.

The first item is Northern Epirus, now included in Albania, where, according to the memorandum, there is a population of 120,000 Greeks and 80,000 Albanians, some Orthodox Christians and some Mohammedans. Many of the Albanians are anti-Greek, but many others would prefer inclusion in the Greek Kingdom, now democratic and well governed, and including a large population which is Albanian by blood but Greek in national consciousness, to continued union with the less civilized Albanians of the north, who will probably be under a protectorate in any case. Italy has claims here, but Mr. Venizelos is understood to agree to the Italian occupation of Valona and other strategic points, and with good will on both sides it should be easy to come to a settlement.

The Greeks would, of course, like to have Constantinople, where they form a racial group not much smaller than that of the Turks and larger than all others combined. But Mr. Venizelos sees that international interest may dictate an independent State around the Straits, under the supervision of the League of Nations. Such a State would include many Greeks outside of the city, both in Europe and in Asia; indeed, since the passing of Turkish power would probably result in a considerable Turkish migration from Stamboul, the Greeks would probably soon be the largest, as they would in any case be the most active, element in the population.

Greece also asks for Thrace. Here the problem is complicated by the fact that the Greek population is dominant on the coast, but further back considerably mixed with Bulgarians and Turks. Even there, however, it is very strong in the cities and has a great number of villages. In considering the Thracian question the Conference should keep in mind the Bulgarian political record of the last six years; as yet the Bulgarian State is eminently untrustworthy, and we have seen and heard enough of Bulgarian mistreatment of alien populations.

The Greek claim for Smyrna and a considerable strip of territory on the western coast of Asia Minor is supported by the fact that the Greeks here are not only the majority of the population, but are rapidly increasing; and the testimony even of hostile witnesses is that in agriculture as well as in commerce and industry they are overwhelmingly superior to the Turks. Further east there is a Greek population of several hundred thousand, partly along the southern coast of the Black Sea in a strip including the cities of Trebizond and Samsun, and partly in considerable colonies in the interior. Since political union of these regions with Greece is impracticable for geographical reasons, Mr. Venizelos admits that they might be attached to the Armenian State, with whose prospective representatives Greece has lately been in excellent relations.

Finally, "all islands which are eth-"nographically, geographically, and "economically Greek." This means Cyprus, turned over to England by Turkey in 1878, with a population four-fifths Greek, and the Dodecanesus, a group of islands of which Rhodes is the largest, off the southwest coast of Asia Minor, whose population is practically all Greek. These have been held by Italy since the Italo-Turkish War of 1911-12. Cyprus, it is understood, was offered to Greece by England when an attempt was made to get Constantine into the war at the beginning of the Dardanelles campaign.

As for the Dodecanesus, it is hard to see how its retention can be of any use to Italy, especially since the population has often expressed its desire to join the rest of the Greek nation. Italy has economic claims in Asia Minor, but it is understood that here, too, the Greek Government is willing to give quid pro quo by recognizing an Italian sphere of influence in the very inadequately developed territory lying to the east of the Greek population on the west coast. The mines of Herakleia, the commercial possibilities of the south coast, and the development of an interior now held chiefly by the unprogressive Turk should be worth more to Italy than the Dodecanesus.

THE WAR CONTRACTS.

Relations between the War Department and its contractors are strained to the point of hostilities. This is the more regrettable because the contractors are supported by such respectable representatives of business opinion as the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association, and the United States Chamber of Commerce. Their opinion is detached, and therefore more weighty than the similar position taken by the representatives of 400 trades concerned in domestic contracts involving some two billions of dollars and more then a billion of foreign contracts. The prime contractors cannot settle with the subcontractors, neither set of contractors can settle with their banks, and all because contracts were made in a hurry without written formalities, at a time when delay in deliveries would have stopped the war machine. Their bills will not be paid without the enactment of a law to fit the case, and the department wants a bill to put the contractors at its mercy; failing that, it refers them to the Court of Claims. Claims against the Government have a record of lasting a generation or so, and of being paid to estates of contractors. Such relief is of no assistance with a discounted promissory note past due in a bank, and contractors may be pardoned for asking some other method of settlement.

Nobody is asking that wrongful claims shall be paid, either forthwith or at all. The suggestion that the dollar-a-year men gave contracts in which they were interested, and which they were afraid to sign, but which they now seek to have validated by statute which the department opposes, is a reproach to the makers rather than to honest contractors. No one of the several bills pending has that effect. The Dent bill authorizes the department to make settlements in its discretion respecting contracts which have no existence until technical defects are cured, such as the lack of a signature confirming a telephone order which was filled sometimes before a contract could be written. The Chamberlain bill authorizes the department to waive technical defects. Neither bill "validates" any contract without action by the department which there is no way of compelling it to take against its will, or contrary to public interest. What business men are asking is that either side should have the right of review of the department's action by appellate commission within thirty days after settlement of the contract. The department's proposal of appeal to the Court of Claims is worthless to business men with obligations falling due.

The necessity of legislation is due to the purchasing panic which seizes governments under conditions of war. Incredible quantities of supplies are on hand, bought oftentimes regardless of price. The purchase has been reported of 175,243,056 pieces of underwear, 174,087,036 pairs of stockings, and "other articles in proportion." It is inconvenient to pay bills contracted for in that superfluity, as it now seems, but which nobody condemned when the buying was done. The department did not dare to do otherwise, and its action is not under censure. But no patience should be felt with delay in meeting honest engagements, nor should there be any hesitation in dealing promptly and sternly with any contractors who may seek to take an unfair advantage of the Government's war necessities.

GRIEVANCES AIRED.

No American General commanding in France can be a hero to a member of Congress who has grievances of his home troops to air. The American people admire the commander of their armies in France for his soldierly qualities, his skill as an organizer, and his achievements in the field, and they will be reluctant to believe that he abused his great authority by making personal war upon his lieutenants and exalting the unworthy over officers who had distinguished themselves in battle. That is the gravamen of this case which Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts seeks to make out against John J. Pershing in language that sometimes borders on the hysterical and is often undignified. Thus, General Edwards was relieved of his command and ordered home "because he refused to do dirty work" and "remove National Guard "officers who had served until the "last few weeks of the war to make "places for pets of West Point and "Fort Leavenworth."

General Edwards, an Ohio man, took the 26th, or New England, Division to France, and it saw a great deal of fighting under him. In the Boston Representative's account of the sacrifice of General Edwards there is this version of what occurred:

> He was told to his face by a whipper-snapper Chief of Staff of the 26th Division named Duncan U. Major, "If you don't get these National Guardsmen we will get you." And they got Clarence Edwards, but he refused to do their dirty work, and when he came to Boston he owned that town, and as long as he lives he will have a place in the hearts of New England second to no man else.

Mr. Gallivan told the House that he had written two or three letters to General Pershing and had never received a reply from him or "from any "member of his numerous and highly "tailored staff, who from the incep-"tion have slept comfortably in Chau-"mont and Tours." The American people will not approve Mr. Gallivan in the implied aspersion. Nor will the style in which he reflects upon the professional knowledge and courage of "these other fellows," the alleged beneficiaries of favoritism, be admired. As an advocate Mr. Gallivan is addicted to violence of expression and injures his case, if he has any.

It seems that when Representative Gallivan called upon General March, the Chief of Staff, for an explanation of why the New England Division was not permitted to come home, "one "Swing, a Major in the National "Army," was directed by General March to say that it was a matter for General Pershing to decide, that the 26th Division was "not yet on priority." Now, it should be plain to the Representative from Boston that it is for the commander of the army to determine what troops he desires to keep in France for duty and the order of their return to America. That in effect was what Secretary Baker told Mr. Gallivan, but he would not be satisfied, and on a second visit he found Mr. Baker "peevish." He seems to be a hard man to give information to or to please.

Mr. Gallivan's remarks excited several other members of Congress, who took up the cudgels and beat the air for troops from their districts held in France, and for officers who had been wrongly relieved or neglected. We have had a large army in France, more than 2,000,000 officers and men. Are there to be avalanches of complaints and charges by members of Congress and Governors when merit seems to have been overlooked, and when transfers and detentions occur in orders? General Pershing is big and able enough to speak in his own defense, but it will be difficult to hold him responsible for every act of his subordinates. Gentlemen in Congress should be sure of their facts before indicting officers in France for inefficiency, favoritism, and injustice.

BOLSHEVISM AND BEER.

Even in dire extremes and amid the clash of arms, a German is still a German and a Bolshevik a Bolshevik. In the final hours of the collapsing Spartacist rebellion in Berlin, the last building to which the rebels clung with heroic tenacity was a brewery. Four or five hundred men sufficed for the garrison of police headquarters, the principal stronghold; as many held the Vorwärts office, but in the brewery the sons of Spartacus were massed by thousands, and many women among them. Heavy artillery was taken there from other positions, and supplies were banked up for a long siege. The Ebert Government must have breathed a heavy sigh of relief when it learned that this acropolis of anarchy had at last been abandoned. Can it be that the stores of beer in situ had been reduced by previous depredations of the counter-revolutionaries?

Equally characteristic is the story of the four Bolsheviki overtaken and captured in their flight across the roofs from a fallen fortress, who couldn't run away fast enough because they were carrying their typewriters with them. The German revolutionary, educated in the manifold controversies of international Bolshevism, may boast that "trained "abroad his arms to wield, Fitz-Spar-"tacus's typewriter was sword and "shield." But a trifle cumbrous and impedimentary in retreat. However, the evidence is valuable as indicating what a Bolshevik regards as his Lares and Penates. One of the first manifestations of the later tendencies of the Russian revolution was a joyous return to the vodka; in our own country it looks as if the camels are coming, but Greenwich Village will defend its California claret to the last. Give a Bolshevik his beer and his typewriter, and he may be content to leave the bourgeois world at peace.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Comparison Between Incomparables. In defense or explanation of the proposal by the British Government to let the Russian Bolsheviki send delegates to the Paris Peace Conference, it is stated that though the British have no more respect or liking for Bolshevism than anybody else, and detest it at least as much, they think it wise to recognize the fact that the Russians are suffering from a terrible infection, and to make a distinction between the disease and its victims in dealing with the situation which this horrible pestilence has created.

This analogy, drawn from medicine, is a plausible one, but it shares the common characteristic of analogies and misleads, as analogies usually do, because it is neither accurate nor complete. Indeed, this particular analogy is particularly fallacious because it rests on the false assumption that doctors can and do distinguish between the patient and his malady.

To render such a discrimination really possible disease would have to be an entity in itself—something that exists and can be studied and treated apart from the patient. That, of course, is not the case, and while the doctor may, and often does, view a poison or a germ as the cause of a disease, and strives to remove the one or to kill the other, it is not either of these, but the patient, that has what corresponds rather remotely to Bolshevism in the Russians—and in too many other people besides.

Only by a severe straining of terms, however, can Bolshevism be described as a poison or a germ. The similitude fails because on one side of it are tangible and measurable realities and on the other is the immaterial product of disordered brains. It is with the brains, or with the owners thereof, that business must be done.

A Likeness Found in Court. It is not to medicine, but to the more familiar field of law, that the apologists of the British Premier's proposal to recognize the Bolsheviki as deserving of a hearing on the same terms as decent and respectable people should have gone for their analogy. The law does not negotiate with murderers or thieves, and the Bolsheviki are both. Instead, it catches them if it can, takes them into court after it has caught them, determines from the evidence the nature and extent of their guilt, and then imposes and executes sentence in accord with statutes made and provided. That, in theory at least, is justice, and in practice it is the nearest approach to justice yet made by poor fallible mortals. Until the prisoner is at the bar, what he has to say for himself, or what his lawyer has to say for him, is not heard, or, if it is, the transaction is called by the harsh name of compounding felony—a process commonly and rightly held to be both dangerous and injurious to society.

The position of the Bolsheviki with respect to representation at the Peace Conference would be much better and different if they were merely accused of crime. In their case there is no presumption of innocence. What they are and have done is known to all the world, partly from observation and partly from their own laboriously plain and explicit announcements of their own acts and intentions. They are confessedly in rebellion against all constituted governments, and they occupy, therefore, precisely the position of pirates.

A Flag for Keepers of Promises. Out on the Pacific Coast there has been devised and is coming into something like general use a new sort of service flag. It is blue instead of red as to its outer part, and in its star-shaped white centre are placed smaller stars, the number of which indicates that of the returned and discharged soldiers who are employed in the store, factory, or other business establishment at the door of which the banner is displayed. Its message to all beholders, as formulated by its inventors, is "we have kept faith with the men who entered the country's service."

This is a good idea, worthy of general acceptance, and, commendable as was the original service flag, its successor is even more commendable in that its claim to honor is made by those to whom the honor really and directly is due. Of the other service flag—the one that is fast losing its significance with the return of peace and the disbandment of the new armies—that was and is not quite true.

Men were not "given" or "sent" to war by anybody, except in the sense that the country as a whole gave and sent them. In the vast majority of cases they went cheerfully and gladly, and for their going, as for what they did after they were in uniform, all the credit was their own, not that of their relatives or their employers. The people who for one or another sufficient reason remained at home do have, however, the right, which is also a privilege, to make manifest the fact that they are doing now, as in the past, their part as patriotic citizens—that though republics have been charged, sometimes justly, with having short memories for service rendered, the accusation of ingratitude does not lie against those who fly this new flag. As all who joined the colors did not come back to seek again their old positions, there cannot be stars for all of them, but there can be many—enough for all who are alive.

They Should Have Made Things Plain. With the general tenor of the defenses of the Y. M. C. A. that are made by the officials and friends of that organization there will be agreement as to their reasonableness and adequacy. It is obvious that many of the charges now in circulation are based on misunderstandings of the facts, and especially on misunderstandings of the tasks assumed. Certainly it is not fair to criticise the Y. M. C. A. for not doing things that were outside of its province as defined by the Government.

In some way, however, and in a way not yet clearly revealed, these misunderstandings were created and perpetuated, and it was in allowing them to start and to continue that the great and serious mistake was made. And it is a mistake which both the Red Cross and the Salvation Army managed to avoid.

Possibly the fundamental error, the chief cause of the present unpopularity among the soldiers of an institution of high achievements and excellent intentions, was its failure to realize the possibility of criticism and its negligence of precautions to avoid it. Good people often err thus, with results that are equally painful and surprising to them. Nobody can safely present even the appearance of evil, and it is especially dangerous for an organization like the Y. M. C. A., dependent, as it is, for its very existence on public confidence and affection.

THE FATE OF THE CZAR.

If Not Put to Death, Would He Ever Be Restored to His Throne?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest your comment, on the editorial page of this morning's Times, on the improbability of the latest rumor concerning the late Czar, but beg to take exception to it. The two gentlemen who volunteered to share his exile were Dolgorouki and Tatistcheff, (obviously the "Count T." of the rumor,) whose titles of Prince and Count, respectively, are unimportant in view of their ancient Boyar tradition. Both men are of the oldest Russian nobility—until the time of Ivan the Terrible neither feudal lords nor subjects but "free companions of the Czar"—both are of families of note in Russia before the Romanoffs became great, and both or either would undoubtedly have accepted with the entire simplicity of a gallant gentleman such a substitution as is suggested. There is no difficulty whatever to any one who knows them in accepting the story of sacrifice and vicarious execution.

The improbability of the Czar's escape might lie on quite other ground. From a political point of view it is highly improbable that the Czar could ever serve as a rallying point for the monarchical elements of Russia. He was entirely sincere in his abdication, and the world gives him far too little credit for the motives of his action when the full import of the revolution was borne in upon him. To his final understanding of the revolution and, perhaps it is not too much to say, his sympathy with it, it is generally supposed that Alexander Kerensky could testify. Kerensky's intimate association with the Czar, as Minister of Justice of the revolutionary Government, charged with the inquiry into allegations of secret understanding between the Czar, the Czarina, and the Kaiser, gave him opportunities to enlighten the imperial family on the meaning of the liberal movement, of which he was currently reported to have availed himself to the fullest extent.

The imperialist element in Russia, which is still strong, would necessarily look to some collateral member of the Czar's family for leadership. It must not be forgotten that the secret organization which made the Czar's régime so hated and so justly hated, the "Okhrana," (the anti-revolutionary secret police,) not only continues to exist, but exists in the very heart of Bolshevism. It is most natural. This group of unscrupulous men, nominally protectors of autocracy, but in reality wielding their immense power in their own selfish interests, were obliged to enter the inner councils of the Terrorist groups, and were connected, quite obviously, with many of the attempts upon the lives of prominent persons in Russia under the old régime.

Not only would their agents be obliged to play such a rôle in order to cover their real activities, but it was no doubt convenient also to dispose, by this weapon, of reformers within the Government whose plans did not coincide with those of the "secret police." When the revolution unchained popular resentment against the oppressive police, it was the patrolman, the traffic policeman, the man in uniform, and the known criminal detective who suffered—not the secret political police body whose revolutionary disguise at once became readily available as a complete protection. These men rapidly assumed leadership in the most radical parties and gradually resumed connection with the reactionary party, leaving all moderates out of their machinations. They are safe under conditions of disorder, and such conditions may, conceivably, be profitable to them, but their normal atmosphere would be that of absolute autocracy. They are working for a restoration, and their candidate, when the moment is ripe, will be of their own choosing. It is probable that the former Czar would not enter into their calculations—in which case he and his immediate family could only be regarded by them in the light of an obstacle.

Two Benchers of Gray's Inn.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago The Times made a complimentary reference to a great honor that Gray's Inn had done me during my stay in London. It should be added that simultaneously Gray's Inn also elected Paul D. Cravath, Esq., of the New York bar, an Honorary Bencher. This gives me an opportunity to testify to Mr. Cravath's very great service to the cause of the Allies in the last year or more. Leaving behind him one of the most lucrative law practices in America, Mr. Cravath went to London and became the counsel for the Interallied Commission, and while in London I heard many favorable comments upon the skill and tact with which he reconciled at times seemingly divergent interests. In his case the recognition of this venerable Inn is richly deserved.

Temper of the Small Nationalities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial entitled "A Time to Speak Softly," you seem to be displeased with the declaration of Dr. Vesnitch, the Serbian Minister in Paris, that the Serbians will fight if their just national aspirations are not satisfied.

In view of the disclosure of secret treaties among the Allies, to barter away small nations over which they had no rights, and for the liberation of which they were claiming to wage the war, the misgivings of Dr. Vesnitch are justified. The sooner the Allies realize the better, that the small nationalities, whether Serbians, Syrians, or Armenians, will not meekly submit to unjust settlements of their national rights.

THE RED MENACE.

Red is a hue of splendor when controlled
By Nature; but, when used by man, grows bold
And, running riot under freedom's name,
Seeks to destroy
What it cannot enjoy—
Balance, reserve, sobriety of aim—
Tyrannical as roaring, unchecked flame.

Its warmth is welcome, mated with cool
As in the merry holly, velvet queen
The rose, poinsettia's gorgeous Christmas stars
And mountain ash,
Nor does its temper clash
With Autumn's golden, bronze, and copper scars.
Is there a dawn or sunset that it mars?

No; and, employed with art as spice or salt,
Red's sleeping fires enkindle man's, exalt
Pride into action as our own dear flag's
Seven brave stripes;
But, smeared by guttersnipes,
Red makes a web of silk a mess of rags,
Both badge and license of a fool that brags.

The pillar of His cloud has served us
well,
But the Red Sea begins again to swell.
What rod can split its waters if they spread
Despite the hands
Lifted by No Man's Land's
Millions of chosen, freedom-martyred dead?
It is no god, but Satan, who wears red!

A COROT SOLD TO MUSEUM.

"Don Quixote," a Panel Painted in 1868, Goes to Cincinnati.

When Corot visited his friend Daubigny at Auvers in 1868 he painted a series of five panels in a vestibule leading to his own apartment. These beautiful panels were sold after Daubigny's death, and one of them has just been acquired from the Knoedler Galleries by the friends of the Cincinnati Museum of Art to be hung in the museum. The subject is "Don Quixote" and illustrates the pseudo adventure of the good knight when he and his squire Sancho Panza see the poor peasant Cardenic bathing in a brook and, mistaking him for a wild man of the woods, Don Quixote prepares to give him battle. There is the sprightly humor with which Corot's friends were familiar in his treatment of the theme. The little figures of the knight and squire silhouetted against the sky upon a distant hillside have a certain farcical aspect which does not in the least interfere with the noble effect of the composition as a whole, and the gesture of the nude peasant hastily scrambling up the bank is also touched with the comic spirit.

It is characteristic of Corot that he thus could play with the human elements of the scene and not interrupt the lyric beauty of his landscape. He chose the subject of Don Quixote on account of the interest of his friend Daumier in the work of Cervantes, and he adopted the type of figure used by Daumier in his own paintings of Cervantes subjects.

Corot is not usually thought of as a decorator, but he did many decorations in the course of his life. There are the panels he painted for the bathroom of Robert's house at Mantes, taking the brushes of the ordinary house painters who were working on the room out of their hands and producing with them and with the colors they were using a notable series of "Souvenirs d'Italie." In 1847 he painted a number of panels for a little kiosk in the garden of the house at Ville d'Avray, where he made his home with his mother. These were a birthday present for his mother, and on one of them is painted the little house itself. His large "Baptism of Christ," painted on canvas, was a decoration for a Paris church, and he painted four frescoes for the church at Ville d'Avray and fourteen for the village church at Rosny. There are also panels in the houses of various friends. The large picture "The Sleep of Diana" acquired by the Metropolitan Museum about ten years ago was painted at about the same time as the "Don Quixote" just acquired by the Cincinnati Museum, and is in the same mood. It also was painted as a decoration for a room and was ordered by the architect who built Prince Demidoff's house.

The Cincinnati picture has been exhibited in Glasgow, Edinburgh, London, Boston, and quite recently in New York. It hung for thirty years in the house of James Cowan of Paisley, and previously was owned by Mr. McGavin, the well-known Glasgow collector.

ART NOTES.

Portraits of Civil War Officers on View at Union League Club.

At the Union League Club this month a pretty act of commemoration has been accomplished in the hanging of a collection of portraits of officers of the civil war and other famous Americans of the past, whose illustrious names are thrust into the historical background by the events of the last four years.

Mr. Watrous has placed on the wall above the collection the motto, "Lest We Forget," which expresses the whole idea of the exhibition. The artists, however, may fairly share in the remembrance accorded to their sitters. The fine, serious head of Major General George G. Meade, for example, is beautifully painted by the now almost forgotten Thomas Hicks, National Academician, who has placed Meade against a landscape background and enveloped him in a silvery atmosphere as graciously as though he were a figure in a Corot legend instead of the man who met and defeated the best General and the strongest army on the Confederate side.

Major General George H. Thomas is one of Eastman Johnson's best efforts in portraiture. The picture has hung for years in one of the lower rooms of the club, where no one could see it to advantage, and it well deserves its present opportunity to reveal its merits. The other portraits are General Grant by Healy, General Sherman by Chester Harding, General Sheridan by Fagnani, and Admiral Farragut by H. A. Loop.

There is also a group of statesmen painted from life by Francis B. Carpenter for his well-known painting, "The Emancipation Proclamation," brisk studies from sittings of only two or three hours each, and wearing the freshness of a first impression and a first attack upon the canvas.

In the rear of the gallery is another group of diploma paintings lent by the National Academy of Design and painted in accordance with the rule that every Academician-elect must present to the Academy a specimen of his art before he can qualify and receive his diploma. A very interesting little collection has been chosen from among the many owned by the Academy. Here is Sargent's portrait of Claude Monet, eloquent of the massive peasant type of the painter who chose for his field the most evanescent and elusive aspects of the natural world. Here is Gilbert Stuart's unfinished portrait of Mrs. Walley, throwing light on his way of building up the delicate structure of his finished work. Here is an "Autumn Afternoon," by John Kensett, as different as possible from the dry, tight painting of his usual exhibition picture, and here is a fine sheep picture by Henry Golden Dearth. The exhibition is one to visit if one happens to have a card of invitation. It lasts through today and tomorrow.

Argentine Sentiment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an expression of sentiment from the South American republic, I beg to inclose copy of extract from a letter from the Cia. Sansinena de Carnes Congeladas, Buenos Aires, dated Nov. 26. We feel that the people of the United States should understand how the victory was regarded in the South American republic.

A. H. BENJAMIN.

[Inclosure.]

Since we last addressed you the international situation has become defined and the Central Empires have surrendered, their power shattered and broken. An event of such transcendental importance could not fail to stir the spontaneous enthusiasm of the Argentine people—always profound admirers of, and stanch adherents to, the allied cause—and the whole country has, ever since the signing of the armistice, been "en fete." Holidays were declared and commercial houses closed, with the notice attached to their doors, "Closed in honor of the victory of the Allies," and many processions, all provoking the greatest enthusiasm, paraded the streets. There is no doubt that Buenos Aires has never before witnessed such celebrations, and it is difficult indeed to imagine this to be a neutral country.

MAYOR SAYS LABOR CANNOT IGNORE LAW

ASSAILS MAHER'S POLICY

"Cruel and Inhuman," Hylan Declares, Is His Course Toward Residents of Staten Island.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, in which he takes exception to the action of the union in opposing the employment of the police to keep the municipal ferries running during the recent harbor strike.

The Mayor in his letter says:

"I am in receipt of your letter of Jan. 11, in which you assume, on behalf of organized labor, to condemn the action of the city authorities in using city property and city employes to prevent the starvation, not only of the wounded soldiers and sailors in the hospitals on Staten Island and in the other public institutions, but babies and children as well, who were to be sacrificed if necessary as a cold-blooded piece of strategy as a part of the fight plan of certain labor leaders. The city administration and the people of Staten Island had no part in the controversy, neither did the sick and helpless in the hospitals. Before the United States Shipping Board in Washington, on Nov. 29, Captain Maher, representing the committee of the marine workers, stated that the municipal ferries were not and would not be involved, and admitted that there was no dispute about the rate of wages on the hours of employment.

"So far as the city and municipal ferries were concerned there was no dispute about the rate of wages nor the eight-hour day. The city employes, enjoying the benefit of the civil service, are a favored class. They are protected in their wages and in their hours of labor, and in their employment. If under these circumstances civil service does not assure the city service, then civil service is a failure.

Calls Maher Policy "Cruel."

"President Delahunty of the Marine Workers' Affiliation stated, so I am informed, that he recognized the situation of the people of Staten Island, where there were hospitals with sick and wounded, was exceptional, and that they should not be made victims in a fight which was not of their making or under their control. Mr. Maher, however, said: 'I will not consent to any change in policy, I do not care how much suffering or inconvenience may come to anybody; the more inconvenience and the more hardship there is inflicted on the people, the better will be our chance of winning.'

"This is a wicked, outrageous, cruel, and inhuman policy. The Kaiser, because he had physical power to do so, rode brutally over the unfortunate people of Belgium, regardless of the fact that they were no party to his quarrel, justifying himself on the ground of military expediency.

"When Corporation Counsel Burr called attention to the fact that city employes who accepted the protection of the civil service law had a different obligation than men privately employed, Mr. Maher said: 'I have no regard for the civil service law; the laws are of no use to working men anyhow; the only laws that are any good are those passed by the unions; they can be enforced by the unions if the unions are strong enough, and can be repealed by the unions when necessary without being subject to any interpretation by the courts.'

"Your organizations evidently do not understand the facts or realize that the spokesmen for the unions were satisfied to have organized labor in this country regarded as disciples of Lenine and Trotzky, not only defiant of the laws of the land, but willing to sacrifice the lives of the people, who were not only helpless but in no way responsible for the dispute of the marine workers. Many a man who ordinarily would favor municipal ownership is going to hesitate if he is made to feel that because of a dispute between a private employer and a private employe not related in any way to the public service every city employe can be arbitrarily ordered out on strike in defiance of law and order.

"I have been for many years, and am, a member of a labor union in good standing, and every sane, practical effort for better hours and better wages for the toiler has my heart's quick sympathy and approval, but brutal, strong-arm methods can never win any real substantial victory for the cause of organized labor any more than it did for the Kaiser.

Duty of Employes.

"The law of this State places upon the policemen, firemen, engineers, and other employes a special duty to protect the health and lives of all the people. They are public servants who must not be interfered with by any special interests or made the agents of any side of any controversy. When Mr. Maher reckoned to use his great power to cut off the supplies of the sick and helpless of this community and commanded the city employes to back him up, he not only violated the law of humanity, but by attempting to terrorize the city employes into violating their obligations to all the public, Mr. Maher and these employes ran foul of the penal law regarding conspiracies against the public health.

"All signs point to a slowing down of commercial and industrial activity in this country during what is commonly known as the 'readjustment' period. That means we are going to have hard times for a while. One of the things that your organization ought to do for its members is to advise them of the likelihood of hard times that may come so that they may now try to lay aside enough out of their earnings to carry them over the lean period. I have a duty to perform under oath of office and the strong-arm and unlawful methods used by some vicious labor leaders, the profiteers in the necessities of life, the special privilege seekers, and the exploiters of the people, so far as I am concerned, one and all without discrimination will be treated as the law directs."

The sub-committee of the War Labor Board will meet again this morning at 10 o'clock to take additional testimony on labor conditions at this port. The committee was to have met yesterday in the City Hall, but postponement was made necessary by a meeting of the full War Labor Board in Washington yesterday.

An eight-hour day for marine workers was opposed yesterday in Newark at a meeting of the vessel owners' division. The protest was made on the ground that the eight-hour day would mean a large increase in the cost of transportation, and that it might cause the destruction of many of the water transportation lines. The protest in the form of a resolution was forwarded to former President Taft, one of the Chairmen of the War Labor Board. The division is headed by Joseph H. Wood of the Newark Express and Transportation Company. It is said to represent vessel owners in Newark Bay and the Passaic and Hackensack Rivers.

LOSS IN STATE REVENUE.

Deficit Is Due to Falling Off of the Excise Taxes.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—State revenue for the first six months of the current fiscal year ended on Dec. 31 showed a net loss of $1,400,000, Controller Travis reported tonight. According to the records, this deficit was due largely to a falling off of excise taxes and a like deficiency in revenue returns from the other indirect sources, excepting corporation and direct State taxes, where gains of $1,014,852 and $751,406, respectively, over a corresponding period in 1917 were shown.

Owing to war conditions affecting the high cost of everything required to carry on State Government, increased expenditures were necessary in all of the different departments save the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial, where reductions aggregated $327,391.

TRINITY PEWS FREE TO ALL AFTER MAY 1

Vestry Adopts Dr. Manning's Suggestion to Make the Church Democratic.

SET ASIDE OLD TRADITION

Thirty Pews Are Held in Fee Simple, but Owners Are Expected to Give Them Up.

The vestry of Trinity Parish, it was announced yesterday, at a meeting on Monday night adopted by a unanimous vote the suggestion of the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the rector of the church, that the renting of pews in the parish be abolished.

Dr. Manning urged this in a sermon on Dec. 29 of last year, arguing that the church should act upon the lessons of democracy taught by the war to abolish apparent discrimination in favor of members of the congregation from whom money was received by the church in pew rentals. The "free pew" idea, which has been the cause of many controversies in the past, came into general favor immediately after Dr. Manning's sermon, and the Vestrymen decided to act at once. On Monday night they adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, (1) That the seats in Trinity Church, St. Paul's Chapel, and St. Agnes's Chapel, so far as the same are under the control of this corporation, be made free, as are the seats in the other churches of the parish, and that this action be taken as an expression of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the victory which He has granted to us, and as an evidence of our desire to do all that we can at this great moment in the world's history to make the Church the central place of human fellowship which it should be.

"(2) That a committee be at once appointed to formulate a plan for carrying this purpose into effect, and to report the same at the next monthly meeting of the Vestry in order that those who at present rent pews may have the notice of this change in policy."

Some Held in Fee Simple.

Some of the seats cannot be made free by the act of the Vestry as they are owned in fee simple by individuals or estates. The opening of rented pews to the general public will begin on May 1 at Trinity, as they have always been rented for a year in advance from May.

The members of the committee appointed by the Vestry are: David B. Ogden, clerk of the Vestry; George F. Crane, controller of the parish, and Francis S. Bangs, Vestryman and member of St. Agnes's congregation.

Pews have been rented at Trinity Church for the last 221 years. The revenue derived from pew rental has not been great, it was said, as the rates had not been raised for fifty years, and it is not expected that the church will suffer financially to any material degree from the change in policy.

"It is a striking sign of the times," said Dr. Manning yesterday, "that in a parish with such venerable traditions as Trinity, and where old customs have so strong a hold, this action should be taken unanimously with the desire to make the life of the church as truly democratic as it should be. The proposal made recently that Trinity should take this action aroused widespread interest. Great numbers of letters were received from people in this and other cities commending the project. These letters have come from Jews as well as Christians, and not a few of them from men not connected with the church. The feeling expressed in all of them is that the discontinuance of rented seats will help to bring the church nearer to the life of the people.

"There are in Trinity about thirty pews which belong in fee simple to individuals or estates. Some of them have been held from time immemorial by the families which now own them. It is hoped that some of the owners of these pews will present them to the church, and that all of the owners may be willing to co-operate in the newly adopted policy."

CRUISER IN WITH TROOPS.

St. Louis Brings 346th Field Artillery—3 Transports Due Today.

Another United States cruiser, the St. Louis, arrived yesterday from Brest with troops, having taken thirteen days to make the voyage on account of storms. The cruiser had forty-five officers and 1,255 men of the 346th Field Artillery, including twenty-six ill and wounded. The regiment, consisting of 1 per cent. regulars and the rest men who were trained at Camp Lewis, Wash., saw service in Flanders with the 91st Division. It returned under the command of Colonel Samuel Frankenberger.

The men are chiefly from Minnesota, Washington, California, and Montana. Their Colonel is a native of Charleston, W. Va., and has been in the regular army since 1902. They were met at the pier at West Twenty-fifth Street yesterday morning by twelve Salvation Army officers, including the McAllister sisters, Violet and Alice, who were the first American women to go to France and make doughnuts for the soldiers.

The transport Belgic is due at Pier 58, North River, foot of West Sixteenth Street, at 10 o'clock this morning with eighty officers and 3,188 men, including a number of New Yorkers in the casual companies. The transport Wilhelmina is also due today at Hoboken with 1,000 officers and men from the 84th and 86th Division, including 177 sick and wounded. The President Grant, with more than 3,000 officers and men, including 231 wounded, is expected to arrive late tomorrow night and land her troops at Hoboken on Saturday morning.

CITY CHAMBERLAIN QUITS.

Mayor Announces Resignation of Alfred Johnson on Dec. 26.

Mayor Hylan announced yesterday that on Dec. 26 City Chamberlain Alfred Johnson resigned his office to take effect upon the appointment of a successor. Mr. Johnson gave up his $12,000 a year place in order to resume active business with Anderson, Burns & Co., a Stock Exchange firm in which he is a special partner.

In his letter, Mr. Johnson asked to be relieved from his duties on Dec. 31, but Mayor Hylan urged him to remain until he could find a successor, so, it is said, Mr. Johnson consented to remain for a short time longer. At the City Hall there is talk that the place may go to the Mayor's Secretary, Grover Whalen.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Johnson writes:

"As you have known, I have for some time felt that the pressure of my personal affairs might make this necessary. Consulting only my inclination, I should have preferred to have remained as long as you would wish it. Now I find I cannot remain longer without a greater sacrifice of my material interests than the situation seems to require. Permit me again to express my appreciation of the high honor of my appointment and of your constant co-operation and support in the discharge of my duties."

Mr. Johnson was appointed City Chamberlain by Mayor Hylan on Jan. 2, 1918. He has been prominent in Democratic politics and was Under Sheriff under Sheriff Nicholas J. Hayes.

PREPARE FOR BIG STRIKE.

Garment Manufacturers Expect 35,000 to Go Out Monday.

A general strike of 35,000 garment workers, members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is inevitable, according to sentiments expressed last night at a meeting of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, held in the Hotel Martinique for the purpose of enlisting the support of local independent manufacturers, about 500 of whom attended the meeting. Polling on a strike vote by the unionists begins today and ends Saturday, and if the manufacturers have correctly sensed the situation, Monday should see the garment industry again engaged in a bitter war.

A meeting of all the dress contractors in the city will be held tonight in the Hotel McAlpin to consider the threatened strike.

Last night's meeting was presided over by Morris Weiss, President of the association. The principal speaker was Harry A. Gordon, the organization's general counsel. Judging from questions put by the independents and by their applause, it was thought that they will, for the most part, stand back of the association in the coming fight.

"The gentlemen of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association have come to their decision," said Mr. Gordon, "and they have determined that they will to the limit of their resources, financially and morally, do everything they can to resist this invasion of their rights by the union. We have organized along every line, and the members of this association have pledged themselves in writing to help each other to the limit. We regard this fight as one that will decide the question of life or death for the garment industry. We shall stand together, so that we will not fall."

HENRY J. DUVEEN, ART DEALER, DIES

GATHERED MORGAN WORKS

Later Paid Millions for Famous Collections—Indicted in 1910 for Customs Violations and Heavily Fined.

Henry J. Duveen, senior member of the firm of Duveen Brothers, international art dealers, with houses in New York and Paris, and also in London until 1914, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 907 Fifth Avenue, after an illness of some time. Mr. Duveen, who was in the sixty-fifth year of his age, was one of the leading art critics in the world.

The firm was started in the '70s in London by Joel Joseph Duveen, his brother, who kept a small shop in Oxford Street, where he sold Dutch potteries and later dealt in period furniture. Before his death in 1908 he was knighted by King Edward as Sir Joseph Duveen, in recognition of his generosity in building a gallery for the pictures Turner, the great artist, had left to the nation.

Henry J. Duveen, the youngest brother, came to New York City about forty years ago and opened a small art shop in John Street, where he handled antique silverware, ivory carvings, rare porcelains, period furniture, and Oriental rugs. He was very successful from the start, and soon entered partnership with the elder brother under the name of Duveen Brothers. They moved into large quarters at Broadway and Eighteenth Street, and a Paris branch was opened. From there the firm moved to Fifth Avenue and Thirty-first Street and a few years ago to its present premises at 720 Fifth Avenue.

Mr. Duveen came to New York when the art life was in a state of transition, and he became closely identified with the formation of most of the celebrated art collections in America, such as those belonging to James A. Garland, J. Pierpont Morgan, Mr. Altman, Mr. Gould, Mr. Widener, Henry C. Frick, Mrs. Hamilton Rice, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The firm brought to this country furniture which was a heritage of the most luxuriant period which France has ever known. Carvings, bronzes, hangings, and all manner of adornments were combined by the firm in remarkable decorations.

In 1909, Duveen Brothers disposed of their general business in interior decorations and sold their warehouses, and devoted themselves exclusively to the selling of the extremely fine art works. About this time the firm made some purchases which startled the art world. They purchased the art collection of Rudolphe Kahn for $5,000,000, which works were passed into the great American collections like those of the late J. P. Morgan, Mrs. C. P. Huntington, and Mrs. Archer M. Huntington, and a short time later they purchased the Maurice Kahn collection, valued at $2,500,000. Henry J. Duveen's name will be especially remembered because of his efforts in the formation of the late J. Pierpont Morgan's collection, part of which was later purchased by his firm. They purchased the Morgan collection of porcelains for $3,000,000 and were the agents through whom Henry C. Frick bought the Fragonard panels out of the Morgan collection for $1,425,000.

Many years ago Henry J. Duveen was decorated with the Order of the "Legion d'Honneur" as a mark of appreciation by the French Government of his many artistic endeavors.

All members of the firm figured in actions brought by the Government in 1910, it being alleged that they had brought in many costly articles of art without paying the full amount of duty. In civil litigation they paid over to the Government $1,200,000, one-half being said to be for duties due the Government, and the other half for the penalty for failure to pay these duties. Indictments for violation of the customs regulations were also brought, all pleading guilty. Henry J. Duveen, who was said at that time to be suffering from Bright's disease, was fined $15,000; Benjamin J. Duveen, a nephew, was fined a like sum, and Louis J. and Joseph Duveen, also nephews, of the Paris and London houses, were fined $10,000 each, they having voluntarily come to America and entered a plea of guilty. Laxity of the administration of the customs regulations was said to be partly responsible for the undervaluation of the importations.

Mr. Duveen is survived by his wife and son Lieutenant Geoffrey Duveen, of the British Army, who is at present a passenger on the steamer Lapland, due here next Sunday on leave to visit his relatives.

WESTERN MARKETS LOST TO GERMANS

100 Notion Buyers in Convention at Waldorf-Astoria Discuss America's Opportunities After War.

German-made needles, pins, and hundreds of other dry goods "notions" of Teutonic manufacture will not make their reappearance in the markets of the Western Hemisphere for a generation or more, it was declared at yesterday's annual convention of the Jobbers' Association of Notion Buyers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria. Big opportunities for the American manufacturer and jobber in developing production and sales of these articles of everyday household use were predicted.

E. C. McCabe of the Arbuthnot-Stephenson Company of Pittsburgh presided at the meeting, which was attended by 100 notion buyers from the country's largest wholesale dry goods jobbing firms.

Leo Lichtenstein of the Vulcanized Rubber Company of this city, who had as his subject "Market Conditions and After-the-War Prospects in Notions," said that a new era had arisen for the American manufacturer, as well as the jobber. Instead of the manufacturer being confined to forty-eight States, and the jobber to a few of his intermediate States, they now had the entire Western Hemisphere in which to do business. The speaker said that no time should be lost in establishing American merchandise in foreign markets.

"Before the war," Mr. Lichtenstein said, "Germany predominated in Canada, Central and South America, because the employes of German manufacturers worked from fourteen to sixteen hours a day, at one-half the wages we paid. This prevented us from getting a foothold, and if the same conditions are ever to return, although I do not expect they will, I believe it will at least require many years before Germany can again transact business in these quarters.

"A few days ago a business man, who, I believe, is in this room, said to me that 'export business was, in his opinion, a 'rainbow,' for the reason that it would not last. He considered that the financial arrangements of this country were not adequate to transact business with foreign countries. I am now prepared to say to this gentleman that the people of the United States, whenever they make up their minds to accomplish something, always succeed, as has been demonstrated by our army and navy. There is no doubt in my mind but that means will be devised whereby this country will be in a position to do business in the Western Hemisphere and do it successfully."

The speaker predicted that with world markets open to American goods the day of surplus stocks here was gone, and for that reason he thought the United States would be able to uphold its present standard of wages, or something near their standard, which he considered the nucleus of prosperity, and indicating that the situation with respect to business conditions in the future was bright.

The program called for discussions on the attitude of the notion buyers toward merchandise of enemy origin, and what foreign markets notion buyers should draw from for supplies, with German and Austrian sources a thing of the past. It seemed to be the general opinion that the time was distant when goods of enemy production would make their appearance here in quantity, while the suggestion was made that American manufacturers set to work to produce notion supplies formerly procured abroad.

Discussion of price tendencies and buying policies for 1919 brought out that most of the notion buyers held that lower prices were inevitable, while several manufacturers, present in their capacity as associate members of the association, gave it as their view that labor, raw material, and manufacturing costs generally would operate to hold selling prices close to last year's levels.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President—Vertner M. Smith, Carter Dry Goods Co., Louisville, Ky.; Vice Presidents—N. B. Dieterich, Tootle-Campbell Dry Goods Co., St. Joseph, Mo., and Otto R. Rick, of Adam, Meldrum & Anderson Co., Buffalo; Members of the Executive Committee—Emil Stern, Sanger Bros., Dallas, Texas, and J. E. Osborne, Johnston & Larimer Dry Goods Co., Wichita, Kan.

Dr. T. Iyenaga of the East and West News Bureau spoke last night at the annual dinner of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, held at the Waldorf-Astoria, when F. A. Patrick of Duluth, Minn., presided. The dinner was attended by 900 dry goods jobbers, textile manufacturers, and selling agents from all sections of the country.

"I am confident," Dr. Iyenaga said, "that a League of Nations will not stand in the way of Japan's occupying the paramount position in the Far East—the fruit of her patient and laborious progress during the last half century. All of us know that some concern has been felt among the British people about the construction of the 'freedom of the seas.' Nor are we unaware that the American people will never consent to see the efficacy of their cherished Monroe Doctrine impaired in any way by a League of Nations."

John S. Lawrence of the Commission for Relief in Belgium told of the large supplies of old clothing accumulated by his organization for relief work abroad. The other speakers were Dr. Stockton Axson, Secretary of the American Red Cross, and the Rev. Isaac J. Lansing of Ridgewood, N. J.

The annual convention of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association will open this morning at the Waldorf.

RAILROAD TAX RATE STANDS

New Jersey Board Denies Application to Have It Reduced.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 15.—In a decision that will effect a saving of several hundred thousand dollars to the commonwealth and to the various municipalities, the State Board of Taxes and Assessment today denied the application of all the principal railroad systems operating in New Jersey for a reduction in the "average tax rate." The original rate certified to the board for Jersey City, and used in connection with the rates from the other taxing districts in arriving at the "average tax rate," was $1.73. The "average tax rate" computed by the board was $2.37. The railroads asked the State Board to substitute the rate of $1.29 for that of $2.37.

In the matter of Jersey City's request for a total increase of more than $30,000,000 in the levy on all railroad property of the second class in that municipality, the board allowed an increase of $185,870 in the value of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal property, raising it from $2,253,137 to $2,439,007.

$500,000,000 NEEDED FOR RAILROAD LOANS

Congress May Even Be Asked for More to Cover Improvements and Extensions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Another appropriation of $500,000,000 or more will be asked of Congress soon by Director General Hines for the Railroad Administration's revolving fund, to be used mainly in extending loans to railroads to cover the extensive program of improvements and extensions, for which more than a billion dollars probably will be spent this year. Most of the half billion dollars originally appropriated for the revolving fund was spent in financing improvements or purchase of equipment last year. Loans generally are to be made at 6 per cent. and will be repaid to the Government.

Mr. Hines, in a statement today, said that the Railroad Administration's function of financing necessary improvements, as differentiated from the function of the current operation of railroads, "is the reason which will require an early request for a large appropriation."

He explained that capital expenditures of railroads in 1918 and 1919 for extensions of lines, new buildings, bridges, cars, locomotives, and similar purposes are calculated at about $1,627,000,000, including $350,000,000 estimated as necessary in 1919, and $1,227,000,000 authorized for 1918. Of the authorized capital expenditures budgets last year, only $588,000,000 was actually used, and $689,000,000 remained to be spent in 1919.

This means that the Railroad Administration's program for railroad extensions and betterments in 1919 calls for an outlay of $1,039,000,000, or three times as much as was spent by all railroads annually for several years before the war.

In view of the approaching Fifth Liberty Loan campaign, officials believe the railroads would have considerable difficulty floating publicly sufficient securities to pay for improvements which the roads and the Railroad Administration consider advisable to bring the lines up to a high state of efficiency. For this reason, Director General Hines advocates continuance of the policy of Government assistance, regardless of whether Congress extends the period of Federal control.

Referring to the contemplated capital expenditures for 1919, Mr. Hines said:

"While a substantial part of this total may not actually be expended during the calendar year 1919, it is apparent that it will be necessary during the year for the Government and the railroad companies to provide in the aggregate a very large amount of money for these improvement purposes. A careful analysis of the situation is on the point of being completed with a view to preparing an estimate for Congress for the necessary appropriation to meet this situation. While it is impossible at present to make an exact estimate of how large an additional appropriation will be needed, it is possible that it may exceed $500,000,000."

URGES ERIE BASIN CLAIM.

Construction Company Wants Award for Land Taken by State.

The hearing in the matter of the claim of the First Construction Company against the State for the appropriation by the State of about 1,500,000 square feet of the Construction Company's property in the Erie Basin, Brooklyn, for a terminal for the new State Barge Canal, was resumed before Judges Ackerson and Paris of the Court of Claims in the Trial Room of the Bar Association yesterday.

The witnesses included Edward Hinman and Walter Lindler, the latter an attorney employed by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. At one point in the testimony Deputy Attorney General Mone asserted that the transaction of buying the property by the First Construction Company, was arranged by a syndicate and that its purpose was to obtain from the State a special or extravagant award for its property.

Counsel for the claimants interjected that the syndicate was one of bankers. Mr. Mone learned from Lindler that the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, in making the loan of $1,400,000 for the purchase of the property had paid $900,000 in cash and took a mortgage for $500,000, in addition to the assignment of the award made by the State for its appropriation of the property. It is this award which has been held up by a decision of the Court of Appeals which ordered the present trial of the issue. The hearing will be resumed this morning.

WILL HEAR TAX LIEN SUIT.

Justice Faber to Determine Foreclosure Under Sale by City.

Justice Leander B. Faber will be the first judicial officer to consider an application for a judgment of foreclosure upon a tax lien purchased at a sale by the Department of Assessments and Arrears of New York City since the investigation into the methods of the purchasers of these liens by the Mayor's Committee on Taxation. In the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday he set next Monday for the hearing. The action of Justice Faber may have an important bearing on future proceedings of the Mayor's committee.

Theodore I. Schwartzman, who has been examined in the proceedings had by the committee, is attorney for the plaintiff, Paul Weisbart of Brooklyn, who has brought an action to foreclose a lien amounting to $74 against Jacob Aaron and others, residents of Brooklyn. The lien was upon a plot on Ridgewood Avenue, Richmond Hill, and was for $74 and was sold at the Bureau of Assessments and Arrears in Long Island City on June 27, 1916.

INHERITANCE TAX DECISION.

Referee Decides Federal Law Is Not Retroactive.

Edgar M. Cullen of Brooklyn, ex-Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, acting as referee in an action brought by the trustees under the will of Anson Wales Hard, Sr., has decided that the Federal inheritance tax law passed on Sept. 8, 1916, is not retroactive, and does not apply to trust estates created prior to the passage of the law. Mr. Hard died at his home in Lawrence, L. I., in 1917. In addition to his own estate there passed at his death two other large estates held by him in trust for the benefit of his children.

The heirs paid $75,000 to the Government as an inheritance tax on Mr. Hard's own estate, but objected to paying any tax on the trust estates, both of which were created prior to Sept. 8, 1916. The matter came up yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn when application for the fixing of allowances for the attorneys and guardians who appeared for the children was filed.

Auctions of British Wool.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., has been informed by its London representative that auction sales of Australian and New Zealand wools will be held in that city as early as possible, probably beginning in April, at the rate of 100,000 bales per month, or more if the market requires. Prices will be fixed not very much lower than present issue prices, and efforts are being made by the British authorities as well as the Dominion and French to stabilize prices. The proposed State purchase of the South African clip has been abandoned and wools from South Africa will be liberated from all import restrictions. There will be no relaxation of the present order on South American wool, as the authorities are opposed to encouraging such imports on account of the exchange position in South America.

Reports on Men's Neckwear.

Information received from salesmen who are now out with the Spring lines of men's broad silk neckwear, is to the effect that business is not as good as was expected. In some sections, however, quite liberal buying is being done by the retail stores. In other sections buyers are holding off in anticipation of lower prices. The local trade is very steady, and there are reports of good buying in all quarters.

Women's Skirts Selling Well.

The last few days have seen a decided increase in the sale of women's skirts. It was said yesterday that, so far, this year's business for Spring delivery is as good as and on some lines better than it was last year. In the South the sales are very brisk, but in the West and on the Pacific Coast business is said to be more quiet. In nearly every case buyers are asking for a high grade of merchandise, and there is very little discussion in regard to price. Fancy plaid wool skirts and novelty silk goods are meeting with much favor.

Ban Off Castor Beans and Oil.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., is advised by the War Trade Board that the supervision of castor beans and castor oil is no longer required. The alliance therefore cancels its Bulletin 24 in so far as it pertains to the commodities in the United States. Should there be any further importation of the articles consigned through the alliance they are to be released as heretofore. Importers should inform their representatives in foreign countries to release the alliance and consignee on further shipments in order to obviate the necessity of releasing them through the alliance and the resultant charges.

Woolen and Worsted Men Meet.

Suggestions were made yesterday for helping exports in woolens, through the newly formed Textile Alliance Exportation Company, to the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers at a meeting held in the Waldorf-Astoria. The plans thus far are in a tentative stage. A report was also presented showing the way in which the Government is proceeding with regard to canceled contracts, and assurance was given that everything would be done to keep in observance the rule that deliveries of fabrics shall be free on board mill. In addition to this the association resolved to increase the number of its Directors from fifteen to twenty-one in order to have a wider representation of interests.

Naming of prices for underwear for next Fall was expected yesterday, but most of the mills deferred doing this until next Monday. Three of the mills at Utica gave out price lists on a few of their lines yesterday and the figures interested the jobbers in the market. The prices are higher than last year's, but are below those recent current. Thus the standard 16-pound union suit which was offered last Spring at $14 is now priced at $16.50. A short time ago it was $18. On two-piece suits the new prices are proportionate. The levels are said to represent only a fair profit above production costs, and it was stated yesterday will be followed, according to grade, by mills from other portions of the country.

Gray Goods Prices Soften.

A spurt of activity was shown in the local gray goods market yesterday. Fair sized sales were reported of printcloths, as follows: 39-inch 68-72s at 13 cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 10½ cents, and 60-48s at 9¼ cents. These prices showed a weakening from those of the day before, and, what was regarded as significant, the sales were from first hands. More of the 64-60s, furthermore, could have been had at the price stated, but buyers withdrew some of their bids at the figure and were not disposed to pay more than 10 cents. In sheetings there were a number of sales of 36-inch 5.50s at 9½ cents and of 48-square, same width, four-yard, at 13½ cents.

Demand for Trimmings.

Reports from various sections of the country to manufacturers of dress trimmings are that the demand in the retail stores is for the better grades. Judging from the orders that are being received from the men on the road, these goods are going to be used very extensively this season. Beaded and flat braid girdles are very popular this year. Among the high-class retail shops there is a good sale for double-headed fringe, and combinations of beads and fringe with screw tassels.

Chemical and Drug Reductions.

Large accumulations of foreign botanicals, especially from North African ports, continue to be shipped to New York and London as rapidly as ships can be obtained for the purpose, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Heavy receipts here have reduced greatly prices of some products. Importers of menthol have cut the price 75 cents to $1 per pound. Quicksilver has been reduced $5 to $110 per flask. Declines in coal tar crudes and intermediates are also noted. In heavy chemicals there was a slight reduction in the prices of caustic soda, sal soda, and soda ash.

DR. PRICE ASSAILS HEALTH BOARD HEAD

FIXES BLAME ON THE MAYOR

Objects to Taking Industrial Hygiene Work from Dr. Harris.

The action of Health Commissioner R. S. Copeland in removing the work of industrial hygiene from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, of which Dr. Louis I. Harris is director, is part of a "consistent determination of the present health authorities to destroy the constructive work accomplished in the department under the previous régime," said Dr. George M. Price, Director of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control, in a statement issued yesterday.

Dr. Price, who, in 1915, was a member of the Advisory Committee of the Board of Health, and also a chairman of the special committee which reported on the advisability of the creation of a Special Division of Industrial Hygiene, also charged in his statement that the work of the Bureau of Child Hygiene has been materially curtailed by Commissioner Copeland.

"Commissioner Copeland claims that the reason he transferred the Division of Industrial Hygiene to his own office and away from Dr. aHrris was, in the first place, because the work of the division has to do with general sanitation, ventilation, &c., and, therefore, should not be in the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, and, secondly, that he himself is interested in the work of the division and wishes to have it under his control," said Dr. Price.

"The first argument is, of course, absurd. If the Division of Industrial Hygiene must be transferred from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases because it has to do with light, ventilation, and general sanitation, then the Commissioner to be logical should transfer the functions of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases as to typhoid fever to the Department of Water Supply because typhoid is a water-borne disease, and all the activities against typhus fever to the eDlousing Station of the Bureau of Disinfection, because it is well known that typhus fever is carried by 'cooties.'

"Since the advent of the new administration the work of the Department of Health has ben woefully disorganized. From the first, the Mayor has openly shown his contempt for experts and, as the Health Department contained the largest number of these experts, the Mayor seemed to be determined to destroy almost all the constructive work that had been so successfully done under the previous administration."

Health Commissioner Copeland, in a statement issued yesterday, said that the work of the new Industrial Hygiene Division which he intends to create falls into the Sanitary Bureau, because it has to do with heating, plumbing, &c., into the Bureau of Child Hygiene because the question of child labor is involved, and into the Bureau of Preventable Diseases because of the necessity of considering industrial life as a factor in the production of disease. As to the latter bureau, the Commissioner said he had never had in mind the taking away of the study of industrial life as a factor in the production of disease from that bureau.

The public must understand, said the Commissioner, that the Bureau of Preventable Diseases is charged with the protection of the citizens against diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, typhoid fever, infantile paralysis, pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis, hydrophobia, cholera, and typhus. "'It seems,'" he says, "that the bureau has a large contract on its hands without taking over the new division which, in no way whatever, supersedes or destroys the functions the Bureau has always had."

British Flannel and Shirt Prices.

A cablegram from Consul General Skinner at London is to the effect that the Director of Wool Textile Production has arranged three qualities of standard civilian flannel at fixed retail prices—2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., and 3s. 6d. per yard; shirts of same at 11s. 6d., 12s. 3d., and 14s. 11d.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

PREMIER COSTUME CO., INC., manufacturer of dresses at 12-14 West 32d St., has made an assignment to Marcus Helfand. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against the company by the following creditors: Alfred M. Steiner, $150; J. M. Nelson, $400, and M. H. Schwartz, $5. Frank Drucker of Marcus Helfand's office said that the liabilities are $35,000 and the assets $25,000. The failure was caused by purchasing materials at the high prices prevailing before the armistice was signed and the influenza.

CULLEN MOTOR TRUCKING CORP of 1 Broadway.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against this corporation by the Pierce-Arrow Trucking Co., Inc., a creditor for $525. The Cullen Motor Trucking Corp. made an assignment on Dec. 24 to Charles W. Walter.

BELL TALKING MACHINE CORP. of 44 West 37th St.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against this company by these creditors: Bronx National Banking Corporation, $500; Edwin C. Barnes & Bros., $45, and J. T. Aghassi, $6.

ROCKAWAY WOODWORKERS' INC., manufacturers of toys of 949 Broadway, has made an assignment to William Henkel, Jr., and Irving S. Dorf. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against it by these creditors: Abraham Robinson, New York, $1,000; M. P. McNamara, Far Rockaway, $6, and Smith Brothers Plumbing Company, Far Rockaway, 20 cents. Liabilities are $14,000 and assets $5,000.

ANTONIO MENDEZ of 206 West Ninety-ninth Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $5,000 and no assets. The liabilities are all on judgments taken in January in Kings County in favor of five persons for injuries in an automobile accident at Rockville Centre, L. I. The judgments are in favor of James Fessler, $3,000; Irene Fessler, $500; Frank Fessler, $500, and Rose and Charlotte Ryan, $500. He said that he was taken by the Sheriff of New York and lodged in Ludlow Street Jail on a civil process on the judgments. He was employed at $17 per week by a company, but that ceased when he went to jail, therefore he asked to file the petition as a poor person.

MORRIS MARKS, a grocer, at 29 Suffolk Street, has filed schedules in bankruptcy with liabilities of $14,840 and assets of $5,793, consisting of stock, $2,500; carriages, &c., $930; machinery, &c., $250; accounts due, $2,000; stocks, $100, and cash in bank, $13. Among the largest creditors are the Autocar Sales Company, $1,100; Adolph Rosenfeld, $1,575, and the Procter & Gamble Distributing Company, $1,182.

Among the largest creditors are the Mutual Textile Mills, $1,185; Royal Silk Mills, $1,091, and Excelsior Silk Mills, $575. The amounts of claims of various other creditors are given as unknown.

GRAND HAT WORKS.—Judge Mayer has appointed Jacob Sharpiro receiver for Aaron Malev and Benjamin Feinsilber, individually and as co-partners under the firm style of Grand Hat Works, at 41 Bond Street, in $500 bond. The liabilities are said to be $2,100 and the assets $1,200.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull, with Strong Spots —Steel Orders Larger Than Expected.

Stocks which were able to make particular appeals to traders in yesterday's market displayed a fair degree of strength, but their number was in the great minority, and the general tenor of business was dull and uninteresting. While prices were irregular, reflective of few influences at work on either side, the day's news was not without encouraging items as affecting industry. Reports from steel trade centres were to the effect that buying since Jan. 1 had been larger than the general impression outside the trade indicated, although it was noted that orders were more for the purpose of completing delayed work in structural and other lines rather than in the way of new expansion efforts. The shipments of finished products in December are reported large, which probably had considerable to do with the substantial decline of orders on hand reported by the Steel Corporation as of Dec. 31. The Iron Age noted, however, that mill operations were not quite as active taking the industry as a whole, as a week ago, and mentioned signs of a surplus of labor at various points. A deduction to be made from reports from steel centres is that the slackening of operations which naturally followed the cessation of war work has so far been gradual and has not afforded a comprehensive survey of what is yet to come. It stands to reason that with 60 per cent. activity at plants there is less employment than when war work was being carried on at a maximum pace. Still, if the backlog of accumulated commercial orders has been supplying work for 60 per cent. of the present great capacity of the country's mills during the weeks when price uncertainty checked new buying, it may well be that the plants will continue as active until the demand for steel at home and abroad begins to expand.

The railroad stocks continued apathetic, and traders hardly looked for any other attitude until new positive developments came to light in the discussion of the railroad future now going on in Washington. The counsel for the Association of Railway Executives offered another argument before the Senate Committee against the proposal of five years of Government control by referring to the possible large and overlapping debts which the roads would have at the end of the period. The Street never took kindly to Mr. McAdoo's proposal, and events of recent weeks have gone to support the contention in financial circles that a railroad plan may be worked out in two years. The steadiness of railroad stocks and bonds has appeared to reflect a belief that prolonged Government control will not be allowed by Congress, but in this sentiment alone there has been nothing to promote a forward movement in the securities. What railroad shareholders are waiting for is the presentation and public comment on a program which will insure the carriers of an unincumbered future, and progress to this end may be looked for in the next few weeks.

The cotton market suffered another substantial decline, and speculators and spinners both seemed to study more closely than before the figures on consumption in December. With hostilities over it was not unnatural that war manufacturing in textile lines declined last month as compared with the same month last year, but market comment indicated that the cotton trade was somewhat disappointed over the extent of the decline and was impressed also by knowledge that operations in foreign mills had slackened. Call money again loaned at 4 per cent., and the foreign exchange market attracted interest through an advance of Swiss rates.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Popularizing Foreign Securities.

In anticipation of increased listings of foreign securities in the near future, the New York Stock Exchange began issuing yesterday a list of the bid and asked closing prices for all foreign Government and municipal securities traded in. This list, which appears elsewhere, will be put out each day. It is the belief that the market here for foreign securities will broaden greatly within the next year, and in preparation for the increased business the Stock Exchange only recently installed a bond ticker service. Eventually the New York market may have a scope as to world securities similar to that in London and Paris.

The Rise in Stromberg Carburetor.

An explanation for the strength which has been apparent in the shares of the Stromberg Carburetor Company ever since they were first listed on the Exchange last week, was furnished yesterday when it was announced that the Studebaker Corporation had closed a contract with the carburetor company whereby all its cars would be equipped with this device. On the basis of somewhere near capacity production by the Studebaker Company this means the sale of about 40,000 carburetors.

Jump in American Sumatra.

American Sumatra Tobacco was a centre of interest in the early trading yesterday, an advance of more than 8 points being recorded on a comparatively small turnover. The immediate reason for the rise was the announcement of the redemption of $850,000 three-year 5 per cent. notes, part of an original issue of $1,000,000, which were met out of cash funds.

Westinghouse Notes to be Paid.

It has been announced by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company that its $15,000,000 one-year 6 per cent. notes which mature on Feb. 1 will be paid upon presentation at the office of the Central Union Trust Company. It has been provided, however, that those note holders who so desire may exchange the maturing issue for new 6 per cent. notes running for one year from Feb. 1, the indenture securing the new issue being similar in form to that of the old maturity. The announcement of the new note issue into which the old is exchangeable has been made through Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Company, states that on Jan. 1 of this year the company had on hand unfilled orders amounting to more than $95,000,000, exclusive of munition orders amounting to $3,500,000. At the close of business Nov. 30, 1918, the company's assets totaled more than $110,000,000, while the liabilities were about $41,000,000. Net income of the Westinghouse Company for the eight months ended with Nov. 30, after payment of capital stock, State and municipal taxes, was about $19,018,000. Interest charges for the same period were $1,567,680, leaving nearly $17,500,000 applicable to Federal income, excess profits taxes, and dividends.

A Turn in the Market.

The setting of a price of $92 a share at which employes of the United States Steel Corporation might subscribe to the 1919 allotment of common stock served in a measure to check not only the pressure against this company's issues yesterday, but also tended to a strengthening of the entire list during the early trading. Apparently the Street has been waiting for some determining factor of influence and found reason for greater confidence in security values when it was realized that there was to be no postponement of the Steel subscription until after the dividend meeting at the latter part of this month. The declaration of a dividend by the Steel Corporation is now looked forward to expectantly as giving a line on what may be the course of business conditions during the coming year, according to the interpretation by the Directors.

A Suggestion.

One of the many plans for the future use of Government constructed ship tonnage that has received more than passing attention is the suggestion that the standardized steel ships which were launched to beat the German submarines should be chartered to private operators on a time charter arrangement. In connection with this plan it has been proposed by shipping men that the question of efficiency of operation, wages, and discipline would be solved provided the Government supplied and paid officers and men employed on the ships.

Money Rates Easy.

There was plenty of loanable money on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 4 per cent. despite the proximity of the Fourth Liberty bond payment date today of 30 per cent. of subscribed amounts. Ease in the money situation has been manifest for some time despite the fact that credits were tense in anticipation of Governmental demand. Bankers hold an optimistic view of conditions because, while purchasing of raw materials has not been much in evidence on a large scale, there has, nevertheless, been no stagnation in retail trade, buying continuing on a scale that has done much to reduce inventories.

Texas Company.

Substantial demand for the shares of the Texas Company appeared in the early trading yesterday, one block of 1,700 shares changing hands at 190. The opening quotation was 188¾, and on good buying the price advanced steadily to 195, easing off in the later trading to 194 at the close. Consistent accumulation of the issue in the past few weeks has caused it to move in a course of its own and independent of the fluctuations of other oil share prices.

Pabst Brewing Company.

As the result of the apparent trend of sentiment in the direction of prohibition the Pabst Brewing Company of Milwaukee has sent a circular letter to preferred shareholders offering them the opportunity of tendering their stock for sale to the company on or before Jan. 20. This offer shows that the company is planning to reduce its outstanding securities, which consist of the $1,590,100 7 per cent. cumulative preferred, $9,764,000 common stock, and $1,574,400 first mortgage serial 4 per cent. bonds. The preferred stock is subject to redemption at $115 and has preference as to the company's assets and dividends. In well informed quarters it is understood that tenders to the company should be not lower than $100.

Dirigible Ends Long Coast Flight.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 15.—The navy dirigible C-1 arrived here at 2:45 o'clock today, completing its flight from Far Rockaway, N. Y. The airship left Far Rockaway early Sunday and made overnight stops at Norfolk, Georgetown, S. C., and Brunswick, Ga.

WILL SHARE ITS PROFITS.

Guaranty Trust Adopts Plan for Benefit of Employes.

The Guaranty Trust Company adopted yesterday a profit-sharing plan providing for payments to its employes and officers in addition to their regular salaries. One of its principal features is that through a primary fund the employes of the company are to receive compensation, based on the earnings of the company during any calendar year, in which fund the officers shall have no share. The plan further provides for the setting aside, after dividends, of a secondary fund in which both the officers and employes will share.

The purpose of having two funds is to provided that the employes, through the primary fund, shall be assured of a fairly uniform payment of additional compensation. Through the secondary fund, in prosperous years, the employes will have an increased share and both employes and officers will benefit with the stockholders in the prosperity of the company. This affects more than 2,200 employes and gives each a direct personal interest in the operation of the company.

RAILROAD DEFAULTS ON BOND INTEREST

Clover Leaf Receiver Fails in January Payment on $9,075,000 Prior Lien Issue.

GOVERNMENT HAS FUNDS

Trustee Look for Early Settlement of Differences with Federal Administration.

As the result of the refusal of the receiver for the Toledo, St. Louis & Western Company to accept the Railroad Administration's recent allocation of equipment, a refusal which the United States District Court in Toledo, Ohio, upheld, it became known yesterday that the January interest on the company's $9,075,000 prior lien 3½ per cent. bonds due in 1925, has not been paid. The Farmers Loan and Trust Company as trustee of the mortgage has sent to holders of the bonds a communication which discloses the facts concerning the nonpayment of the interest. It reads in part:

Inasmuch as the receiver's cash had all been turned over to the Government, the receiver found himself without funds as the date of maturity of interest upon the prior lien bonds approached, and in an endeavor to finance himself pending his controversy with the Government he saw fit to file a petition with the above court (the Federal Court at Toledo) seeking to have $1,000,000 of certificates issued with priority over the mortgages, including the prior lien mortgage, in order to raise the money wherewith to pay interest on the mortgage, principal, and interest of equipment obligations and other receivership expenses during 1919.

We have been notified under order of the Court of this application, communicated at once with holders of some of the large blocks of prior lien bonds, and at their request interposed an answer vigorously objecting to the issuance of certificates, as did the trustee under the first mortgage. The result of the whole complicated situation was that the Court authorized the receiver to endeavor to settle his controversy with the Government by accepting a very much smaller number of cars, and pending the negotiation in that direction the Court adjourned the application for receiver's certificates.

We are expecting any day to hear from the receiver that he has settled his controversy with the Government, as he was very hopeful about it, and in case the controversy is settled he is also hopeful of obtaining necessary financial assistance from the Government pending the negotiation of a just compensation contract to cure this default in interest and to finance the receivership in the immediate future.

The Toledo, St. Louis and Western was the first railroad to resort to the courts in an effort to refrain from paying war prices for equipment which was alleged to be unnecessary and which the Director General of Railroads had ordered the road to purchase. The action attracted considerable attention in the railroad world, and it was intimated yesterday that the outcome of the discussion between the Clover Leaf receiver and the Railroad Administration might have some bearing on the attitude of other carriers which have had heavy equipment allocations thrust upon them.

FOR EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Meeting to Explain Use of Trade Acceptances Here Tuesday.

A campaign to expand the use of bank and trade acceptances in business throughout the country is to be launched next Tuesday at a meeting in the Merchants' Exchange hall of the Woolworth Building, when W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Paul M. Warburg, his predecessor in office, are scheduled to speak. At the meeting the American Acceptance Council is to be formed to succeed the American Trade Acceptance Council, which has been developing the field for the last two years. Bankers, corporation heads, and members of business firms and credit organizations from many cities to the number of 250 are expected to attend.

The formation of the new council has been completed after several months' work by a committee including Beverly D. Harris, Vice President of the National City Bank; Lewis E. Pierson, President of the Irving National Bank; Percy H. Johnson, Vice President of the Chemical National Bank; Jerome Thralls, President of the Discount Corporation, and J. H. Tregoe of the National Association of Credit Men. When the organization was proposed by the committee, it was learned, applications for membership came from all parts of the country.

"The council's chief purpose," said Mr. Johnson yesterday, "is to carry on the educational work in the use of acceptances which was first undertaken by the old organization. No differentiation will be made between bank and trade acceptances in the organization's work, and it is expected that within a short time branch councils will be established in various cities. It is proposed to have an Executive Committee of fifteen members, and the actual business of the council will be conducted by a Managing Director, assisted by a Director of Publicity."

Mr. Johnson said that virtually every bank and trust company in New York, as well as many banking firms and commercial houses, had already gone on record as supporting the new council.

NOTE MORTGAGE INCREASE.

Title Company's Business Shows Dullness of Real Estate Market.

In his report to stockholders of the New York Title and Mortgage Company at their annual meeting yesterday Harry A. Kahler, President, stated that the company's outstanding guaranteed mortgages increased in 1918 $821,976 to $41,095,687, reflecting the dullness of the real estate market in the last year. Mr. Kahler asked stockholders to use their best efforts to aid in the development of the American Trust Company's business. The new concern, which is owned by the New York Title and Mortgage Company, will soon open for business.

Mr. Kahler said that in the year 1918 the demands of the Government for funds to carry on the war greatly restricted investments in mortgages, as well as in other securities. The volume of the company's new mortgage business was, in consequence, reduced. Nearly all loans were for small amounts, but with more than the normal margin of security value, he said. He added that money for mortgages is still in limited supply, particularly for the larger mortgages, but the amount available had been increasing quite noticeably within the last few weeks.

REPORT TOBACCO PROFITS.

British-American Company Shows Net of £3,140,174 for the Year.

In the year ended with September, 1918, the British-American Tobacco Company reported net profits amounting to £3,140,174 after allowing for income and excess profits taxes. The company has also declared a final dividend of 6 per cent., making total disbursements or 30 per cent. for the year.

In their annual report the Directors say that the factories in England in the course of the year have been largely engaged on supplies for troops abroad. Despite the advanced costs of tobacco leaf the net profits for the year of £3,140,174, compare with £3,105,002 in the preceding year before the deduction of excess profits in that period.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A. E. Ames & Co. are offering at 85.91 and interest to yield approximately 5.50 per cent. $1,625,000 Province of Quebec 4½ per cent. coupon gold bonds due June 1, 1946.

Hughes & Dier have prepared an interesting booklet entitled "Silver and Mexico," which contains information about modern mines in that country in their relation to the future supply of silver.

Lindley M. Garrison, former Secretary of War and now receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, will speak in the Bond Club at its luncheon Jan. 24 at the Bankers Club.

Ensign Hamilton Pell has received his discharge from the service and is back at his desk with Baker, Carruthers & Pell.

Edward S. Moore, who was Assistant Secretary of the Guaranty Trust Company when he joined the navy for the period of the war, has become associated with Gude, Winmill & Co.

J. B. Harris & Co. have prepared a special circular on Cities Service debenture bonds, which is ready for distribution.

"Poor's Complete List of Securities Maturing Jan. 1, 1919, to Dec. 31, 1921," is ready for distribution. Because of increased costs the list is being issued annually and is limited to 1,000 copies.

It is expected that the earnings statement of the Cities Service Company for December and the twelve months of 1918 will be issued early in the coming week.

ARMOUR & CO. SHOW DECLINE IN INCOME

SURPLUS IS $69,366,766

Delivered to Government and Allies Goods Valued at $241,000,000 from Plants Here.

Armour & Co. in the annual report for the year ended Nov. 2, 1918, show a net income of $15,247,837, as compared with $21,293,563 in 1917, and $20,100,000 in 1916. Gross income after deducting all charges, with exception of interest on bonds, debentures, and current loans, was $26,128,610. The gross sales in 1918 amounted to $861,000,000, an increase of $286,000,000 over 1917. Attention is called to the fact that despite the increase, the net profit in 1918 was 1.8 cents on each dollar of sales, as compared with 3.7 cents in 1917. The net profit for the year was at the rate of 9 per cent. on the average net capital invested, and was 14.7 per cent. on the common stock, after provision for the preferred dividends. The report says that increasing demands for additional business facilities made it necessary to reinvest more than $13,000,000 in the business, this being the balance after the payment of the preferred stock dividend and 2 per cent. on the common.

The company's surplus is shown in the report to be $69,366,799, as compared with $56,126,680 in the year previous. The balance sheet places the inventory at $150,380,067, an increase of nearly $50,000,000 over 1917. An increase also is shown in net working capital from $108,869,281 in 1917 to $173,092,199 last year.

In commenting on the company's affairs J. Ogden Armour in his report to stockholders says:

"Our profit account shows that we, along with the consumer, have suffered because of high prices. Our business is predicated on a rapid turnover of a big tonnage at a small margin of profit, and high prices are not conducive to quick turnover. We are helpless in the matter of reducing prices. They are high because of the heights to which live stock and labor have gone. Our labor costs last year were $20,000,000 more than the preceding year. The same number of pounds of live stock cost us in 1918 $100,000,000 more than in 1917. The United States Government, through the agency of the Food Administration, compels us to pay a minimum of $17.50 per hundred pounds, live weight, for hogs, which cannot, at that figure, produce cheap bacon, pork, and other hog products, and cattle at $16 or more per hundred pounds on the hoof cannot produce cheap beef. Stock raisers assert that such prices are necessary to pay them for the increased cost of production, and we realize the need of prices which will encourage continued agricultural effort. While the extraordinary demand from Europe continues there is little prospect of lower prices.

"The United States Government, through the Food Administration, formulated on Nov. 1, 1917, regulations limiting our profits in a more drastic manner than was prescribed for any other industry. Thus our profits were limited to 2.5 per cent. on our volume and 9 per cent. per annum on the capital invested in the meat-producing lines. We were able to earn only a very small fraction of the amount allowed on volume, and only about one-half of the authorized return on invested capital.

"During the year we delivered to our Government and to its European associates food products of a value of $241,000,000 from our plants in this country alone. We sent forth thousands of tons of food and got back a minimum of complaint, and not a word of criticism as to the efficiency of our service."

FOR CONVERSION OF BONDS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary Glass of the Treasury Department today wrote to Chairman Kitchin of the House Ways and Means Committee informing him that more than a billion dollars' worth of 4 per cent. Liberty bonds of the First and Second issues remained in the hands of bondholders unconverted, and stating that it was Mr. Glass's intention to submit to Congress a provision intended to extend the conversion privilege. The letter read:

"Washington, Jan. 15, 1919.

"Dear Mr. Kitchin:

"The total amount issued of 4 per cent. bonds of the First Liberty Loan converted was $568,318,450, of which there remain outstanding as of Dec. 31, 1918, in the hands of the public, unconverted, after deducting bonds purchased and retired by means of the Bond Purchase Fund and bonds held by the War Finance Corporation, $200,680,900.

"The total amount issued of 4 per cent. bonds of the Second Liberty Loan was $3,807,862,350, of which there remain outstanding as of Dec. 31, 1918, in the hands of the public, unconverted, after deducting bonds purchased by means of the Bond Purchase Fund and bonds held by the War Finance Corporation, $866,999,000.

"Total 4 per cent. Liberty bonds outstanding as of Dec. 31, 1918, $1,067,680,000.

"Under the terms of the contract with the holders of these bonds the conversion privilege expired on Nov. 9, 1918, six months after it arose. Every effort was made by Secretary McAdoo to give publicity to the fact of the conversion privilege and its approaching expiration, and that privilege remained open for six months. My belief is that those who did not avail themselves of the conversion privilege within the period fixed by the terms of the contract which the Government made with them fall among the class of small holders who are unaccustomed to bond investments, and who, on account of the very wide distribution of Liberty Loan bonds, were not reached by general publicity and could not, except in the case of registered bonds, be reached by department circulars.

"Insistence upon the letter of the contract will result in loss to a group of patriotic bondholders toward whom a special duty of consideration exists. The United States has suffered nothing by their failure to act promptly in the exercise of the conversion right, and it is my judgment that the conversion privilege should be extended. I propose to submit to your committee in connection with the bond bill, which it will be necessary for me to present at an early date for your consideration, a provision intended to extend the conversion privilege, so that the higher rate of 4¼ per cent. shall be effective from the semiannual interest payment date next succeeding the date of presentation for conversion.

"I am writing this letter to you now and giving it to the press in order that the holders of these bonds may be informed of my views concerning the matter.

"I am sending a copy of this letter to Senator Simmons. Very truly yours,
"CARTER GLASS."

DRAWS REBUKE FROM TAFT

Chairman Questions Good Faith of the Company—Dispute Over Back Pay Award.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The authority of the National War Labor Board to enforce its decrees now that hostilities have ceased was challenged today by counsel for the Bethlehem Steel Company, who had been asked to appear to answer complaints that awards made by the board during the war had not been carried out.

Joint Chairman Taft of the board questioned the good faith of the company and said its present attitude "colors the whole situation with a sense of injustice which makes one yearn for judicial power to compel compliance." He added that the board did not have this power, but would meet Saturday with employes' representatives to determine "what there is possible to be done in this situation."

Representatives of machinists and electricians employed by the Bethlehem Company complained that awards of back pay were not carried out, and that men who complained through the Plant Committees established by the board were discharged.

"Our position is that the award does not apply today," said Guy Currier of Boston, attorney for the company, "though during the war we were prepared to accept anything the board recommended. We don't feel now that this board can go on adjusting grievances between employes and managements of the industrial plants."

Chairman Taft read a letter which the board received last September from E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Company, who expressed willingness to enforce the award and allow the men to organize committees. He said, however, that the payment of the back wages under the increases would be contingent upon the readiness of the War and Navy Departments to increase the payments to the company for the production of munitions.

"Now doesn't the Bethlehem Company intend to show any good faith with the board?" Mr. Taft demanded. "You entered into the agreement to enforce the award in this letter. I don't consider that your present attitude shows good faith. You intend to flout what has been done."

Mr. Currier objected to the construction placed upon the action of the company by Mr. Taft. He said that the War and Navy Departments had not allowed increased payments on the company's war contracts and asked that a special section of the board be appointed to investigate the matter.

The attorney said the Bethlehem company was laying off large numbers of men and that the production of munitions which was its principal business had entirely stopped. He said that members of the shop committees created by the board had not been discharged in larger numbers than had other employes.

"This is a very painful situation to me," Mr. Taft said in adjourning the session. "We wish to secure what these workers are entitled to have under our previous award. The present attitude of Mr. Grace and his company in refusing to accept after what has been done colors the whole situation with a sense of injustice which makes one yearn for judicial power to compel compliance, but this board has not that power. I declare this meeting adjourned now to meet on Saturday with the employes' representatives to determine as nearly as we can what there is possible to be done in this situation."

IRON INDUSTRY IMPROVING.

Peace Time Business Larger Than Supposed, Says Iron Age.

The Iron Age states that an incomplete analysis indicates that the aggregate of peace-time business is larger than generally supposed, with bookings on Jan. 1 probably less than 10 per cent. below those of December. The Iron Trade Review also is more optimistic in its review of the week. The former says in part:

"Generally the producer describes conditions as better than expected. The trade has been so long used to full steam activity that it is not yet accustomed to the present period of low demand. With operations not quite so good as a week ago, it is to be expected that reports are numerous of plant shutdowns. The industry cannot, of course, expect 60 per cent. operation and not have idleness. A surplus of labor has already become apparent at steel works, with offers to work at lower than existing wage schedules. The December estimated output of steel ingots, 2,992,306 tons, is, with the same number of working days, only 2 per cent. less than the November production and there was no noticeable stocking of the rolled product, a fact which is favorable."

DIVIDENDS.

At the meeting of the Directors of this company held in London to-day, it was decided to recommend to the shareholders at the Annual Meeting fixed to be held January 28, 1919, payment on January 31, 1919, of a final dividend of six per cent. free of British income tax upon the Ordinary shares, making with interim dividends already paid 30 per cent. for the year ended September 30, 1918, as against 30 per cent. for the year ended September 30, 1917.

In their annual report, the directors say that the factories in England have during the year continued to be largely employed on supplies for troops abroad and the American factories have also been fully employed. The cost of leaf and other materials has materially increased during the year and the employment of much larger capital has been necessary. Net profits for the year after deducting all charges and expenses for management, etc., and providing for income tax and estimated excess profits duty for the year are £3,140,174. 8.10. as against £3,105,002.0.6. for the previous year before providing for excess profits duty for that year the amount of which is estimated at £560,000. After paying final dividend of six per cent. carry forward will be £3,005,578.4.4.

The directors have also decided to pay on January 31, 1919, with final dividend for past year, an interim dividend of six per cent. for the year 1918-1919 on the Ordinary shares of the Company, free of British income tax. Transfers received in order at registered office in London up to January 15, 1919, will be in time to be passed for payment of dividends to transferees.

The issuance of additional bonds is carefully safeguarded under the mortgage.

COMPANIES APPEAL IN CABLE SUITS

File 64 Exceptions to Federal Judge Hand's Decision Denying an Injunction.

HOLD RULINGS WERE FAULTY

Declare Suits Were Against Burleson and Carlton and Not President, as Court Decided.

Federal Judge Learned Hand yesterday filed the formal order dismissing the suits of the Commercial Cable and Commercial Pacific Cable Companies for an injunction restraining the Government from taking over the lines. There was also filed a list of sixty-four exceptions to the court's action by the companies. The companies secured permission to appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The exceptions were prepared by William W. Cook, solicitor for the companies. They say that the court erred in his decision, that there was an error in holding that the suits were against President Wilson of the United States because in fact they were directed against Postmaster General Burleson and his assistant, Newcomb Carlton; because of the statement that the lines were taken over on Nov. 16, and that the action was within the provisions of the joint resolution of Congress of July 16, 1918.

It is further claimed that the court was wrong in stating that it had no power to question the act of the President and by holding the seizure of the cables necessary for the national security and defense, and that it was not within the power of the court to review the action. It is contended that the holding that the court had no jurisdiction to review the system of Government under the Constitution was unworkable and unthinkable.

After criticising the decision of the court in the matter of compensation at 6 per cent. without first obtaining an appraisal of the physical property and an allowance for earning power, the exceptions state that the court greatly erred in not holding as material and as a cause of action the intention to intermingle and consolidate the two companies with those of its competitor together with its good-will, to the end that the plaintiff might be forced or persuaded to abandon competition and to acquiesce in the defendant's plan for Government ownership of all of the cables.

It is further contended that the court should have held that within the spirit and purpose of the joint resolution of Congress the war ended when an armistice was signed, and that it was an error not to hold that the seizure of the cables was unreasonable and arbitrary and adversely affected the future income and the properties of the plaintiff. The court should have held, according to the list of errors, that it was illegal to take the plaintiff's property and to deprive the plaintiffs of moneys and profits without due process of law and without just compensation when there was no real public need for them. It is expected that the appeal will be heard by the Supreme Court on Feb. 3.

LIQUIDATION WORKS TO DEPRESS COTTON PRICES

Prices Recede From 85 to More Than 100 Points Under Heavy Selling Orders.

Prices in the cotton market yesterday again broke sharply under very heavy selling. The liquidation was heaviest through the morning session, when cotton appeared in such large quantities that the break, extending to all contracts, disclosed declines ranging between 50 and 75 points under Tuesday's closing. Selling later in the day widened the price declines 85 to 106 points. The selling was general, being participated in by local, Wall Street, and Southern operators, as well as from outside speculative sources, the pressure from the South following the weakness in futures at New Orleans. There was but little, if any, support to the market, the principal buying by Liverpool interests on the scaledown, as well as by spot houses, seemed to play but a minor part as a halt in the declining values of the staple.

First prices showed January unchanged at 26.90c., with declines in the other options running 3 to 21 points below the preceding day's final prices. Almost immediately after opening prices had been marked up the selling movement worked values back substantially, and with little cotton to meet the liquidation went on establishing new lows. Around midday a covering by the shorts and profit taking by early bears rallied prices 20 to 30 points, but this was short lived, with a renewal during the afternoon of the early selling. At 2:30 January was selling at 25.84c., a decline of 106 points; March, 24.50c., off 90 points; May, 22.99c., down 97 points; July, 22.04c., down 94 points, and October at 20.05c., off 85 points from the closing on Tuesday. A rally in the last half hour netted some gains from these prices, and the closing was fairly steady at levels but nominally above the bottom prices of the day. No exports were reported yesterday, and spot cotton, at 30.05c., was down 85 points.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was a strong tone to the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, the result of a good demand that made its influence felt from the outset. The effect was substantial net advances at the close in the active stocks, with one or two exceptions. In the latter, Marine preferred was most notable. Business was fair in volume and centred in the industrials. Railroad issues were quiet, with prices steady. Steel shares, with the exception of Bethlehem B, were firm throughout the session.

To the Holders of Five Per Cent. First Mortgage Gold Bonds

OF

The Northwestern Terminal Railway Company

Issued under the Mortgage indenture dated July 1st, 1906 (and supplements dated September 27th, 1909, and January 2, 1915), made by said Company to The Mercantile Trust Company (now Bankers Trust Company), as Trustee:

The Northwestern Terminal Railway Company (herein called the Terminal Company) has defaulted in the payment of the semi-annual interest due January 1, 1918, July 1, 1918, and January 1, 1919, upon the above issue of bonds. The 1916 and 1917 State taxes upon its property are unpaid and delinquent. We are advised that its terminal railway properties in and near Denver, Colorado were taken, and now are, under Federal control. All the property of The Denver and Salt Lake Railroad Company (herein called the Salt Lake Company) was placed in a creditor's bill receivership in the District Court of Adams County, Colorado, in August, 1917, and such receivership is still in effect, except that the railway and transportation system of the Salt Lake Company is in Federal control. Under existing agreement whereby the Salt Lake Company occupied and used (and the Federal Railroad Administration is now occupying and using) properties of the Terminal Company, the Salt Lake Company agreed (in effect) to pay, as rental, among other things, the interest upon the Terminal Company's First Mortgage Bonds and taxes upon its property.

The undersigned, holding and representing large amounts of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Terminal Company, believe it to be essential that the holders of such bonds be in a position to take prompt and concerted action for the protection of their interests, and therefore have agreed to act as a committee for that purpose. This Committee is the result of an agreement whereby former committees organized separately, in New York and Denver, have been dissolved, and succeeded by the undersigned.

It will be to the advantage of the Bondholders promptly to deposit their Bonds with the Committee in order to participate in the benefits to be gained by concerted action on the part of the majority of the Bonds. Bondholders are therefore urgently requested to deposit their Bonds, with the January 1, 1918, and subsequent, coupons, on or before March 1st, 1919, with The International Trust Company, Denver, Colorado, the Depositary under an agreement, dated December 18th, 1918, providing for such deposits; or with Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York, the Agent of the Depositary. Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued therefor.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the Deposited Bonds to the holders of the certificates of deposit representing the Bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or to its Agent above mentioned.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

A new apartment house will soon be erected in the choice residential section of Fifth Avenue, at the south corner of Sixty-sixth Street, in the same block with the former Colonel John Jacob Astor mansion, now owned by Vincent Astor. The property to be used for this latest tall Fifth Avenue structure is owned by the Grant B. Schley estate, including the large Schley residence, on the immediate corner, and three smaller dwellings on Sixty-sixth Street. Adjoining the Schley house on the south is a residence owned by the Astor estate, and the remainder of the block, including the Sixty-fifth Street corner, is occupied by the large Astor house.

Associated with the Schley estate in the operation are William Henry Barnum & Co., which has erected several large buildings, and J. E. R. Carpenter, who has been associated in the erection of a number of the newest Park Avenue apartment houses. The property has a frontage of 50.6 feet on Fifth Avenue, being the frontage of the Schley home, and, with the three smaller structures, 160 feet on Sixty-sixth Street.

The new apartment will be eleven or twelve stories in height. It has been entirely financed, the Barnum Company furnishing the building loan. Mr. Carpenter and Cross & Cross will be associate architects. The plan will probably involve but one suite to a floor of about twenty rooms. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by the Summer of 1920.

The brokerage details of the transaction were arranged by the firm of Pease & Elliman. On the Sixty-third Street corner of Fifth Avenue is a twelve-story apartment completed a few years ago on the old Progress Club site, and further north are four other tall multi-family houses.

Daniel H. Jackson Buys $200,000 Midtown Loft.

An important deal in the midtown loft zone was closed yesterday by Daniel H. Jackson, operator, who purchased from the B. F. & G. Realty Company, 106 East Nineteenth Street. The property consists of a twelve-story loft building occupying a plot 25 by 100, located 175 feet east of Fourth Avenue. It is fully leased, with an annual income of $22,000 and was held at $200,000.

$30,000 Investment Purchase on Greene Street.

J. Early Wood has increased his holdings in the lower part of the city by the purchase of 81 Greene Street from the Wilton Holding Corporation. The property consists of a five-story loft with electric elevator, on a plot 25 by 100. Negotiations are pending to lease the building to a Manhattan firm for a term of years at $3,600 per annum. The property was held at $30,000. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale.

Negotiations Pending for Sale of Braender Apartments.

Negotiations are reported pending for the sale of the ten-story Braender apartment, on the southwest corner of 102d Street and Central Park West. The house, which was erected by the late Philip Braender, occupies a site fronting 100.11 feet on Central Park West and 117 feet on 102d Street. It has been valued by the estate at $400,000. It has an annual rent roll of about $52,000. In 1912 Mr. Braender sold the property to the New York Real Estate Security Company, which acquired more than 100 houses on the upper west side before it was forced into bankruptcy. After prolonged negotiations Mr. Braender bought back the property.

Education Notes.

P. S. 62, Manhattan, will hold its graduating exercises at 8 P. M. on Jan. 29 in the school auditorium, Hester and Essex Streets. There will be nearly 600 graduates.

There will be a teachers' rally at P. S. 171, Manhattan, 103d Street and Fifth Avenue, at 4 P. M. on Jan. 17. The Teachers' Union will present the main features of the salary bill, which will receive the backing of organized labor.

The Art Department of the Bronx Evening High School calls attention to the establishment of a new class in photo-retouching and catalogue drawing. It will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:45 P. M. to 9:45 P. M., beginning Feb. 4. The registration is open to young women and men preferably interested in this work through the fact that they are actively engaged in an office or studio where such work is done. Application for entrance may be made any evening from Monday to Thursday after 7:30 P. M. The school is situated at Prospect Avenue and Jennings Street.

Dr. James P. Haney, Director of Art in High Schools, will speak on "The Great Art of Spain and France" in the lecture room of the Metropolitan Museum of Art at 4 P. M. on Jan. 17. All teachers of French and Spanish are invited to attend.

The Board of Superintendents has asked the Board of Education to authorize the organization of another probationary school for unruly boys in P. S. 37, on East Eighty-seventh Street.

The Advisory Board on Industrial Education has asked the Board of Education to authorize the appointment of a field secretary at $3,000 a year.

The Board of Superintendents has recommended that the by-laws of the Board of Education be amended so that no deduction shall be made from the salaries of teachers whose absence from school is due to death in the immediate family, provided that said teachers submit the fact in writing and that the Principal attaches the statement to the payroll and notes the absence thereon.

The Heads of Department Association of Brooklyn presented to the Schedule Committee of the Federation of Teachers Associations at its meeting on Jan. 13 a statement of its position in regard to salary revision. It assumed that a head of department or assistant to Principal should receive compensation greater than that given to the holder of any license the requirements for which are less than for the license of assistant to Principal. The proposed federation salary schedule for 7A-9B teachers gives $1,600 minimum, $2,500 maximum, plus $300 bonus for boys, and for heads of department or assistants to Principal $2,600 minimum, $2,900 maximum, plus $300 bonus for boys. It pointed out that under these schedules, a 7A teacher of boys at maximum salary would receive $2,800, while a head of department in a girls' school would begin at $2,600, although holding a higher license. The evaluation of the license of assistant to Principal is not localized—one status in a girls' school and another status in a boys' school. It is a certificate of higher rank than that held by any class teacher in the Kg.-9B group, and if the principle of priority of license is not to be abrogated, the minimum salary of a head of department must be greater than any salary given to a Kg.-9B teacher, whether that salary be an initial sum or an initial sum augmented by a bonus. The minimum salary of the head of department or assistant to Principal must be at least $2,900.

Post Office Notice.

Postmaster Patten has been advised by the Third Assistant Postmaster General at Washington that money orders may be issued for the parts of Palestine and Syria occupied by the allied armies, but the extent of the territory thus occupied is not precisely defined by the authorities abroad, and it is inferred the occupied territory is continually enlarging. In cases where money orders are intended for places not known to be within the occupied territory they will still be forwarded if desired, but at the risk of the remitter, and in such cases the British Government, which acts as intermediary, has been requested to cancel the money order, if it proves not to be payable, with the view of refunding it to the remitter.

BOARD CANCELS BIDS FOR TRANSIT LINE

Commission Finds Its Engineering Force Insufficient to Prepare Drawings.

RECALLS OTHER CONTRACTS

Action Follows Curtailment of Force Due to Lessened Appropriation—Whitney Discusses the Situation.

Following the action of the Board of Estimate in curtailing the appropriation of the Public Service Commission so that many of the commission's engineers had to be dismissed, the commission announced yesterday that it had canceled the bids received last week for the elevated part of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District line and had recalled from the Board of Estimate three contracts which had been awarded for the construction of a part of the elevated structure in Westchester Avenue.

In explaining the action of the commission Acting Chairman Travis H. Whitney said that when the bids for the Fourteenth Street line were called for by advertisements it was expected that there would be enough engineers to furnish the contractor structural drawings within four months, and so a provision to this effect had been inserted in the contract. Because this provision could not be kept with the reduced engineering force it was deemed advisable to cancel all the bids and to readvertise later. Concerning the Westchester section of the rapid transit lines, Mr. Whitney said, it became necessary to include the contracts in the main contract, with the result that the work will be greatly delayed. The part of the work which the commission has expressed anxiety to complete comprises an extension across the New Haven Railroad tracks and the Bronx River.

In discussing the result of the enforced dismissal of more than 370 employes, many of them engineers, Mr. Whitney said:

"Construction work on the rapid transit lines is already undermanned. All of the men engaged in making final estimates have been transferred to field work, and the contractors are likely to complain because delays will result in withholding payments. The commission has been very reluctant to make changes in the force, for it means delays in completion, increased cost, and possible damages as well as additional claims by contractors.

"The engineers left with the commission have complained that they are unable to supervise the work properly and will be unable to certify that the work has been performed or to certify the monthly payments to contractors. I do not know of any situation more serious than that relating to subway work arising from the present demoralization of the engineering force. Not only have more than 370 employes, many of them experienced and valuable, been laid off, but the remaining engineers are uncertain, and doubtless many of them will leave, for contractors and corporations have already been prompt in picking up a number of the best men whom we were compelled to let go."

Appraise Mrs. Sage's Property.

Appraisers have begun the task of determining the value of the property on Long Island owned by the late Mrs. Russell Sage. They have started at Sag Harbor, where "Harbor Home" was one of Mrs. Sage's country houses. The house as originally planned by Colonel Benjamin H. Hunting, who commenced its construction, called for an outlay of only $50,000. After Mrs. Sage purchased the uncompleted dwelling in 1907 she spent more than $100,000 on the property.
